However, the Rev. J. B. Roseborough said, "When we appointed Bowser acting chairman, we said that we were going to give him a chance to prove or disprove himself. One month and fifteen days is hardly enough time for him to do this. We are not doing what we said."

Supporting a motion that Mr. Bowser be appointed permanent director were eleven of the sixteen Board members. They also voted that said Board advertise for a deputy director of the program.

The Board also took the following steps:

Approved a proposal for an emergency food and medical program. The program, evaluated at $25,000 will provide on the spot help for needy cases.

Acted to assign two CCAP workers to an office in Evans Hill for assistance there.

Bowser reported that CCAP would carry out social services for the Redevelopment Commission. He also said that the Head Start program would begin on June 9 and that $102,000 would be received, instead of $77,000 which was allocated last year.

WOMAN SHOOT

5, in Wake District Court.

Another check at the jail early Wednesday, revealed that Mrs. Perry is still in jail, not having raised the money for the $1,000 bond.

Born on October 1, 1940, Mrs. Perry's police record started on July 25, 1964, when she was charged with public drunkenness. She was given a thirty-day suspended sentence on condition that she pay the costs of court. On December 18, 1968, Mrs. Perry was served with an instant subpoena (when an officer can pick up a witness and place him or her under a bond.) Her record remained "clean" until the Saturday night incident.

A Mrs. Boyette, one of the nurses in charge at the hospital, refused to give a CAROLINIAN newsman any other information except to confirm that Perry was shot in the face and arm and to render his condition time when his 'bomb' could be most effective (just before election), the former Raleighite reached way back in his 'bag full of campaign tricks' to come up with this surprise attack. He declared that his background of more than twenty years experience as a newspaper writer and youth worker, among other things, makes him qualified to serve as president of his alma mater's national alumni association, "especially during these turbulent times on all alumni campuses."

ter. This will not end by me."

Evans, who was taken to the Ohio penitentiary at Columbus, is to be executed Sept. 22. His attorneys plan to seek a retrial.

Found guilty by an all-white jury of seven women and five men, he was one of five Black nationalists charged with murder after a disorder on July 23, 1968 in Greenville, a Black area on the city's far east side.

The state accused Evans of leading a band of armed Black militants in an attack on police.

CANDIDATES

Opposing Holden for the coveted position is Robert Bridges, former president of the Raleigh St. Augustine's Alumni Chapter, whom Holden brands "a longer-who can count on one hand, all the things, if any, that he has done for St. Augustine's." Election will take place on the campus of St. Augustine's on Saturday, May 24th.

Drawing both applause and laughter from his strictly partisan audience, composed largely of St. Augustine's graduates since 1960, the New York political public relations man said he has the backing of the following alumni chapters: New York, Tide Water (Norfolk, Hampton, Portsmouth and Virginia Beach), Washington, Philadelphia, North Jersey, Rochester, (N. Y.), and said Holden, the Raleigh, Durham and other North Carolina Chapters are "overwhelmingly in favor of my candidacy." His name was entered in the race by the husband and wife team, John and Mrs. Ellen Perry, of the Tide Water chapter.

"Playing 'possum' until the day after tomorrow," said the husband and wife team, John and Mrs. Ellen Perry, of the Tide Water chapter.

from the churches for their people on the contention that both groups have long been exploited by the Whites through slavery and financial manipulations; and that the United Presbyterians (other denominations as well) have vast holdings of property, stocks and bonds outside the sanctuary of the church which bring in huge business profits, much of which, Forman says, are tax-exempt.

Risco reminded that "God ordered the Children of Israel to ask silver and gold of their masters and to take it with them upon their leaving the captivity of Egypt."

Granadas said, "Real and free liberation cannot be achieved" through leadership other than that of one's own people, as he pleaded for financial and the right to self-determination for his Mexican-Americans. He added: "Revolution does not have to be violent, but those who hold economic power are slow to respond to change through evolution and peaceful change." "This," he said, "invites a violent revolution."

ed over the serious continuing labor relations problem in Charleston, South Carolina. We have decided to speak out because of the increasing danger tion." Following soothing words by Dr. Edler G. Hawkins, the only Negro who has been a moderator of UPUSA, and Rev. J. Met Rollins, newly elected Moderator Dr. George E. Sweazey said: "We don't have any choice between personal gospel and social gospel; we can't ever have enough of either." Retiring moderator Dr. John Coventry Smith stated his General Council Committee would proceed immediately to analyze the list of demands presented by Forman and Risco and give as speedy answer as possible.

The Rev. James H. Costen, Church of the Master, Atlanta, Ga., (former pastor at Rocky Mount, N. C.) assisted with the communion services and delivered the principal meditation.

Dr. R. Matthew Lynn, Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, was among the fraternal delegates who were given warm welcomes. He brought a message asking for a committee of twelve (12) from each of the two communions to meet jointly to study the hoped-for reunion of the major bodies of Presbyterianism. Dr. Lynn expressed the wish of his church that both denominations would arrange to hold Assemblies in the same city at the same time during the early 1970s.

Cape Fear Presbytery lay commissioner J. B. Harren and Mrs. Harren of Rocky Mount, N. C., motored the 1,600 miles down here. The Rev. Eugene M. James of Kinston, N. C., its ministerial commissioner from Cape Fear Presbytery.

that the heightening tensions in that community will lead to a confrontation which could have grave implications for the rest of the nation.
The Charleston strike is a test of the principle of non-violence at a time when many in American are losing faith in that principle as a strategy for social change. If non-violence fails in Charleston, it will be taken as a sign by many people all over the United States that non-violence is ineffective and useless. The consequences could be tragic. Because the importance of the dispute so clearly transcends the boundaries of Charleston, and even South Carolina, we believe the national interest demands efforts at the federal level to help resolve the impasse.
We are confident that you will use all the prestige of your office to bring the dispute to a satisfactory resolution. Last year, during the sanitation strike in Memphis, President Johnson dispatched Under Secretary of Labor James Reynolds to assist. Mr. Reynolds' efforts played an important role in bringing the parties to an agreement.

While Justice Department observers are already in Charleston, we urge you to send a Federal official who can take an active role in mediating this dispute.
