CROSBY'S CORNER

Level 5 cub reporters rounded up the following items for this week; we are planning a classic edition for our final report. Our vacation commences on June 5.

The sixth-year pupils made two field trips last week. On Wednesday they, too, got a chance to see our lawmakers when they visited the State House.

The second trip took them 31 miles from our fair city where they visited the Moorehead Planetarium in Chapel Hill. It was the first visit for forty-five of the sixty-one pupils taken on the trip. A ride through the Research Triangle Park gave the students an idea of its location and what goes on there. Reporters, Donna Stallings and Carol Walker.

ORIENTATION DAY
Orientation day at Crosby-Garfield School began with greetings and welcome by Mrs. N. E. Lockhart, principal, on Wednesday, May 14, at 1:30 p. m.

The second year pupils entertained the guests with selections from the rhythm band. Nurse G. I. Johnson gave a talk on "Health Needs." Forty - one pre-schoolers came. The parents filled out applications concerning the Headstart program.

Mrs. Lockhart introduced the first year teachers, Mrs. Reynolds, Mrs. Spencer and Mrs. Williams. Then the children were assigned to different classrooms. The teachers discussed "Tips For Happy School Days." Pre-schoolers and parents were dismissed after being served ice cream at 2:45 p.m. Reporter, Lauren M. Jones.

Crosby was well-represented at the art exhibit in North Hills shopping center May 15-20. There were over one-hundred pieces of work from our school. Our selection includes stitchey, finger-painting, constructed drawings, landscapes, water colors and omega paintings, clay pottery, and even a real mache giraffe. Mrs. Moore, our art supervisor, brought out the best of our artistic abilities. Did you view the exhibit? If you didn't, you really missed a treat. Reporters, Antony Evans and Jacquelin Chavis.

GRANTED SCHOLARSHIP - Mrs. Jessie W. Moore, physical education instructor at Washington Elementary School, has been granted a scholarship to attend the EPDA Institute at Western Washington State College, Bellingham, Washington, from June 23 to August 8. Mrs. Moore has done an outstanding job developing and improving physical culture for the underprivileged children at Washington School.
