called in "if anyone comes to interrupt the services." He was one of the leading opponents to the "Black Manifesto" idea.

The idea of repatriation was conceived by James Forman, former official of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC).

Forman and others have been arrested in New York and other cities for disrupting church services, while demanding the "Black Manifesto" money.

Reaction to the advice given to the Southern Baptist Convention is awaited from Forman, his followers and other influential persons who have backed the repatriation suggestion.

The coroner also reported that Mrs. Lea had gotten a local taxicab driver to sign, certifying her character, in order to obtain the permit, and she is reported to have signed, enabling the driver to obtain same.

A motive for the shooting still has not been established, according to police officials.

More than $76.2 million in Federal funds had been allocated up to March 31 to have 71,693 WIN training opportunities available. A total of $105.4 million has been set aside for the period from last September to June 20, 1969.

An additional $12 million has been earmarked for use by Department of Health, Education, and Welfare for day-care facilities for children whose mothers are participating in the program. Participants receive the broad spectrum of services available through the Labor Department's comprehensive manpower program, including personal and vocational counseling, orientation, work experience, skill training on the job or in the classroom, remedial or basic education job placement, and follow-up services.

The projects are administered such Labor Department programs as Concentrated Employment Program (CEP), Manpower Development and Training ACT (MDTA) activities including on-the-job and classroom training, Job Opportunities in the Business Sector (JOBS) New Careers, Operation Mainstream, Neighborhood Youth Corps, and the counseling, testing, and job placement activities of the U. S. Training and Employment Service.

and released at Wake Memorial Hospital for the wound, then he was arrested on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon and placed in the Wake County Jail.

A check with the City-County Identification Bureau showed that this was not Howard's first "brush" with "the law."

On May 19, 1966, he was charged with assault with a deadly weapon, and paid the costs of Domestic Relations Court on September 10, 1966.

A subpoena in the form of a Superior Court copias was issued Howard on October 3, 1960. On September 4, 1961, an assault with a deadly weapon charge against him was not pressed.

March 17, 1962 again found Mr. Howard in trouble, when he was charged with AWDW. Prayer for judgment was continued in this case, however. A charge of driving after his driver's license had been revoked was placed against him on April 12, 1962, and he was tried in Wake Superior Court on August 15, 1963 for speeding 90 miles an hour in a 60 mile zone, Found guilty, he received a 60 day suspended sentence and was ordered to pay a fine of $50 and court costs.

Howard appeared on the police blotter on April 19, 1965, charged with illegal possession of non-taxpaid whiskey. His semi-final trip to jail was on June 1, 1965, on a forcible trespass rap.

2. If the trend of dismissal is going to be one in which they get black educators to join the white association (NCTA), then eliminate them by firing them knowing no court action is going to be granted them, then I am afraid the black students are going to have all white teachers where a "brain washing" session will put the Negro to a period closely akin to slavery. This was evidenced recently when a white teacher in Winston-Salem asked a Negro child to write an essay on "The Positive Aspects of Slavery."

class and the class was astounded and angered. The class wrote a letter to the superintendent stating their support of the teacher and saying, "she was the best teacher they had ever had, and that they wanted her back next year." Most of the students were white.

When the teacher asked the white principal about his evaluation of her performance and his recommendation of her, he replied, "that she had done outstanding work and he had recommended her re-employment and would stand by it." The report further indicates, that the white principal has since been fired.

In Franklin County, thirteen black teachers and one (1) black principal have been fired. The letter terminating their contract for the 1969-'70 school year simply read, "Your employment with the Franklin County School System is being terminated, effective immediately under Public School Law GS 115-124." All thirteen black teachers were serving under white principals.

"The Plight of Theological Education in the Southeast", the theme, was tied in with the lack of interest on the part of Negro youths and the inability of adult Christians to arouse them to study for and pursue the ministry, occupied the prime time of the meeting, during which "many told," in the words of the Rev. J. E. McKenzie, Reid's Chapel pastor at Mooresville, "what's wrong with the church, but none of them tell us how to correct it."

Elder Julius A. Filmore, retiring president of the Catawba Synod Council, Greensboro, presided over the meeting. Peter H. Pettie, Martinsville, Va., was elevated from vice president to president as a result of the election which also chose George Young of Lumberton, vice proxy; Israel Garrison, Charlotte, remained as treasurer; Albert B. Spencer, secretary; and former president Filmore was chosen executive secretary.

Recently honored with a doctorate from J. C. Smith University, the Rev. James Hutton Costen, Church of Master, Atlanta, Ga., participated on the discussion panel with Dr. Frank T. Wilson, Dr. Elo L. Henderson, the Revs. Robert L. Shirley and Herman L. Counts, during which Dr. Henderson (Catawba Synod Exec) strongly advocated that the United Presbyterians "must take a new look" at themselves and make a concerted effort to enlist the services of even militant youths in the work of the church; give them leadership roles even on Sessions and Deacon boards. Little was said, however, about the spirituality of youths assuming such positions.
