NAACP Wants Youth

Chapters End Meet In Durham

DURHAM - "Up, up and to arms" seemed to have motivated the more than 250 persons who attended the 26th N. C. State Conference of Branches, NAACP, held in Durham, October 9-11, to move into the 70s. From the time Rev. J. T. McMillan opened the Ministers and Church Work Committee on the 9th, until Rev. L. A. Miller delivered the benediction at the banquet on the night of the 11th, there was one accord that the organization must become more viable, more vocal and above all create an image that will attract young people.

The clarion call was sounded on Thursday night when Rev. Julius Caesar Hope, Brunswick, Ga., set up a formula for passage.

Rain Was Factor In Accident

Three persons received minor injuries and were taken to Wake Memorial Hospital after a three-car collision at South Bloodworth and E. Martin Streets last Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Black received cuts about the face and body while Mrs. Corbett suffered slight bruises. Miss Lertna Wilson, New Women's Dorm, Shaw University, Raleigh, was shaken up a bit. She was a passenger in the Black-driven automobile.

Patrolman J. L. Arrington noted in his accident report that it was "raining and the road was wet." Visibility was termed rather poor. Miss Black stated that she "did not see the stop sign."

A car parked on the corner was struck in the rear during the collision. The Corbett car (See THREE HURT, P. 2)

DURHAM-October 27th will mark the opening of Malcolm X Liberation University in Durham. The Episcopal Church has donated $45,000 for its operations. The university has been outlined to train Negro students in community unity.

Designer of the school, Howard Fuller, noted "The basic concept of the university is geared toward nation-building." He stated that the school would function to provide black professors in the areas of food science, tailoring, architecture, planning and organization, art, medicine, communication networks, physical development and linguistics.

Enrollment for the university is predicted near 35 to 40 students. Classes will be held in a two story renovated warehouse in the middle of the black community.

Fuller, head of the school, said that "we view Malcolm X Liberation University as an integral part of the black community. Therefore, we will be involved in any activity affecting the black community." In accord with this basic theory, the university has announced that students will participate in a two-year program. The first year will feature concentration on black ideology while the second year will concern itself with technical training. This type of program, explained Fuller, would "develop proficiency as well as provide for the needs of the community."

The school is operated under a $45,000 grant from the national Episcopal Church. A local Church spokesman stated, "One of the goals of our national church's Urban Crisis Program is to help the poor and disenfranchised gain social, political and economic power in order to have an effective force in decisions which affect their own lives." The Malcolm X Liberation University's program met with their objectives set forth in the Episcopal's Urban Crisis Program.

Students in attendance at the university will pay tuition fees of $300 for the year in addition to room and board charges. Financial aid will be provided for those students needing assistance in this area.

SCLC Backs Peace Vigils, Rev. Abernathy Declares

ATLANTA, Ga. - Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, President of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), Monday announced that he and the entire organization are supporting and participating in nationwide actions, beginning this week, to demand an immediate end to the war in Vietnam.

"The American people have waited in vain for the Nixon Administration to recognize the tragic mistakes of the past and extricate the United States from Vietnam," Abernathy said, "We must now rebuild the powerful peace coalition which my predecessor, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., and SCLC helped create in 1967. My position is that we must demand immediate withdrawal of all our troops in Vietnam. The only points to talk about in the Paris negotiations are safe passage for our troops and political amnesty or asylum for those South Vietnamese people who desire it."

The new peace offensive began this Wednesday, October 15, in college, high schools and communities across the nation. Students and citizens against Word reached The CAROLINIAN of Mrs. Mays' death early this week. It could not be ascertained whether she had been ill or was suddenly stricken.

Her husband is a world-renowned theologian and educator. Dr. Mays is to be remembered as the minister who preached the funeral of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., on the Morehouse campus. The two ministers had made a pact that the longest liver would deliver last rites for the survivor.

Mays holds honorary doctorate degrees from a large number of colleges and universities, including Shaw University, Raleigh, N. C., where he was awarded the honorary degree of doctor of Humane Letters (Ph.D.) on Friday, November 18, 1966.
