President Takes Reins At Inaugural

BY ROLAND BLACK
WASHINGTON (UPI) - Now that Richard M. Nixon is the nation's President, what's he going to do for Black people? The answers range from the obscure to the sublime. But only Nixon himself can decide just what he will do.

To some, Nixon's "Black capitalism" slogan is a portent of a golden era for Negroes. To others, "Black capitalism" is but a pacification program to keep the Black masses quiet.

Somewhere in between is what "Black capitalism" is likely to turn out to be.

Before Nixon took office it was warned by some that he would throw the country into a depression—and it was predicted by others that he would produce more economic abundance.

It was charged that Nixon favored a program that would put thousands of Black people out of work in an effort to slow down inflation—and it was also noted that Nixon supported the development of Black business, which would employ more Black people.

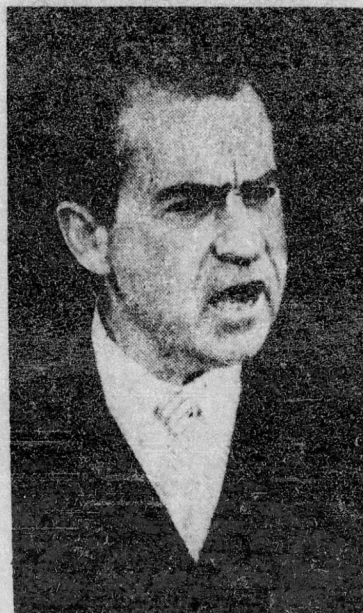

The new President is likely to do something in between—ruining the country and making it a paradise. The question, then, is not what startling reforms he make but what "in-between" action he will take.

There will probably be no concentration camps built for Black during his administration—but neither will all Blacks be suddenly catapulted into overnight prosperity.

If anything, there will be certain undramatic economic and social advancements for Blacks or some possible setbacks during his administration.

A restless nation of high expectations does not see things that way, however. Many U. S. citizens view their President either as an agent of sinister repression or a source from whom all blessings flow.

To the Black Liberation Alliance, Nixon's programs aim at

Murray Is Asked To Apologize

FAYETTEVILLE - At a meeting Thursday night of the executive committee, Fayetteville Area Poor People's Organization (FAPPO), it was decided to request a public apology from John Murray, Executive Director of the Cumberland County Community Action Program (CCCAP).

Murray allegedly condemned FAPPO publicly at the December meeting of CCCAP. FAPPO also charges that Murray has used every vehicle at his disposal to label the organization as an extremist group.

A critical evaluation by the regional Office of Economic Opportunity has completely absolved FAPPO from all of Murray's alleged critical accusations of FAPPO.

The evaluation called FAPPO

STRUCK WITH STOVE

Mrs. Elizabeth White Jones, 32, 1129 Gregg Street, told Officers Ralph Clayborne and D. N. Scott at 8:15 p.m. Friday, that during an argument with Harold Ellis Morgan, 36, same address, she was struck with an iron stove "key."

The woman was treated at Wake Memorial Hospital for a one-inch cut on the head and released. A warrant was signed charging assault with a deadly weapon, and Morgan was "hauled off" to Wake County Jail, where he was placed under a bond of $50.

DOC CUT AND STABBED
Doc Connie Johnson, 401 Rand Mill Road, Garner, reported to a cop last weekend that he was arguing with another colored male over a girl in front of 320 W. South Street, when he was "cut and stabbed" by the suspect.

Johnson said he was attacked by James (Jim) Brown, 26, 602 S. McDowell Street. A witness was listed as Luther Johnson, Jr., 625 New Bern Avenue, who called "the law."

Johnson suffered a five-inch chest wound, described as "deep," and had a small cut on his face. No other information was listed on the report.

Many residents of the Oberlin area of the city are in an uproar over the alleged treatment of 30-year-old George Edward Kitchen, 1324 Oberlin Road by officials and physicians at Rex Hospital here Sunday night.

Mr. Kitchen, the father of two girls, one four, the other 7 months old, an underwriter for Northwestern Insurance Company, Glenwood Avenue, was shot in the mouth by an unknown white man about 8 p.m. Sunday as he was driving towards his home on Peace Street, near its intersection with N. Wilmington.

He is now paralyzed on the left side and in the intensive care section at Wake Memorial Hospital where he was taken by ambulance early Monday morning.

During an interview with Mr. Kitchen's wife, the former Miss Willie Genora Black, a Fuquay-Varina native, it was learned that she was called shortly after her husband was admitted to Rex.

Upon arrival and after observing her husband's condition, Mrs. Kitchen said she asked a doctor who removed the bullet from the man's throat whether her husband should not be kept overnight, but was informed that he could be taken home. The wife said that she observed the beginnings of paralysis before taking him from Rex as he had to be carried out in a wheel chair. She said she was assisted in dressing him by an orderly and her brother-in-law.

Reynolds Tobacco Co. Releases Plans For Ads In Negro Press

NEW ORLEANS - Plans for a major institutional advertising campaign in Negro-oriented newspapers across the country were announced here last week-end by R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company.

Reynolds, which manufactures three of the four best-selling brands of cigarettes in the U.S. (Winston, Salem, and Camel), made the announcement at a news conference during the Mid-winter Workshop of the National Newspaper Publishers Association—the trade association of the nation's black press.

A Company spokesman described the campaign as "an effort to acquaint the Negro consumer with Reynolds in general, including its products, policies, personnel and its corporate citizenship." He said the institutional advertising would supplement RJR product advertising directed at black consumers through Negro-oriented magazines and radio stations.

"We at R.J. Reynolds are fully aware of the tremendously important role being played by the nation's Negro-oriented press and the responsible influence it is having on America's black citizens. As a result, we have decided to utilize these newspapers in a constructive fashion to help tell our story in matters of particular interest to their readers."

The Company declined to reveal the exact cost of the campaign.

J. Conyers Introduces A New Bill

WASHINGTON - Congressman John Conyers, Jr. (Dem.-Michigan) and more than twenty other members of Congress have introduced the Full Opportunity Act as a birthday tribute to the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

Although Dr. King's birthday falls on the 15th of January, the bill was introduced recently because some of the Members plan to attend memorial services for Dr. King Jan. 15. "I wanted to introduce the bill near his birthday because he was very interested in this legislation and said shortly before his death that he would accept its passage as a reasonable satisfaction of his demands" in connection with the Poor People's Campaign," said Conyers.

WEATHER REPORT

Temperatures during the period, Thursday through Monday, will average above normal. Day-time highs are expected to average mostly in the 50s, except 57-57 along the coast. Lows at night will average mostly in the 30s in the mountains and generally 33-42 degrees elsewhere, except in the 40s along the coast. A gradual warming trend is expected through the weekend, but it will turn colder by Monday. Precipitation will total three-fourths of an inch or more, occurring as rain or scattered showers on Thursday and again towards the latter part of the weekend and Monday.

Coroner Sets Inquest In Knife Death Here

A Raleigh man was stabbed to death at his home here Sunday night and his wife is being held in Wake County Jail, pending the outcome of the Coroner's Inquest, set for January 29 here.

Paul McLamb, 58, 549 E. Hargett Street (next to Thompson Elementary School), was discovered in the nude after being stabbed once with a butcher knife. Mrs. Josie McLamb, his wife, about 50, was later arrested and is now being held, but not charged.

Wake County Coroner Marshall W. Bennett, in an interview with CAROLINIAN managing editor Charles R. Jones on Tuesday night, said "Mrs. McLamb was drunk and told police officers three different stories about the slaying."

He said an unidentified Negro police officer received a call to the apartment house about 8:30 p.m. Sunday. The wife is said to have answered the door, and when asked if there was any trouble, the woman reportedly informed him that there was not. About an hour later, another call came from the same address and the same officer answered it.

This time, Bennett said, the officer was admitted and found Mr. McLamb on the floor, "naked and dead." He had been stabbed on the left side, the coroner said, "just above the kidney and near the armpit. A blood vessel was severed" and the entire blade of the kitchen utensil is believed to have penetrated his body.

He said Mrs. McLamb had plastic surgery performed on her face recently and, at first, claimed that she did not answer the officer's first investigation because she was not at home. She later admitted this was untrue, however, after facing the officer.

Coroner Bennett said the wife also claimed that two women were at the house at the time of the stabbing, but these women proved that they could not possibly have been in the apartment to the satisfaction of the officials.

At this point, Mrs. McLamb claimed that a man was at her house and that she and the unidentified man "were dancing close" when her husband suddenly slapped her. She told the coroner that the man "told Paul not to slap me no more," but

Slaying Of 2 Black Panthers Baffles UCLA's Police Chief

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - "We just don't know what happened," said members of the Black Panthers.

John Jerome Huggins, 23, and Alprentice Carter, 26, were mortally wounded as gunfire erupted at a meeting of 150 Negro students at the university.

Both had been accepted for UCLA's "high potential" program for minority students lacking adequate academic records. Carter was identified as the Panthers' deputy defense minister.

The shooting started just as the gathering was breaking up. The meeting was held to discuss a Black studies program proposed by UCLA officials. "No one we have interviewed at this time saw the entire series of events," said Lt. Robert Madlock, Los Angeles police detective heading the investigation of the slayings.

Efforts are being made to contact everyone who attended the meeting, he added.

Group Seeks Aid For Condemned Girl

In a continued effort to seek justice in the case of Marie Hill, of Rocky Mount, the Committee for Racial Justice battles on in all-out attempt to free the 17-year-old accused of murder.

Clergymen, students, and the concerned community are rallying to the cause, as the fund raising committee, "The Defense Committee for the Rocky Mount Four is accepting donations and pledges for her legal defense.

The other three girls are being held, but not charged with the murder. They, according to Rocky Mount officials, were on the look-out while Marie reportedly shot and beat a white 65-year-old merchant.

Based in Raleigh, the working crew was instrumental in securing information pertinent to the case, in addition to engaging attorneys Julius Chambers and Conrad Boddie.
