BESSEMER CITY - Some thirty-five firemen worked more than an hour here Monday before containing a fire which killed three young children and destroyed their trailer home on N. C. 161, between here and Kings Mountain.

Only the mother and a three-year-old boy escaped the fire. They were both pinned to safety by a neighbor.

USA, Poor People May Sue Each Other

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Both the United States government and Poor People's Campaign leaders are thinking of suing each other.

The federal government is contemplating going to court for $71,795 it claims the Poor's People's Campaign owes it for tearing down Resurrection City and restoring the park land it occupied.

And the Poor People's Campaign leaders are ready with a possible countersuit accusing the government of destroying and taking away their property, which was left at Resurrection City, located on Federal grounds.

The $71,795 bill represents the costs of tearing down and removing plywood shanties built by the demonstrators, dismantling the sanitary and electrical facilities and resodding the area.

Resurrection City, a dream of the assassinated Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., was actually headed by the Rev. Ralph Da-

Fayetteville

Creates Human Relations Dept.

Cumberland Commission Is Extolled

FAYETTEVILLE - The Fayetteville City Council, by recent ordinance, created the human relations department with a 15-member advisory commission. The department studies problems of discrimination in any and all fields of human relationship and encourages fair treatment and mutual understanding among all racial and ethnic groups in the city.

Ottie L. West, a native of Willard, and holding three academic degrees, was appointed as Director of the Department. West organized the 15 member commission into five subcommittees to deal with problems in employment, housing, education, community affairs and publicity. These committees are active, not only to solve, but to anticipate problem areas and make appropriate recommendations to the city council.

Many influential citizens of the city, including the strong business sector, are serving and advising on the subcommittee. Housing and employment are the major sources of tension in the city and the prime cause of frustration among black citizens. Each complaint is promptly investigated and solutions sought. To date all of the complaints have been solved with exception only to two under consideration.

West feels that the basic source of tension is not race, and that the solution lies not in integration or segregation. The task of human relations is to free each man from the prison of racial myths and to get competing groups to co-

All of these teachers were backed in their efforts to seek justice by the National Education Association.

Civil Rights Body Of NC Is Heard

Southside residents should be given the opportunity to participate meaningfully in renewal and relocation decisions which affect their lives, the North Carolina State Advisory Committee to the U. S. Commission on Civil Rights suggested in a report issued this week.

To accomplish this, the Advisory Committee called for the reorganization of the Mayor's Subcommittee on Housing for Southside. The Subcommittee should be independent of the Raleigh Redevelopment Commission and have the authority to elect its own chairman and secretary, the State Advisory Committee said.

Based on its study of Raleigh's Southside Urban Renewal Project, the Advisory Committee made 16 other specific recommendations designed to resolve some of the project's planning and relocation problems.

Rev. Heslip Lee, Acting Chairman of the State Advisory Committee, said that the Committee does not want the goal of renewing Southside Raleigh lost in the midst of dealing with the problems and obstacles faced by the project. "Both the residents of the area and the community should be provided the advantages of this urban renewal project," the Committee emphasized.

"The Advisory Committee finds that his project as presently planned, will provide significant physical renewal for the city, but will also perpetuate the hardships upon poor black people which have characterized such programs in the past," the State Advisory Committee noted in its report. "But this does not mean that practicable alternatives are not available. There are other means by which the renewal project can proceed, achieve all of its goals, and avoid the pitfalls of the past which are presently built

Neighbors Say They Were Raped

Two teenage girls claimed they were raped here Monday within a period of less than 12 hours apart. Both reside in the 500 block of E. Hargett St., near Thompson School.

The last one to charge rape was Brenda Lois Tyson, about 18, 543 E. Hargett St., who, according to Det. Lt. R. A. Liles is the mother of a child. She told Raleigh police that she was raped Monday night in the 200 block of S. Swain St. behind Thomas' Food Store at the corner of E. Hargett and S. Swain Sts. as she was on her way to a grocery store.

She declared that a young man approached her in the 700 block of E. Martin St., about 7 p. m., and asked her what she was doing out at that time of the night. The identity of the assailant was not disclosed.

The girl said she did not reply to this question and the next thing she knew the man was picking her up off the ground.

She also is said to have testified that she was carried about 20 yards behind the grocery store and put on the ground again.

Miss Tyson stated the man then pulled a pocket knife and threatened to cut her throat if she screamed. The rape occurred at that time, she concluded.

In the second incident, after being informed that officers were looking for him with a warrant charging rape, James E. Brooks, 22, of the 200 block of Camden St., surrendered himself.
