Bladen Co. Students Are Upset

ELIZABETHTOWN - Lester Powell, student leader at the Bladen Central High School Elizabethtown, and the majority of black senior high school students in that school, started organizing the whole student body preparatory to boycotting the school and closing it this week. They said the school had been stripped of the qualified Negro teachers for certain grades and they were to white schools; that the teachers left had to teach classes out of their field.

Some teachers were allegedly so embarrassed that they volunteered to tell the students that they didn't know any more about the subject matter than the students and they would be learning together such as physical education major teaching English, biology major teaching French, artists teaching algebra or similar out-of-field teaching. Several subjects required to graduate were scheduled at the same hour, making it impossible to attend classes and consequently graduation was impossible unless a student remained in high school throughout normal college years.

The principal would give them no consideration. They said he told them that their parents would receive the same reception. The students started boycotting the school on Friday and called upon the local NAACP branch to help them get relief. Ralph Brown, branch president, and other branch leaders including Rev. Cheek and Rev. Martin called upon Messrs. Kel-

Must Keep 'Affirmative Plan'

Contractors Warned

Contracts Director Is Heard

WASHINGTON - Government contractors and subcontractors will be ineligible for Federal contracts if they do not keep on file written affirmative action plans for achieving equal employment, the new director of the Labor Department's Office of Federal Contract Compliance (OFCC) has announced.

OFCC's new director, John L. Wilks, said his office will strictly enforce the July 1, 1968, regulation that requires Federal contractors and subcontractors with 50 or more employees and holding contracts of at least $50,000 to keep these plans on file in their establishments.

He said that OFCC surveys show that many contractors or subcontractors do not have affirmative action programs on file when they are visited by compliance investigators.

Government contractors and subcontractors, the OFCC Director stated, must have on file written programs which analyze all major job classifications at their facilities and explain why minorities are under-utilized in any given job class in terms of their availability.

The programs on file, Mr. Wilks added, must make commitments to numerical goals and targets, with timetables for their achievement, correct any deficiencies turned up by company officials, and list data supporting both the analyses and revised programs. The support data should include job progression line charts, seniority rosters, applicant rejection and hire ratios indicating minority status.

Under Executive Order 11246 the OFCC is responsible for administering the Federal Government's program of equal opportunity among contractors

Two Cited At State In City

Two Physical Plant employees at N. C. State University have been presented awards for outstanding service.

Mrs. Marion McCoy was named "Outstanding Custodian of the Year" and Robert Moore received the "Outstanding Foreman of the Year" award.

George F. Lynch, NCSU buildings superintendent, presented the awards.

He noted that Mrs. McCoy, custodian of the first floor of the Schaub Food Science Building, has only been employed at NCSU for 16 months.

"It is unusual for someone who has been here for such a short time to win such an award," said Lynch.

Mrs. McCoy had made an excellent impression on everyone.

Moore, mail crew foreman, has been employed at NCSU for 11 years. He supervises a crew which handles mail from every academic building on the campus and the crew makes about 90 stops a day, he said.

"He is one of the Physical Plant's most devoted employees," said Lynch.

The selections were made by a committee of Physical Plant employees which received nominations from anyone within the Plant.
