Classic Check Non-Negotiable Game Moved

WASHINGTON, D.C.-When Tom Harris, Union Uni-versity's coach, reached here Thursday and found that the check that had been given his school, as the guarantee for the D. C. Classic, which was scheduled to be played here Saturday, between his school and Morgan University, was non-negotiable, he immediately notified Alexander James, vice president of the Richmond school and the game was moved to Hovey Field in the Virginia city.

P. C. Doss, Washington promotor of th game, was not able to produce the money and Harris said, "We must have the money or we will not play the game in Washington." The money did not come and the game was played in Richmond.

This was a long cry from the days of the Capital classic when there was as much as $12,000 in the till a week before the game. Doss was also told that tickets sold for the game here would not be honored in Richmond. He announced that persons holding such tickets could get a refund "from whoever sold them the tickets. He also said if there happen to be a problem all one had to do was to drop by 6212 New Hampshire Ave., N. E. by card or in person and the refund would be forthcoming. The game was billed as a CIAA tilt and Union was the

CINCINNATI, Ohio - The big-prize bee stung Oscar Robertson, after Wilt Chamberlain made hay out of his sting and the "Big O" came up with a three-year contract that promises to net him $100,000 per- . year to play for the Cincinnati

Robertson has been scoring about one/fourth of the Royals' points and decided that the time had come for him to strike.

The Big O was the last of the major NBA stars to come to terms this year. Wilt Chamberlain ended his holdout Tuesday by signing a contract with the Philadelphia 76ers that will pay him an estimated $250,000.

J. W. Brown, Robertson's attorney, also declined to disclose the terms of the contract but admitted that "it contains a number of unusual clauses; it is not a form contract."

"We are very well satisfied and so are the Royals," Brown said of the agreement whose final terms were worked out this morning in a telephone conversation between him and Lindthorst.

As far as the Royals' fans are concerned, the three-year contract should eliminate one element of suspense that has accompanied the start of the pro basketball season in recent years. Robertson has been a holdout the last three years, and this time there were some reports that the Royals might

In Intersectional Tilt Grambling Clips Tenn.State A&I University, 26-24

BY COLLIE NICHOLSON

NASHVILLE - Quarterback James Harris was architect and executioner last Saturday night as Grambling college performed with aplomb in clutch situations to deflate Tennessee State A&I University 26-24, in an intersectional game.

Harris dulled Tennessee's claws with three touchdowns passes, loosened the enemy secondary to set up another score, and relegated all-American Eldridge Dickey to relative anonymity with the prolific passing performance.

Operating behind a massive and mobile line, the 203-pound junior fairly sizzled as Grambling balanced slashing running and pin-point passing in a manner that left the impression that it will be difficult to cope

Harris, who threw for 264 yards, swung the game in Grambling's favor with 26 and 28-yard scoring strikes to Robert Atkins, before concluding with a 25-yard bomb to Glenn Alexander.

Esses Johnson boomed over for the other marker on a twoyard slant.

Harris engineered two drives of 75 and 80 yards in a race with the clock as the Tigers scored with 57 second remaining in the first half. He then rambled the length of the field to douse all Tennessee's hopes in the final two minutes of Coleman Zeno made a leaping catch for a 50-yard advance in the finale, two plays before Alexander responded with the winning reception in the end zone.

Showing his usual affinity for the goal, Dickey maneuvered Tennessee to a pair of first half scores with Wayne Reese booming over for both markers.

Roy McNeese booted a 40yard field goal, and Dickey tallied the last touchdown on a two-yard run.

Following the contest Grambling fans reflected glory, while their counterparts were utterly sunk by the disaster.

NCC Eagles Play Virginia State Trojans To 7-7 Tie

DURHAM - North Carolina College, winless in three previous outings, held an undefeated Virginia State College team to a 234 yards in a 7-7 tie football game Saturday on NCC's O'Kelly Field.

Virginia State's Trojans had averaged 457 yards in their two previous games, a 53-6 win over Howard University and a 38-12 defeat of Shaw University.

The Eagles came close to duplicating last year's game, which was their victory after three straight losses.

Virginia State drew first blood in Saturday's game, after a scoreless first quarter, Quarterback Lawrence Sugg set the score up with a 59-yard run from the Trojans' 20-yard line to NCC's 21. The Petersburg, Va., team moved the ball to the three in five downs, and fullback Robert Wingo drove across for the score.

A conversion kick by Harry Short made the score 7-0 for Virginia State. North Carolina put together a 65-yard touchdown drive late in the second quarter. The drive included an 18-inch run by fullback Roger Foust and a 16-yard dash by quarterback Herman Matthews.

Matthews threw a perfect pass to end Julian Martin in the end zone, but officials canceled the pass with an illegal procedure call.

After a series of penalties, NCC started over from the 41yard line. Matthews ran 15 yards but threw the ball as he was tackled for an illegal forward pass call. Back on the 30-yard line, Matthew ran six yards to the 24, then passed to Martin for 18 yards. Matthews was thrown at the 15 yard line on the next play, but the Eagles moved back to the 7 1/2 yard line on a penalty against Virginia State.

End Julian Leak snagged a Matthews pass on the one-yard line, and Foust plunged over for the score.

Virgil Alston tied the score for the Eagles with his extra point kick. NCC kept the Trojans busy in the second half with the help of 49 and 48 yard punts by Thurman Jones, forcing the Virginia State men to start two key series of plays on their own one yard line. In the second half, Coach William Lawson's Trojans got no closer to a score than North Carolina College's 35-line.

The Eagles intercepted three passes by Sugg and one by Trojan quarterback Joseph Crittendon. Three of the interceptions were by speedy defensive back Ronald Upperman. Linebacker and captain William Stanton accounted for the fourth Eagle interception.

Virginia State earned seven first down, the Eagles 8. The Trojans rushed for 172 yards and passed for 62, while NCC
