Here's how the Saturn 5 rocket, which launched astronauts Borman, Lovell and Anders on their trip around the moon, compares in height with Detroit's Fisher Building. This composite picture shows the rocket as though it is resting on West Grand Boulevard adjacent to the famous office building in Detroit's New Center area. The Saturn 5 is only 78 feet shorter than the Fisher Building, whose golden tower reaches 411 feet high. The rocket which blasted the Apollo 8 into space was loaded with 960,000 gallons of fuel for the historic moon-circling trip.

Negro Migration To Cities Declines, Report Declares

WASHINGTON—Negro migration to the nation's cities is declining, at the same time that inner-city ghettos are spreading, according to a report issued by Urban America, Inc., and the Urban Coalition. The report, which studied U. S. social behavior since the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders issued its

YOU ARE THE DETECTIVE

The lifeless body of the pretty young woman lies on the floor of the apartment bedroom, a bullet hole in her right temple, a gun lying on the floor near her outstretched right hand. You carefully pick up the gun in a handkerchief, sniff the barrel and verify that it has recently been fired, then you test the safety catch, moving it off, then back to its original position.

Then, after noting the beautiful, low-cut evening gown the young victim is wearing and her perfectly coiffed blonde hair, you turn to her husband, Tom Hudson, who dressed in a blue open-collar sport shirt and sharply-pressed gray slacks is standing on the other side of the room puffing nervously on a cigarette.

"Poor Kathy," he exclaims. "Why did she have to do this? I thought she was in good spirits. She and I were getting ready to go out for dinner and dancing this evening. She was here in the bedroom putting the finishing touches on her makeup, I thought. . . I was in the other room watching television and waiting for her. Then there was the sound of the shot! I rushed in here. . . there she was on the floor. . . dead! Shot herself!"

"Do you know of any reason at all why she should have taken her life this way?" you ask.

"Well, our friends will probably tell you that Kathy and I had been having a little trouble lately. . . several quarrels in public. She was always suspicious of me. . . accused me of having a roving eye so far as other women were concerned. It wasn't true at all, but I couldn't seem to convince her of this. . . until this evening, when I was sure I had brought her around. Our date tonight was supposed to be in the nature of a reconciliation. . . but. . ." the young man man shakes his head sadly.

"Well," you now say, "it's a good story you've told me, but not quite good enough. You'll have to come to headquarters with me and tell us how it really happened that you killed your wife!"

Why do you suspect Tom Hudson of murder?

Why do you suspect Tom Hudson of murder?
 SOLUTION
 In the first place, you found the safety catch of the gun on. A person who shot himself wouldn't throw the safety catch back on after firing the weapon. Tom Hudson must have instinctively and thoughtlessly pushed it back on after firing the gun at his wife. Also, there is a glaring inconsistency in Hudson's story. He told you he was watching television in the other room, waiting for his wife to finish dressing for their evening out together, and you found her in evening dress—but Hudson himself was dressed in sports clothes.

1966 to 100,000 a year, from 1966 to 1968.
 The percentage of Negro families in central cities headed by females rose last year to 35 per cent, it was found.

Not Ready For Black Mayor? Jackson Doesn't Agree Doesn't

ATLANTA—One man who does not share state Rep. Julian Bond's pessimism about the election of a Black mayor in Atlanta this year is Maynard H. Jackson, Jr.

Atlanta has good reason for thinking differently. He's running for mayor in a city that's at least 45 per cent Black.

The 30-year-old Black lawyer, who unsuccessfully challenged Sen. Herman E. Talmadge in the 1968 Democratic primary, believes the election of a "qualified" Black mayor this year might prevent voting along purely racial lines in the future.

Atlanta's next mayor, Jackson said, would have to command the "respect of the Black community" as well as a portion of the white community.

If "the city doesn't get a Black mayor at this time," when a majority of Atlanta's voters are still white, almost all subsequent mayors will be Black, he predicted.

If elected, Jackson would be the first Negro mayor in the South since Reconstruction days. He is one of the few Black people to run for mayor in Southern cities.

A Black person unsuccessfully ran for mayor in Memphis several years ago, and a Negro mayoralty candidate is currently campaigning in Lake Charles, La.

But it is in Atlanta where Black voting strength is being tested, as the city moves
