Nibble Time

American hostesses have learned their three "party-pies" well—they can always be counted upon to serve up bowls of peanuts, pretzels and potato chips, with a good assortment of dips. The reason so many people serve them is that so many nibblers love them. The potato chip, for instance, isn't called the Great American Snack for nothing!

However pleasant it is to merely offer "as is" yummies, it's even more fun to add a dash of creativity in the nibbles department. The rule of thumb for making hors d'oeuvres is: Make as many as you think are necessary—and then double the amount! If they're especially appetizing, guests always eat more than anticipated, and they'll disappear from the plate before you can say "Seconds, anyone?"

An easy and interesting appetizer is French Fried Shrimp. The shrimps come all frozen and packaged from the frozen food-cases; all you do is coat them with egg-and-flour batter, roll them in finely crushed Wise potato chips and fry in deep hot fat until golden brown. An even simpler nibble is Snappy Ham and Egg Balls where a tasty mixture of ground cheddar cheese, ham, hard-cooked eggs and mustard is made into little balls and rolled in potato chips, and then served up as is—although, of course, they can also be fried if desired.

Chip and Cheese Wafers are an unusual baked nibble. A blend of sharp cheese, butter, mustard, flour and crushed Wise potato chips, this mixture has a dough-like consistency that bakes up into delicious little wafers when placed on a cookie sheet for about 10 minutes in a 375 degree oven. All these recipe ideas use potato chips in one way or another—proving again how versatile this crispy delight can be. Everyone can still serve up chips as usual, but the lady who wants to make nibble time even more enjoyable can gather added credit by turning her chips in—to something else.

Only 2.8 per cent of the more than $7 billion appropriated for veterans in FY '68 went for administrative expenses, the Veterans Administration reports.

Music Notes & Half Notes

BY MRS. E. M. M. KELLY

Again this week, we are happy to write about more Easter music. This time, orchids to the senior choir and Mr. Laddie Bell, director, the Rev. Dr. C. W. Ward, pastor, First Baptist Church, for their presentation of "The Crucifixion" by Stalner, on Sunday evening.

Soloists were Messrs Andrew Bates, Sr., Leotha Debnam, Jr., Delma Hall, Mrs. Kelly and Raymond Hinton, guest, tenors, Messrs Laddie Bell, Marrow, and Franklin Rand, basses. Your writer was organist-accompanist. The performance was sacred, interesting, worshipful and effective.

James Burt began his music career as a student at Ligon High School, under the direction of your writer. At Ligon, he was a member of the choir, a tenor soloist, student director, a member of the Opera Ensemble, and a life member of the Modern Music Masters Honor Society.

James was one of the soloists in "The Messiah," "A-mahl and the Night Visitors," and opera excerpts. Burt is presently a voice student at Saint Augustine's College with the following musical affiliations: Raleigh Oratorio Society, Saint Augustine's College Choir, Vocal Ensemble, Director of Folk Ensemble and Director of the Raleigh Choral Association. In 1967, James was soloist for the Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner, which is the State Democratic Party's fund raising dinner. In the summer of 1968, he sang with the Philadelphia Choral Society.

Bernard Davis began to perform at an early age. At Ligon he developed from boy soprano to baritone. He sang "A-mahl in "A-mahl and the Night Visitors" by Menotti for several years. He was presented on the senior recitalist program in 1964, although he was not a senior. Bernard was state soloist in the High School Music Festival, 1968. Davis is currently a vocal student at the N. C. School of the Arts. He is a student of Miss Geraldine Cate; guest singer with the Pullen Memorial Church Chancel Choir, directed by Miss Cate. Bernard is busy preparing for auditions for next year's classification at the School of the Arts. He is also working on a recording of popular songs written by his singing partner, David Wood, who plays the character, Sir Walter Raleigh, in The Lost Colony. He plans to go to Italy next summer to study.
