Youth Council Activities

Prepared By Members of the Fayetteville Youth Council

Auditions for the parts in "Everyman Today" were held last Wednesday at Hay Street Methodist Church. There was a big turnout for the tryouts and we are now assured of a true success.

The play is a religious drama showing a modern version of the judgement day. Modern dancing and modern lighting will be part of the presentation.

The Props Committee for this play will be headed by Dottie Rankin. Sound effects will be handled by Tom Lewis and Mike Mitchell. The modern dancing will be taught by Suzanne Ishee. Marchia White will head the costuming committee. We will keep you all informed of latest developments in the play.

Mrs. Gilmore and the Executive Board are spending the week at Long Beach. They are revising the by-laws of our government.

A new committee has been formed by the FYC that will look into giving high school drop-outs a voice in Youth Council. They would be able to be on Youth Council and to vote for Youth Council members.

Project Call-In is still in effect. Anyone interested should call Recreation and Parks dept. at 484-5174. All of you adults that want lawns mowed or houses cleaned please call this number cause we have plenty of teenagers' names on file and ready to go to work.

Program Planning In Progress

FAYETTEVILLE - The Cumberland Community Action Program Staff began its planning process for the year, 1970, at the First Baptist Church on Moore Street, June 26. Neighborhood Council Presidents, Board Members, agency directors, and target area residents were invited to attend the first planning session to identify problems now existing in the Fayetteville area, which affect the lives of the poor people. Approximately two-hundred interested people were present. The total audience was divided into three smaller discussion groups who worked two hours on community problems.

The staff will now review the results of the meeting and determine the extent of the problems presented on a county-wide basis. In a future meeting with the target area residents, a list of alternatives for solving their problems will be presented and program priorities

'Education Fails To Serve All,' Dr. Dotson Tells A&T Audience

GREENSBORO - The fact that education refuses to service all of the groups of society is responsible for much of the confrontation and disruption on the American scene.

That was the message brought to Greensboro last Tuesday night by Dr. Dan W. Dotson, director of the Center for Human Relations and Community Studies at New York University.

"There has been a great mythology built around education," said Dr. Dotson in his talk at A&T State University. "Scholarship is used to support the idea that certain persons don't perform well because of either low IQ, low social class or cultural deprivation."

"The revolution we are having now," added Dotson, "is challenging some of these ideas, for what these cliches say about the human potential is very little."

Dotson called confrontation one of the "vehicles of change. We often find that it is necessary to work change through conflict," he said.

Dotson, who has become nationally known for his work in assisting local school boards to resolve problems of integration said that one cause of trauma is the fact that it is difficult to reform American education.

"You cannot expect a person who is powerless to grow without some trauma," he said. In indicting education, Dotson said, "The goals of scholarship and the goals of citizenship are no longer compatible. Our job in the past has been to create an elite, a special class."

Dotson said the turmoil is having somewhat of a positive affect. "The cleansing effect is coming in the schools and colleges, not only by the blacks, but by our brightest white students as well."

"If our institutions were not vulnerable," said Dotson, "groups like SDS could not stir up trouble in them."

In closing, Dotson called for a restructuring of the educational system.

"America is a racist society because the living arrangement is an immoral one. There must be a restructuring. We will then learn things about education that we never dreamed of before."
