

Lack Of Open Society Most Dangerous Problem

White Jailer Freed; Partial Calm Restored

WINSTON-SALEM—Mayor M. C. Benton lifted a city-wide curfew late Tuesday after he had clamped down the lid on the "Twin City" Monday. Outbreaks of rock-throwing by some of the Negro population occurred after a white jailer accused of assaulting two Negro youths was cleared of the charges Monday afternoon.

The mayor and other city officials had placed an 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew on residents following the disturbances early Monday night. Several incidents of sniper fire and rock-throwing had been reported by police.

Riot gear-equipped police were called out to patrol the streets. There were no apparent arrests, but officials stated that all precautionary measures were taken.

Jailer Clinton G. Cline was tried on assault charges brought against him by Lee Kirby, 18, and his brother Vincent Kirby, 16. Cline said that he only attempted to restrain Vincent who interfered when his brother, Lee, was being booked. Lee was arrested, along with his brother, for discharging fireworks within the city limits.

Nearly 100 local and state policemen were called to patrol the area around the courthouse during Cline's trial. Rumors stated that the city's Black Panthers would take action if Cline were acquitted. The state troopers and local police were in readiness to crush any possible outbreaks of violence.

Police Chief, Justice M. Tucker, went on record as opposing the lifting of the curfew by the mayor. Reports said that the chief felt that many elements of dissent and displeasure had not yet acted and that another

Rocky Mount's IOCI's Now Seeking 20 Grand

BY J. B. HARREN
ROCKY MOUNT - The recently organized local unit of Opportunities Industrialization Center is getting set to start the first phases of the fund-raising effort to get $20,000 to get the program off the ground and organized for a January opening of the job-training center for the underprivileged who need more training to either get a job in business and industry or to advance to a better job.

Simultaneously with the appointment of the Rev. Gray Junior Stokes, Sr., as the director of the OIC school (which will have the volunteer support of more than a hundred teachers in this community, according to a pledge of service by the area classroom Teachers Association), the OIC board set up a campaign committee which will begin soliciting $5,000 from the Negro community, to be followed by the city-wide solicitation of $15,000 from all citizens and businesses wishing to help in the promotion of a better way of life for all citizens of Rocky Mount. (See ROCKY MOUNTS, P. 2)

AMEZ Church's Bishop Walls

Chides Black Church

Man, 22, Is Caught At Scene

A 22-year-old Raleigh man came out on the "losing end of the string" here last Monday morning as he stepped into the "waiting arms of the law" after leaving a house in the Oberlin section of the city where he had allegedly attempted burglary and rape.

Mrs. Aileen Jones Taylor, 42, 2215 Robert Street, told Officers N. S. Lockey, D. B. Scott and Sgt. C. G. Dietrich that George Edward Cantey, her neighbor, of 2213 Roberts Street, entered her home through a window which had

Dr. Gloster Won't Go To City College

ATLANTA, Ga. - Dr. Hugh M. Gloster, president of Morehouse College, has denied a rumor that he is planning to accept the presidency of the City College of New York from which Dr. Buell C. Gallagher resigned last spring.

Dr. Gloster admitted that he went to New York on October 10 to be interviewed regarding the CCNY presidency by the CCNY Presidential Selection Committee of the Board of Higher Education of the City University of New York.

In connection with this interview, however, he explained: (See DR. GLOSTER, P. 2)

WEATHER

Temperatures during the period, Thursday through Monday, will average below normal. Daytime highs will be in the low 60s in the North Carolina mountains, and from 65 to 75 degrees elsewhere. Lows at night will be in the mid 30s in the mountains, and mostly in the 40s elsewhere. Temperatures will turn cooler on Thursday and continue throughout the weekend. Little or no rain is expected during the period, except there is a chance of showers along the southeast coast during the weekend which may total one-fourth to one-half inch.

NEW PRESIDENT OF MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY - New York: Clifton R. Wharton, Jr., is all smiles at his office here October 17 after he was picked by the Michigan State University board of trustees to become the first Negro president of a major American university. Wharton was chosen by a 5-3 vote of the MSU board at its morning meeting. (UPI).

NY Bishop Forewarns Of Trouble

ASHEVILLE - Bishop W. J. Walls, who presided over the 59th session of the West Central North Carolina Conference, in a sermon, delivered Sunday morning at St. Stephen AME Zion Church, took the Negro to task and charged that the church had substituted frills and fancies for the true principals of the Christian religion.

The prelate was fearful of the fact that both the Negro and the black church were headed for trouble if they did not go back to concepts of seeking first the Kingdom of Heaven and then having all things added. (See BLACK CHURCH, P. 2)

Women Are Behind Big Bond Issue

The board of directors of the League of Women Voters of Raleigh-Wake County acting on behalf of the total membership of the organization, has reached a decision to support the Southside Urban Renewal bond issue. In line with League policy, this decision was the result of careful study of the entire project, presentation of the facts to the members and discussion of the various aspects of the plan and its alternatives.

The major points of concern dealt with the weaknesses in the relocation plan and the exact location of the highway interchange. The League strongly feels that the human (See WOMEN ARE, P. 2)

HUD Official Speaks Out On Open Society

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. - Samuel J. Simmons, Assistant Secretary of Equal Opportunity in the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, last week warned that lack of an open society, where minority Americans have the same opportunities for jobs and housing as other Americans, was "the single most serious, urgent and dangerous problem we have in this country today."

RUN OFF CAMPUS?

Douglas Scott Bryan, white resident of 401 Roxanne Drive, told Officer W. F. Booth at 11:27 p.m. Monday of last week, that he had been on the Shaw University campus since late afternoon talking with a group of male students. He said they had a misunderstanding and they ran him off campus and threw him down in the 700 block of S. Wilmington Street. His father, Robert Bryan, was contacted by the officer, who informed Officer Booth that his son had a mental problem and was being recommitted. Young Bryan suffered a broken kneecap.

THREATENS TO CUT THROAT

James Reddick, 34, Route 2, Wendell, reported to Officer V. Maynard at 2:31 a.m. Saturday, that he was at 209 Pugh Street when he and James McLamb, 34, address unlisted, had an argument over Mr. Reddick's wife. Reddick said McLamb picked up a knife from the table and started swinging it back and forth at his head and threatened to cut Mr. Reddick's throat. McLamb was "hauled off" to Wake County Jail and charged with assault with a deadly weapon. (See CRIME BEAT, P. 2)
