

DEAR SALLY

BY SALLY SHAW

DEAR SALLY: My fiancée are giving me a bad time! I am a girl of 20, and engaged to a fine young man of 24 whose parents live in a city almost a thousand miles away. He wants me to drive with him on a trip to meet and visit his parents, but since this trip will probably include at least two nights on the road, my parents are balking. This seems to me unreasonably prudish and mid-Victorian on their part. They should know we are both persons of high principles and, after all, we are engaged to be married. Maybe if you will write something in my behalf, it will help matters, TIZ.

DEAR TIZ: Sorry . . . I'm with your parents on this. Engaged you may be, but married you are not. A trip of this length, involving overnight stops is not for unmarried couples. If you really want to meet your fiancée's parents, you can fly there and back.

DEAR SALLY: My fiancée claims I don't shave often enough, that my dark, heavy beard detracts from my appearance, and that furthermore it grates her tender skin when I kiss her and leaves it raw and sensitive. I'll admit that my customary morning shave lasts only until about three or four in the afternoon, but don't you think it's asking too much for any man to shave twice a day? SHADOW.

DEAR SHADOW: Depends on how considerate the man is, how much he thinks of the girl who has registered the complaints, how much concerned he is over the effect of his kisses, how much he thinks of his own personal appearance. Really now, one extra session per day with your razor isn't all that much trouble, is it?

DEAR SALLY: A certain cute boy I was dating regularly has stopped calling me just because a certain big-mouthed, evil-minded girl told him some horrible lies about me. Two of my girl friends have told me that "big-mouth" did the same thing to them. So, is there anything I can do to prove to this boy how very wrong are the things this girl told him about me? FALSE ACCUSATION.

DEAR FALSE ACCUSATION: Personally, I wouldn't be so concerned about making things right with the kind of fellow who was so quick to believe a malicious tale about me, who showed so little faith, who didn't even give me the opportunity to deny it. I think you're lucky to be rid of him. But if you still want to set things right, confront him in the company of one or both of those girl friends, and prove to him how hasty he was in his judgment.

DEAR SALLY: There's a certain trouble-maker in our office who is fast driving the rest of us fellows nuts. He's a chronic griper . . . about his job, his salary, company policy, the boss . . . about everything. We all like our work, and his griping gripes us! His disposition is the one, big sour note in what would otherwise be a very harmonious and happy atmosphere. Is there anything we can do to help correct this situation? THE GANG.

DEAR GANG: Yes. A group of you should corner this trouble-maker at once and tell him bluntly that you're all fed up with his constant griping, and either he stop it at once or you'll take it up with the bosses.

The Veteran's Corner

Editor's Note: Below are authoritative answers by the Veterans Administration to some of the many current questions from former servicemen and their families. Further information on veterans benefits may be obtained at any VA office.

Q - May a veteran receive Social Security retirement credit for military service during World War II?

A - Generally, yes. A veteran may receive $160 wage credit for each month of military service during World War II duty if he was released from service under other than dishonorable conditions and had at least 30 days of active service. However, there are exceptions. The government will not give the veteran double credit. For example, if a veteran's World War II time is counted for military or civil service retirement he cannot also receive Social Security wage credit for the time. Your nearest Social Security office will be glad to answer any questions you may have.

Q - How long does one have to serve in Viet-Nam to be eligible for the GI Bill to return to college, and how much would a married veteran with no children receive each month?

A - Actual service in Viet-Nam is not a requirement for benefits (including educational assistance) under the GI Bill. The law requires that the veteran must have at least 181 days active duty, any part of which occurred after Jan. 31, 1955. (Active duty for training purposes cannot be counted towards the 181 days). A veteran in full-time training (at least 14 semester hours) would receive training allowance of $155 monthly if he has one dependent.

No Single Target

NEW YORK - Attempts to reduce discrimination without trying to change attitudes are "probably doomed to half-measures, token compliance, and transient victories accompanied by deep resentments," declared the editors of a new book, "Prejudice U. S. A.," based on a three-day University of California Symposium. The view taken by Dr. Charles Y. Glock, sociologist and psychologist Ellen Segelman, co-editors of the book, is that "although attempts to improve race relations have been focused almost exclusively on eradicating discrimination, the most pressing domestic problem is to eliminate prejudice."

Delight youngsters and oldsters alike with tasty Luau Pudding. This delicious warm-weather dessert is made with ingredients you keep on hand. The pudding features velvety evaporated milk, the milk for all your cooking needs. Serve Luau Pudding . . . a real treat.

LUAU PUDDING
(Makes 6 servings)

- 1 3/4 cups (13 1/4-ounce can) crushed pineapple
- 1 package (3 1/4-ounces) vanilla pudding and pie filling mix
- Reserved pineapple syrup plus water to make 1 cup
- 1 1/2 cups undiluted Carnation Evaporated Milk
- 1/2 cup toasted coconut
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice

Drain pineapple; reserve syrup. Combine pudding mix and pineapple syrup-water mixture in medium saucepan. Gradually stir in 2/3 cup Carnation Evaporated Milk. Cook over low heat until mixture thickens and comes to a full boil, stirring constantly. Cool until mixture mounds from a spoon. Beat pudding until fluffy. Fold in pineapple, coconut and vanilla. Chill remaining 2/3 cup Carnation in a refrigerator tray until soft ice crystals form around edges of tray (10 to 15 minutes). Whip until stiff (about 1 minute). Add lemon juice. Whip until very stiff (about 1 minute longer). Fold whipped Carnation into pudding. Spoon into dessert dishes. Garnish with more toasted coconut and maraschino cherries if desired. Chill at least 1 hour before serving.
