administration to right a wrong. The administration is said to have taken the position that the matter should come through channels provided to hear grievances and then act. Two of the channels were listed as Student-Faculty Advisory Committee and the Universal Plans and Policy Committee.

The protest had been very peaceful until a few minutes before the protestors decided to leave the entrance to the president's office. A campus visitor decided that he walk through the demonstrators, seated or lying in his path. He was told, by the demonstrators that he should not attempt to continue his forward progress. He continued to move forward and was hurled against a wall, which caused him to halt his forward motion and to not attempt to go any further.

The trouble is said to stem from the fact that a referendum held last week saw the majority over turn a statute passed by the Associated Students of D.Ke University that banned any segregated meeting places available to the students of the university, regardless to race or color. The aggressive Negro students termed this an affront to them and demanded that the administration move in and issue an order over throwing the referendum. Speaking for the university, Frank L. Ashmore, vice president for institutional advancement said:

"The university cannot and will not take action under the threat of an ultimatum. The matters at issue have been under discussion for some time and continue to be under discussion. The channels for giving consideration to these matters by all members of the university community are clear, open and well established. Serious efforts were made today by appropriate officials of the university and by spokesmen of the group of students here today to agree on a procedure. Unfortunately, agreement on these questions of procedure could not be reached."

Rejection of the previous ultimatum delivered to President Knight on Friday by four Negro student leaders led to Monday's protest. On that occasion, the student leaders demanded that the administration "immediately announce and explicitly institute a policy of total prohibition of patronization of segregated establishments by any official university organization."

President Knight responded with a denial that the university has been guilty of "neglect, discrimination and bad faith," as charged by the Negro students.

sat, while relating the inferno story to newsmen. He wryly shook his head.

He related how he had been the victim of another fire and how his mother died shortly after that fire. He told how he felt the fire got started. He pointed to an old chimney and showed where an elbow went into the chimney. It was his opinion that the house had been used to store many things that were fodder to the fire, in a closet, just under the place where the elbow went into the chimney. He chanced that sparks from the elbow fell in the closet and set off the fatal fire.

Mr. Perry picked up new courage and a new glimpse of hope, when interested persons came with cheering words and gifts. He remembered that he and his sister bought groceries, out of the pension funds he receives and the pittance that Ett got, just a few days ago and that they had been destroyed. When asked what he would do he said that he would spend some time with a netice in Wake Forest, but hopes to return to the area and occupy another house. He vowed to return to the vicinity that he had called home and cherish the fond memories, ever remembering that "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away."

will remain in desegregated public schools in the South. In desegregation "one sees some frightening trends." This is true for the problem of desegregating the public schools and dismissing the Negro teacher has been reduced, almost stopped, but now the Negro administrator is adversely affected.

"The predominately dual-association (Negro) will have to take every action possible to prevent the problem."

If "necessary" the Negro teachers associations will have to resort to courts to find a solution to the problem.

"North Carolina cannot close out its operations before 1969 by merging until something is done about this problem."

Society has come to a point where it has neglected its schools.

"It is a sad thing for teachers to have to strike for what is rightfully theirs."

"But strikes, sanctions or negotiations, which ever must be used, we will use them to make the profession worth our being in it."

The teacher is placed at the bottom of the social structure. A teacher makes a national average salary of "$3,000" annually while bus drivers earn "$6,000."

"Remember my friends, the black man is on the rise for equality around the world." "Don't get left behind. You do not have to cease being a Negro to be a man."

Banks has not let any grass grow under his feet, when it comes to militancy. He is a graduate of Shaw University and has been in the forefront of reforms in Thomasville and in the state. Forecasters are not too sure what will happen.

It has long since been known that there were quite a few who were dissatisfied with Alexander's methods. He was accused of being noncooperative with other organizations and with failure to lend his aid to constructive programs, that were not initiated by him. He is also accused of making demands that were unreasonable, like forcing the burial of Negroes in cemeteries, designated for white people.

Rev. B. B. Felder, Dunn, is said to be eyeing the job held by Charles McLean, as field director for the state. It is believed that Banks and Felder are running on a 7-point program that is proposed to get North Carolina moving in the right direction, on many issues. Attorney Earl Whitted, Goldsboro, is said to be Banks' campaign manager.

who prepares himself only for life in a segregated society is depriving himself of whatever opportunity there may be for a share in a larger future. More than ever before, the Negro youth has the opportunity and the responsibility to establish his goals in education, economics, and politics at new breakthrough levels."

"The call for separatism strikes a responsive chord in an undetermined number of Negroes," Williams said, "particularly the Negro youth. Clearly the slogans for separatism hold an appeal, too, for the middle class Negro who has seen his high hopes crumpled against the brick walls of racial prejudice."

"Sociologists tell us what we already suspect is the truth--that the new desire for separatism grows out of despair," Williams said.

He quoted an estimate by the President's Council of Economic Advisors that racial discrimination costs the country $20 billion a year. "We are talking about the Nation's oldest treasure hunt -- the search of a people for equality of opportunity -- educationally, politically, economically."

The conference, attended by high school teachers and students from across the state, heard Williams cite the achievements, of Carl Stokes, newly-elected mayor of Cleveland, and Senator Edward Brooks as evidence that Negroes can achieve prominence in areas where they are a minority.

"To make the most of new opportunities," Williams said, "the Negro must think of himself as a contributing part of the society in which he lives, not as a man apart. To join the voices that are raised for separation of the races is to yield too easily, to surrender too abjectly to the forces of oppression that have bound the Negro into his separate and unequal place for centuries."

has obtained the name of the now defendant, from friends and to have turned it over, to investigators. Lightner was named as the person who fired three shots, with only one hitting McDuffie, detective E. O. Lassiter is said to have apprehended Lightner on the night of Nov. 9 and to have charged him with a felony, to wit--assault with a deadly weapon, with intent to kill. The father of the accused youth, Clarence Lightner, is said to have signed a $2500 bond for his appearance, to answer the charge.

The report also stated that Lightner refused to make any statement. McDuffie is alleged to have told officers that he had an argument with a person he did not know. The two walked out of the Green Carpet and upon getting outside the building, the unknown person began shooting. The report did not disclose the details of the argument.

ing. Those having first choice in the planned project will be in the following categories; persons who have been displaced by governmental actions; persons who are 62 years of age or older; the physically handicapped; persons who now live in substantial housing; persons who occupy or formerly occupied living units destroyed or extensively damaged by natural disaster. The rent supplement program works in the following manner. It requires the tenant to pay 25% of his income to rent. The balance is made up by a rent supplement. As the tenant's income increases, the supplement decreases proportionately. In order to qualify as sponsors under the rent supplement program, a 2% cash outlay has been required of the group. This 2% loan has been made available by the Low Income Housing Development Corporation and by funds contributed by the five participating churches.

Wrinkle Remover

What's the only way to get rid of wrinkles in your laundry without ironing? Use clothes made with "permanent press" and dry them in an electric dryer.

Electric dryers and "permanent press" are made for each other. When "permanent press" is tumble dried, wrinkles fall out and creases fall in... where they belong. No ironing needed.

Of course, soft tumbling in an electric dryer reduces wrinkles—and ironing—in ordinary clothes, too. So, give electric drying a tumble. Buy a new "wrinkle remover" from an electric appliance dealer, soon.

Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away," He continued, "Blessed be the name of the Lord." Newsmen told the CAROLINIAN that they had never seen such a display of faith in all their lives. They described the World War I veteran as one who believed that fire and pestilence could not shake his belief in God.

The fire victim related to them how he awoke in a haze of smoke and realizing that fire had enveloped the old frame house, tried desperately to rescue his 65-yr.-old sister, whom he called Ett. He related a tear-jerking story as how he knew that Ett was stricken with arthritis and how he knew it took her a long time to get up. He said she answered, but he could not open the door, due to his feebleness.

He opined that Ett must have locked the door. He then related how he was about to be overcome with the smoke and how the flames were coming down upon him. It was then that he picked up one suit, a pair of boots and groped his way to the door. His heart was heavy, in that he felt that Ett would perish in the flames. He made his way out and pulled the metal chair out of reach of the fire and it was there that he
