EDUCATION ROUNDUP

BY NEGRO PRESS INTERNATIONAL
 SEGREGATION LOUISIANA COLLEGES ON WAY OUT
 NEW ORLEANS - (NPD) - What seems to be the death of segregated colleges and universities in Louisiana appeared last week when the presidents' council, Louisiana State Board of Education, ordered desegregation plans to be drafted for all 10 state institutions of higher learning.

The council has scheduled a meeting to determine what the schools must do in the light of court orders to desegregate their respective student bodies and faculties.

with the senior choir of the New Bethel United Church of Christ.

The Sunday School Singing Union was held at First Baptist with the supt., Mr. W. W. Akins, in charge.

The Missionary Department of Douglas Chapel sponsored a service last Sunday evening. The guest was Rev. Sister Edith Pierce of Fuquay-Varina. She was accompanied by the Fuquay Gospel Singers and the Joyettes. Her topic, Work, was chosen from the text of St. Mark, 13:34.

Our citizen of the week is Mrs. Lucy Cameron who was born in Chatham County in 1860. She has two daughters; thirteen grandchildren; forty - three great grandchildren, and give great, great grandchildren. Mrs. Cameron does her own house work.

Celebrating birthdays this month are Mrs. Mozelle Adams, and Mrs. Flossie Booker.

Let us remember our sick and shut-ins with visits, cards, and in our prayers. Hospitalized are Mr. Jesse Brewington, Mrs. Grizzle Ray, Mr. Joseph Ingram and Mrs. Annie Collier.

A THOUGHT
 "United we'll stand; divided we'll fall."

Four sections of the state will be most concerned-New Orleans, Ruston, Baton Rouge and Shreveport. These are where jim crow colleges and universities exist as a means of keeping Blacks out of white institutions.

If indications are correct, this could mean the death of the Black institutions and merger with white schools. The mergers would be seen as occurring between Southern university, Baton Rouge and Louisiana State university; Southern university, New Orleans, and LSUNO; Southern university, Shreveport, and LSU; and Grambling college and the state school in Ruston.

The schools have until May 20 to submit plans. If they fail to come up with a suitable plan by then, the Health, Education and Welfare department will give them a plan. This may mean a loss of millions of dollars in federal funds, if the state cannot provide a plan acceptable to the federal government.

The Black institutions are not in the least comparable with those which were and mostly still are white schools, both in facilities and services.
