Launches Widespread Search For Three Black Americans

LINCOLN, Nebraska - A widespread talent search has been launched by University of Nebraska Television for three black Americans to serve on a special program production unit.

A production apprentice and two research/production assistants are being sought to help produce a series of seven programs entitled "The Black Frontier." The series, to be filmed in color on location throughout the Midwest, will focus on the role of the black Americans in founding and settling the Great Plains.

Nebraska Educational Television Network program manager Bill Oxley said the appointments are for a one year period and that all three positions are available immediately.

He noted that a degree in communication, history or a related area is desired for the positions. He emphasized however, that while a background in broadcasting would be helpful, it is not absolutely necessary.

Production of "The Black Frontier" is being funded by a $200,000 grant from the Ford Foundation. Larry Long has been named director of the project, subject to approval by the University of Nebraska Board of Regents.

29 North Carolinians Receive Degrees At Howard University

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(June 6, 1969)—U. S. Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm (D-NY) said here last week that forms of education must be found which will "help black people cope with the white without being either alienated from it or subservient to it." The occasion was the 101st Commencement at Howard University.

Mrs. Chisholm chided black teachers and scholars for living in an ivory tower and asserted that a black university had no place for mere "academicians."

"It needs scholars but they must be men of action, able to apply their knowledge to the world around them in which their brothers and sisters suffer, starve and die."

The Congresswoman from Brooklyn, N. Y., said that earlier previous answers to Howard's relevance are not right for these times. Recent answers of Howard students have made known that they think the University's role must be, she said.

"There are unique, irreplaceable roles that a black university can play - and this must become truly a black university if it is to play them," Rep. Chisholm said.

Dr. Stanton L. Wormley, academic vice president, presided and conferred degrees on the graduates.
