

WANTS KING ASSASSINATION INVESTIGATED—Washington: Adam Clayton Powell joined March 14 in urging Pres. Nixon to re-activate the Warren Commission to investigate the slaying of Martin Luther King. The Harlem Congressman, shown at a news conference here March 14, said he agrees with Rep. Charles C. Diggs, Jr., D-Mich., who wired Nixon March 13 asking for a full investigation of the King assassination. (UPI).

DEAR SALLY

BY SALLY SHAW

DEAR SALLY: A group of us college fellows became embroiled in a big discussion recently -- about life expectancy in various white-collar, higher-income occupations. We are sure some types of work offer greater longevity than others, and we wonder if possibly you might be able to throw some light on this important subject. OMEGA.

DEAR OMEGA: Some general surveys have been made which revealed that professional and managerial men have longer life expectancy, but so far as I know there are no mortality tables according to specific occupations. To tell you the truth, if certain persons are more concerned over living long than living successful and happy lives, they won't be getting much of anything out of their allotted spans, whatever their lengths might be.

DEAR SALLY: I'm a girl soon to be married, and have been getting a lot of fine wedding gifts. Today, however, I opened a very attractively wrapped gift box and almost fell over when I discovered it contained a dozen books of trading stamps! How about this for a wedding gift? STUNNED.

DEAR STUNNED: Well... this is somewhat on the "unusual" side, but still from a practical viewpoint it's not too much different from a check or merchandise order... and certainly the items these stamps will redeem can be very useful gifts for newlyweds.

DEAR SALLY: My husband is making a nervous wreck out of me... whenever we're out in the car together. Normally, he's the nicest, kindest, most courteous, most personable man you'd ever want to meet -- but when he sits behind the wheel of our car, all his good qualities seem to fly out the window. He rages over every seeming error on the part of other drivers, swears at them fumes and frets, and even embarrasses me sometimes by cranking down his window and shouting imprecations at other drivers. Is there anything at all I can do about this? WITS END.

DEAR WITS END: Sit down with your husband and talk this out with him, and if he's as nice, kind, courteous, and personable as you say in other things, he'll listen to what you have to say about this bad habit of his and how the only thing he's accomplishing with his fits of temperment is to wreck your nerves. Tell him that, unless he does something about it, you'll be compelled to stop riding with him... anywhere.

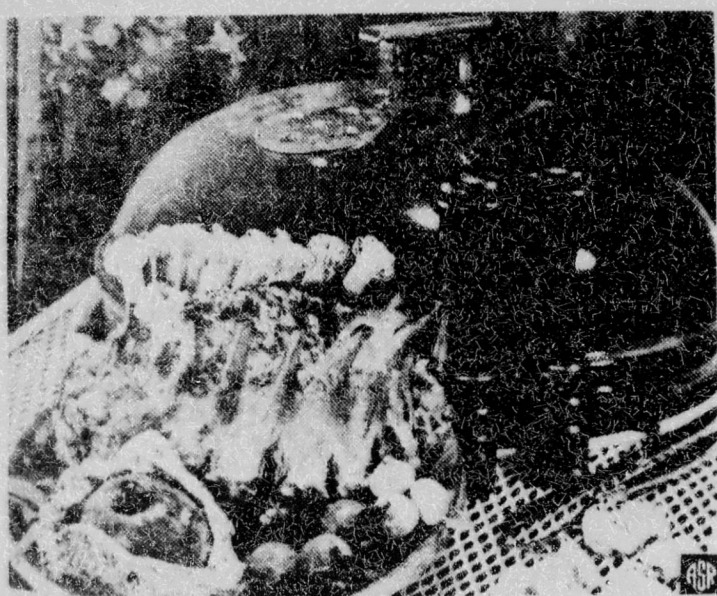

DEAR SALLY: I'm a widow of 44, considered more than passably attractive, and have two children, ages 10 and 12. Do you think it's all right for me to invite male guests to my home for dinner and now and then, and possibly for an evening or TV or listening to my stereo -- or would this be risking too much talk among the neighbors? G. G.

DEAR G. G.: I say go ahead. A woman of 44 is her own chaperone usually these days, and the presence of two children is further safe-guard to her reputation. So long as you are a woman of good principles and so long as you invite men with the same kind of principles, that's all that matters. And so far as the possibility of any talk by certain neighbors, this could come only from very small minds.

Pork Crown Roast For Easter Guests

Break away from the Easter tradition of baked ham. Excite your holiday guests with a pork crown roast prepared in a covered barbecue kettle. This bright idea way of roasting imparts to the meat and its special stuffing the savory flavor of smoke oven cooking and provides a gaffa opening to the forthcoming barbecue season.

Select an eight to 10-pound roast for the best table appearance and cook over indirect medium heat. A Weber covered barbecue kettle is ideal for this. Allow about 19 minutes per pound roasting time—approximately three to three and a half hours roasting time, depending upon the size of the crown roast you choose.

Stuff the cavity of the roast with the tasty stuffing provided below. When putting it on the grill, place a small sheet of heavy duty aluminum foil under the center to retain the stuffing. Also, cover the exposed stuffing with foil. Pierce both sheets to allow the aroma of covered kettle cooking to permeate the stuffing. Use basting sauce during the last half hour of roasting. At that time remove the upper foil to brown the stuffing.

As a further suggestion, foil-wrap apples, which have been washed, cored and filled with brown sugar, ½ teaspoon of cinnamon and a pat of butter, and bake alongside the roast for the last hour.

Stuffing for Pork Crown Roast

- ½ cup butter
- 1 large 8 oz. can button mushrooms
- 1 small onion, chopped
- ½ cup dry minced parsley
- ½ teaspoon sage
- ½ cup celery, chopped
- 1 13-oz. can pineapple tidbits, drained (reserve liquid)
- 2½ cups bread cubes

Snut mushrooms in melted butter for 5 minutes. Add to remaining ingredients and mix well. Stuff tightly into cavity of roast, allowing stuffing to mound at the top.

Basting Sauce

Boil reserved pineapple juice down to ¼ cup. Add ½ cup honey and two tablespoons of soy sauce, mix, and bring to boil. Baste roast every 10 minutes during last half hour of roasting.
