A. Barnes Clarifies Position

DURHAM-It was reliably reported here Monday that Alexander Barnes, president, Durham Branch, NAACP, and veteran civil rights fighter, was the victim of some vitriolic remarks by two alleged proponents of black power, Howard Fuller and Ben Ruffin.

The attack upon Barnes is said to have been caused by an article that appeared in THE CAROLINIAN, dated September 20 and carrying Barnes' byline. The article reported a meeting which was called by Ben Ruffin to try to make the black community aware of its condition.

Howard Fuller is said to have approached Barnes' car as he attempted to pull away from the curb, on East Pettigrew Street, about mid-day Monday and began berating him (See BLACK POWER, P. 2)

ADMITTED U. S. COMMUNIST'S COURSE ATTRACT, 1,900 STUDENTS-Los Angeles: Some 1,900 students at UCLA applauded the first lecture Monday by Anegla Davis, a U. S. Communist club member, then requested other members of the university's faculty to stop teaching until Miss Davis' course is given college credit. Some 100 students were turned back from the jammed-packed lecture hall as the Afro-coiffured professor talked on the philosophical elements in Black literature. The shapely lecturer is awaiting decision on the appeal she has before the California Board of Regents. She was fired last month by the Regents after she stated that she was a member of a Communist club operating in the country. Though the outcome of her appeal is pending, she still receive her $9,684 annual salary. (UPI)

WASHINGTON, D. C. - The Southern Conference Educational Fund (SCEF) has joined other organizations in warning against U. S. Senate Bill 12, fathered by Sen. James Eastland of Mississippi.

Racial Justice Body Supporting Strikers

Bill Land, national director for the Committee for Racial Justice, spent the previous night in a Beaufort jail after participating in a striking workers' march on the town's courthouse.

The 10-week-old strike stemmed from what striking workers called poor working conditions. Mrs. Oden charged that the Mill "called workers at unusual and unscheduled hours; provided little or no heat in buildings in which workers performed their tasks; engaged females workers in unduly heavy manual labor; and provided no avenues of advancement for Black workers."

Workers maintain that the strike is split along racial lines. Nearly 90% of the 170 Mill workers are Black. However, Mrs. Oden contended that out of the 135 workers who went on strike, "only one white worker walked out" with other strikers. There were also Black workers who remained on the job.

Land stated that sympathy for the strikers led to his participation in the Thursday night march. He and some two dozen other marchers were charged

Tini Kilgore, one of the march participants, noted that the law officers of Beaufort failed to respect their own laws. Said Miss Kilgore, "The city ordinance prohibited parades of groups larger than ten people. We were in groups of nine or less," "However," she added, "the (See STRIKERS, P. 2)

Nixon Names Goodloe To Minority Council

DURHAM-President Richard Nixon named North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Company president Joseph W. Goodloe to a 63-member Advisory Commission and set the initial meeting for October 13, at the White House. Headed by foundation head Sam E. Wiy of Dallas, Texas, the advisory Council will hold an all-day meeting to launch the Administration's most controversial but likely to succeed program.

J. W. GOODLOE

In a statement, President Nixon acknowledged "encouraging increased minority-group business activity is one of the priority aims of this administration. I have often made the point that to foster the economic status and the pride of members of minority groups we must seek to involve them more fully in our private enterprise system. Blacks, Mexican-Americans, Puerto Ricans, Indians and others must increasingly be encouraged to enter the field of business, both in the areas where they now live and in the larger commercial community -- not only as workers, but also as managers and owners."
