

DEAR SALLY

BY SALLY SHAW

DEAR SALLY: I hope you can come up with a solution to the little problem I find myself entangled in. I'm a young man of 23, and a little over a year ago I was engaged to a certain girl, and we split up. Two months ago I became engaged to another girl. Today I ran into the first girl on the street and we dropped in at a snack shop for some coffee and conversation. I found out she is engaged again, too, to another guy. But now she and I have discovered through this meeting that we're both still very much in love with each other, sorry about the misunderstanding that broke us up, and very much desirous of resuming our former relationship. How do we go about straightening out this mess we're in, especially with the two persons we're now engaged to? ARIZONA.

DEAR ARIZONA: From all indication, neither of you is mature enough to appreciate the importance of an engagement promise and its vow of "eternal devotion." My suggestion is that you both break your present engagements immediately and REMAIN "unengaged" until you both grow up.

DEAR SALLY: I'm a girl of 19, and have been dating a very nice boy of 20. What is bothering me now is his recently formed habit of driving somewhere at the end of our dates to park and pet. I don't go for wholesale petting like this, but am afraid that if I were to refuse I would risk losing this boy. Please advise me. PENNY.

DEAR PENNY: If holding on to this fellow depends upon your willingness to park and pet, the relationship isn't worth anything at all. I assure you that, if this is a worthwhile boy and if he really cares for you, he will admire and respect you if you show him you have principles and mean to stick to them.

DEAR SALLY: If you are already expecting a house guest of your own for the very evening that another friend invites you to his or her home for a party, is it all right to take your own guest to the party with you? PROTOCOL.

DEAR PROTOCOL: Indeed not! And neither do you phone your host or hostess and ask permission to bring your friend with you. When the invitation is extended to you, you say, "I'm sorry, but I have already invited a friend to my home for that evening. Otherwise, I would love to come." Then it's up to the host or hostess to handle as he or she wishes. They may suggest that you bring your friend along -- but if they don't, that's all right, too.

DEAR SALLY: My fiancé and I are heartbroken because a friend has told us that, because of the "peculiar" difference in our blood types any child that we might have would not live. This is a shattering blow to us, and we don't know what to do. Will you please advise us? HEARTSICK.

DEAR HEARTSICK: Consult a doctor about this, and let him give you the facts instead of that "friend." I don't know just what your blood types are, but I do know that medical science today deals happily and successfully with all sorts of problems like yours.

The Veteran's Corner

EDITOR'S NOTE: Below are authoritative answers by the Veterans Administration to some of the many current questions from former servicemen and their families. Further information on veterans benefits may be obtained at any VA office.

Q-- I completed High school before entering service, but did not receive any college training. I would like to go to work for the Federal Government now that I am out of service. Is there any special program under which I can qualify for government employment?

A -- Yes. Under a program, begun a little more than a year ago, government agencies may hire Viet-Nam era veterans for jobs in the first five grades without requiring them to complete with others for the jobs -- providing the veterans has the necessary job qualifications and less than one year of training beyond high school. To secure such an appointment, the veterans must agree to take at least the equivalent of one full year of education or training. He can do this under the G. I. Bill, thus receiving both a VA educational assistance allowance as well as his government salary. For further information, veterans should contact the Veterans Administration regional office where their records are maintained, or the nearest Civil Service Commission office.

Q -- More than a year ago the Veterans Administration announced the establishment of United States Veterans Assistance Centers in 21 major cities throughout the country. Are these USVACs still operating? How do I find out if there is one in or near my community?

A -- Yes, these 21 USVACs, staffed by representatives of the VA, Civil Service Commission, Department of Labor, and other agencies, are still operating. In fact, after more than a year's experience, they are more effective than ever. However, it is not necessary for you to go to one of the USVACs in order to obtain one-stop service on all veteran benefit questions. VA regional offices have trained representatives ready and anxious to provide USVAC-type service. In particular, these offices are oriented toward helping returning Viet-Nam era veterans, including those who have not completed high school.

Safety Afloat Planned

"Safety Afloat," a small craft demonstration, will be presented at Gresham's Lake on Saturday August 23, at 3 p.m. This demonstration is a joint effort of the U. S. Power Squadron, U. S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, and the American Red Cross. Come and learn safe boating practices for canoes, sailboats, and motorboats! Boat inspections will be made by a representative of the Coast Guard Auxiliary immediately following the demonstration.

Ice Cream From The Avocado Bravo

Avocado ice cream? Don't be surprised. While the idea sounds new to us, Spaniards and Central Americans have known this secret for years. The avocado has such a delicate rich taste, it takes on the bolder flavors you add to it. Cool green avocado ice cream has a creamy smoothness and a hint of nutty flavor. Your friends will never guess that avocado is your secret ingredient.

AVOCADO ICE CREAM

- 4 California avocados, pureed
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatine
- 1/4 cup water
- 1/4 cup milk
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 lime juice
- 1/4 cup rum
- 3 cups heavy cream, whipped
- 1 1/2 cups chopped filberts, toasted

Soften gelatine in water 5 minutes. Scald milk; add softened gelatine, sugar, vanilla and salt, stirring until gelatine and sugar dissolve. Cool, then chill in bowl.

Beat chilled mixture until smooth; beat in avocado puree, lime juice and rum. Fold in whipped cream and filberts. Freeze in refrigerator covered with aluminum foil. Let mellow 30 minutes. Makes about 2 quarts.

PRICES IN THIS AD EFFECTIVE THRU SATURDAY, AUGUST 23rd.
