Cumberland Community Action Program

CONSUMER EDUCATION

There were nineteen ladies and one gentleman in the Area G. Commodity food class February 28. Mary McDonald is real happy. Do you know she may receive a certificate of graduation along with class participation? Lula Crumpler, the developer, and Carol Adams are also trying to get one. Sorry, Al Adams isn't eligible. Maybe something can be worked out.

Sarah Thomas had much success in Area D with her food class. Seven women came to class and enjoyed chicken and dumpling made from commodities. Much to their surprise, the dinner was good. Keep up the good work!

Another mouth watering idea came from Queen Shavis sewing class in River Road, The ladies made some delicious salmon

Someone should ask Carrie Sparks about Area F. On the way out, she and Ann Wright ran into an accident. A trailer turned over, making it impossible for them to reach the Turnbull. Don't worry, we will reach Area F next Tuesday or

Youth Council Activities

Prepared By Members of The Fayetteville Youth Council

The Fayetteville Youth Council has made plans for a fashion show which is to be held March 15. The models will be senior high school students from each of the four high schools in the city. The fashions will be sup- , education, plied by the friendly merchants of Fayetteville.

The Patriotism Week sponsored by the FYC last week was not an overwhelming success, but it did receive considerable response. The week commenced with a Patriotic Rally at Rowan Street Park. This was followed by a week of patriotic displays, announcements, and flag decals. The week of enthusiasm was brought to a close with a cavalcade down Hay Street last Saturday. Winners in the Patriotism Es-High School; second place, Wanda K. Mitchener of E. E. NEW YORK-A nostalgic look at the works of the late Miss Lorraine Hansberry was pro- music. grammed in a half-hour presentation over CBS-TV last week. It consisted of excerpts from the critically-acciaimed off-Broadway production, "To Be Young, Gifted and Black," taken from the late author's plays "A Raisin In The Sun," 'Sign In Sidney Brustein's Window," "Les Blancs," "Drinking Gourd," and "What Use Are Flowers." The show was adapted by her bushand Robert Nemiroff, and members of the original cast were used in broadcast segments.

TAKE OVER NEW YORK-The untimely death of guitarist Wes Montgomery last June cut short an innovation in music that was just about to pay off. However, now there is another guitarist pursuing the Montgomery sound, 25-year-old George Benson, a former rock 'n' roll musician who switched to Wes' jazz form after hearing some of the late guitarist's earlier recordings.
