

WELCOME POOR PEOPLE'S MARCHERS

The time of decision in Raleigh and the country at large is much overdue in human relations among class and mass and black and white. There is little or no time left for bickering, hating, prejudice, discrimination and injustice for these diseases the world over have crippled man's quest for security, brotherhood, peace and love. While Raleigh, like any other city, is vulnerable to the above-named evils, there are many who are Christian and peaceable as well as just to their fellowman. That these may also suffer the evils of today's challenges by the militants and the unconventional multitudes who daily play upon the conscience of the Congress, legislatures, churches, schools and universities, as well as the entrenched "establishments" throughout America, is only too well known. This weekend, Raleigh being responsible for its sister cities as the (See WELCOME, P. 2)

Campuses Proposed In Plan

President James E. Cheek of Shaw University revealed Monday plans of the Trustee Board to launch a nationwide Development Program in November of this year to raise $222 million during the decade 1970-79 for Shaw's total redevelopment. The ten years development program, to be called "The Seventy Decade Program," was approved by the trustees during their Annual Meeting on the Raleigh campus on April 14. Shaw's development program, which has been in the planning stages for the past four years, will seek funds totaling this amount for three specific operations: (1) the continued development of the campus located in downtown Raleigh which will be the center of programs in urban sciences and professional teacher education; (2) the creation of a second campus in the Raleigh area to provide facilities for the University's programs in General Studies, Communications, and the Humanities and Arts; and (3) the creation of Metropolitan Colleges in six metropolitan areas. Cheek stated that during the past four years, the Shaw trustees, administration and faculty have been engaged in comprehensive studies relating to the educational needs of the nation to which Shaw should (See SHAW ADOPTS, P. 2)

Fetchit's Son's Acts 'Explained'

PHILADELPHIA—What drove Donald Lambright, 31-year-old son of comedian Stepin Fetchit, to kill his wife, Annette, himself, and two other motorists on the Pennsylvania turnpike? According to Lambright's uncle, Howard E. Johnson, a psychiatrist had told the young man that he was a potential suicide and needed psychiatric help. Another explanation was that racial oppression had gotten Lambright down. However, Lambright's father, the comedian, was at a loss to explain the turnpike slayings. "He did all that?" Fetchit asked, "I can't understand it. He was always a good boy. I've never heard of him doing a vicious or radical thing like that."

Another view of Lambright was offered by the family who lives in the same West Philadelphia apartment where Lambright lived two years ago. The family remembers him as a young man who was in love with the color black.

Mrs. Barbara Bruno said that when she moved into the apartment, she found everything painted black - the walls, ceilings, window sills, even the bathroom. Lambright's sports car was also black. According to Mrs. Bruno, Lambright appeared to be perfectly normal, aside from the fact that he painted his entire apartment black.

"He seemed to be very intelligent, and liked people very much. He was a real gentleman," she said. Still another view of the slayings was presented by Dr. Warren E. Smith, a psychiatrist and former president, Lincoln Alumni Association, (Lambright had attended Lincoln University.)

More attention should be given to the fact that all the people Lambright shot were white, Dr. Smith said.

"He was confused, he was in a state of despair," the psychiatrist added. "Any blackman could be in the same situation. I could very well have been out there on the turnpike myself if I wasn't on an even keel."

A 24-year-old Raleigh woman with a previous record of twenty-one citations to either Raleigh City Court or a higher one, added another offense to her long record here Sunday when she tossed her two-year-old son into the street. Sam Ingram, who lives at 107 Kirkman Lane (off E. Hargett Street, between S. Haywood and Camden), told Officer Ralph Clayborne at 9:47 p.m. Sunday, that during an argument with Miss Janet Louise Fowler, 903 E. Hargett Street, she got angry and threw her son, Mitchell Angelose Fowler, on the street, causing cuts and bruises on the child's forehead. A warrant, charging assault on a minor, was signed against the woman and she was arrested. The child was treated at Wake Memorial Hospital, then released into the custody of George Gregory, 310 Idlewild Avenue. The child was tossed to the ground on Kirkman Street, from its mother's arm.

A check with the City-County Identification Bureau revealed that Miss Fowler's first "brush" with the law occurred on February 1, 1960, when she was charged with false pretense. This charge was followed, at fairly regular intervals by the following raps: (See THROWS BABY, P. 2)

St. Aug. Students Facing Theft Raps

On Monday night, three students of St. Augustine's College here were arrested by Raleigh police in connection with the burglary of a hardware store in Goldsboro on March 2. Prentiss A. Lassiter, 19, of Severn, N. C., Herbert A. Laddson, 21, of Mt. Pleasant, and Herman Smith, 20, of Goldsboro, were arrested and charged with breaking, entering and larceny and are being held in the Wayne County Jail, Goldsboro under $1,000 bonds for hearings scheduled Wednesday in Wayne District Court. The Smith Hardware Store was ripped of 61 rifles and shotguns and an undetermined amount of ammunition. In connection with the theft, (See SAINT AUG., P. 2)

Jim Crow Report Is Endorsed

The North Carolina Teachers Association has unanimously endorsed the following resolution presented by its Division of Administrators and Supervisors in session at the Raleigh Memorial Auditorium. "We the members of the Division of Administrators and Supervisors of the North Carolina Teachers Association deplore the actions being taken by many boards of education, wherein most cases involving the desegregation of schools, Negro administrators and Supervisors are being dismissed, demoted, and/or "promoted" without recognition of preparation, ability, or term of service. We know that there are many Negroes who are better qualified for administrative positions, such as superintendents, assistant superintendents, supervisors, and principals than many of their white counterparts being arbitrarily placed above them. "It appears to be a continuation of "the system" to which Negroes have been subjected for the past two hundred years. In our opinion the present plan of replacing Negroes with whites is completely undemocratic, unpatriotic and unacceptable. It is therefore our intention to actively resist these forces. We feel compelled to (See BIAS REPORT, P. 2)

TEACHER SIT-IN - New Orleans: Police Captain Clarence Giarrusso, holding his hat, scratches his head as he looks over singing members of the American Federation of Teachers holding a sit-in in the School Board building April 14, as a part of their strike to obtain collective bargaining. Two policewomen and two detectives stand alongside Giarrusso, who a few minutes later arrested about 14 of 50 AFT members he asked to leave. Those 14 did not resist arrest. (UPI)

Maid Action Eases Turmoil At NCSU

Dr. John T. Caldwell, chancellor of North Carolina State University here announced Tuesday, about noon that Negro maids will get their requests and will not have to work in men's dormitories on the campus anymore. The territorial service in the facilities was discontinued immediately. This was one of the key demands of the university's non-academic protesting black workers, sixteen of whom were arrested Monday after refusing to leave Caldwell's office, where they had gone for the purpose of protesting the dismissal of four maids who refused to work in the men's dorms. The chancellor said that the complaints by maids of disrespect and abuse at the hands of the white students speeded his decision, although the switch to letting the students clean their own rooms has been under consideration for some time and would have been made in two or three months anyway. Black students at State, after meeting with the chancellor Tuesday, declared a moratorium on all demonstrations by both the workers and students until an investigation into other key demands has been completed by Dr. Caldwell. SAYS WIFE STABBED HIM - William Lawrence Wiggins, 25, 201 Cooke Street, told Officer Norman Artis at 12:40 a.m. Thursday, that he and his wife, Mrs. Hazel Carol Wiggins, 20, had a "fuss" and she "stabbed me with something. Neither party would sign a warrant, but Mr. Wiggins said they were "going to talk with the people at the Domestic Relations Court about our marriage."

The altercation was reportedly a result of Wiggins having a misunderstanding with his step-father. He was admitted to Wake Memorial Hospital with a puncture wound in the lower part of the chest. The incident occurred in the street at the corner of E. Jones and Cooke. (See CRIME BEAT, P. 3)
