

INAUGURATE BLACK STUDIES PROGRAM—Citizens of the Greensboro area joined with North Carolina A&T State University in setting up exhibits by black artists. Discussing the project are Dr. Frederick A. Williams, director of planning and development at A&T; Mrs. Eva Miller, curator of the exhibit; Mrs. Robert L. Wynn an exhibitor; and Dr. Virgil Stroud.

DEAR SALLY

BY SALLY SHAW

DEAR SALLY: I'm a girl of 16, think a lot of my parents, but am now having a little disagreement with them. They don't like my friends (boys and girls), claiming their manners are terrible. I'll admit these kids are rather short-spoken and inclined to limit their answers to my parents' questions or greetings to grunts, and sometimes even no answers at all. And recently my parents were especially incensed because not one of the 11 guests I had a party in our home said goodbye to them at the end of the evening or thanked them for the refreshments. I keep telling my parents that my friends are essentially good kids, and the faults they keep finding in them aren't all that important. What do you say about this? TINA.

DEAR TINA: Your friends may, as you say, be good kids, but they're making it extremely difficult for others to know it. Manners, good common courtesy, are important. Charm, the ability to attract others, cannot exist without good manners.

DEAR SALLY: My wife insists that a husband should help his wife with some of the household chores when he arrives home from work, dish-washing, vacuuming, dusting, laundry, and the like. I say no, that these things are entirely a wife's responsibility. She has agreed to consider what you have to say on the subject. MAC.

DEAR MAC: Depends. If the wife is also employed during the day, the housework should be a co-operative deal. If she isn't, then I agree with you... the housework is her responsibility.

DEAR SALLY: I am the private secretary of the president of a large company, but I seem to be working more for his wife than for him. She is very socially active, a member of numerous committees, and I am constantly being delegated to type dozens of letters for her. This, I think, is grossly unfair -- my being constantly called upon to do another woman's work for her. Don't you agree? SLAVE.

DEAR SLAVE: No. You are this man's private secretary, being paid a salary to perform the work he assigns to you, and if part of that work included some of his wife's social activities, accept it as part of your job and stop griping about it.

DEAR SALLY: When I became engaged a couple of months ago, I asked my best friend to be my matron of honor at my wedding which is set for about four months from now. But today she has confided to me that she is pregnant, and now I am afraid that her general appearance by the time the date of my wedding arrives will ruin the effect of my wedding. Do you think I should have a little heart-to-heart talk with her about this and perhaps suggest that she give up the role of matron of honor? ALLIE.

DEAR ALLIE: Not if you want to keep her as your best friend! A bride usually asks a "best friend" for this very important role, and the fact that this "best friend" is pregnant should not eliminate her...and certainly could not spoil your wedding. Just help her to select a loose-fitting gown and give her all the consideration due to a "best friend."

Delight guests with an easy-to-do dessert. Make Peachy Rice Pudding from ingredients handy on your kitchen shelf. Velvety evaporated milk keeps it delectable and extra-nutritious. Guests love it.

PEACHY RICE PUDDING (Makes 6 servings)

2 cups (1-pound can) sliced peaches
Peach syrup plus water to make 1 cup
1 package (3 1/4 ounces) vanilla pudding and pie filling mix
1 cup undiluted Carnation Evaporated Milk
2 cups cooked rice
1 teaspoon vanilla

Drain peaches; reserve syrup. Add water to syrup to make 1 cup. Combine pudding mix, syrup-water mixture and evaporated milk in saucepan. Cook over medium heat until mixture thickens and comes to a boil, stirring constantly. Cool to room temperature. Dice half of peaches, saving other half for garnish. Fold diced peaches and cooked rice into pudding. Mix well. Chill until serving time (at least 2 hours). Spoon into sherbet dishes. Garnish with remaining peaches and half a maraschino cherry.
