Alexander To Head 50,000-Member Nat'l Ass'n Of Social Workers

NEW YORK CITY — Appointment of Chauncey A. Alexander of Los Angeles as new executive director of the 50,000 member National Association of Social Workers was announced last Wednesday by Whitney M. Young, Jr., president of the Association. Mr. Alexander will assume his duties at the national NASW office in New York City the first of December.

In announcing the appointment, Young noted that "Chauncey Alexander takes on administrative direction of the nationwide membership organization of the social work profession at a particularly significant time. Nationally, and through our 173 NASW chapters in all parts of the country, the social work profession is gearing itself to be a more effective force in solving the critical social problems of our times. We feel we are particularly fortunate," Mr. Young continued, "to secure at this time in the history of NASW and of the country one so ably equipped to lead the organization to becoming a strong and effective instrument for social change."

Mr. Alexander brings to his new post an extensive background in planning and program development, management, education and community organization. He was formerly associate director, University of California at Los Angeles Regional Medical Programs. Other executive positions include executive director, Los Angeles County Heart Association, executive director, Southern California Society for Mental Hygiene, research and public information director, Veterans Service Center, Los Angeles Area.

Alexander is a graduate of the University of California at Los Angeles, holds an MSW from the School of Social Work, University of Southern California, and has completed academic and residence requirements for his doctorate. His professional affiliations include membership in the American Management Association, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Public Health Association, National Institute of Social and Behavioral Sciences, National Society of Fund Raisers. He is the author of numerous articles and special studies in the health and welfare field.

FAYETTEVILLE - North Carolina's first black member of the General Assembly, Representative Henry Frye, will be featured speaker at Fayetteville State University's J. W. Seabrook Auditorium Sunday, October 26.

PREGNANCY PLANNING AND HEALTH

BY MRS. GLORIA RIGGSBEE

Dear Mrs. Riggsbee: I've been reading stories in several newspapers about V.D. They say there is more V.D. now than ever and that the number of cases has gone way up in the last ten years. I don't understand the problem. When I was young, all of us boys knew that if you used protection, you couldn't get V. D. What's the matter with kids today? Don't they know the score? Ralph Dear Ralph:

There are several reasons for the current rise in V. D. statistics. One is the increased teenage population and the dating freedom our youth enjoy. Another is the possibility that many more people are coming in for treatment than ever before and, thus, the raise in statistics.

However, probably the main reasons that there are more cases of V. D. today than there were ten years ago is lack of education. Many people do not know the signs and symptoms of venereal diseases, and these people may infect others before they realize that they themselves have V.D.

The best safeguard against venereal disease is education. People need to find out how V. D. is contracted and what it "looks like." Most venereal diseases are not difficult to treat if a person seeks medical help at the first signs.

Dear Mrs. Riggsbee: I am 22-years-old, and already I have had three babies who weren't right. Two of them didn't live long enough to get home from the hospital, but the one who is home will never grow up to be strong or bright in the head.

The doctor or told me not to have any more babies but my husband won't listen. When he gets excited he wants to have sex right then and there and won't do anything about it for not having babies.

I don't think it is right to have any more babies if they will be born wrong, but I don't know what to do about it. I would have to do it myself because my husband won't. Please help me, Mrs. E. G.

There are three methods of birth control which will let you have sex with your husband when he wants it, without taking time out to protect yourself against another pregnancy.

You have probably already heard about one of these methods, the birth control pills. Taken as directed they are the most effective method available. And they would be especially good for you and your husband because you need not interrupt your love-making in order to be protected.

A second method is the loop, which is inserted by a physician into the patient's womb. Studies have shown that the loop is also very effective and second only to the pills in its ability to prevent pregnancy.

Once in place, the loop never needs to be removed, even at the time of your period. Here then, is another method that would permit you and your husband to have sex when you want it without stopping to "get ready."

If you and your husband are certain that you will never want to have any more children, there is another method you might consider--sterilization. It is a simple operation for the man and can be done in the doctor's office. For the woman, it is a more difficult operation which is performed in the hospital. This operation in no way affects your "nature" or sex desire and you and your husband could have sex just as before.

Since the doctor has advised you not to have any more children, sterilization seems to be the best method for you and your husband.

For information about all these methods check with your doctor or Wake County Health Department, 3010 New Bern Avenue. They have a family planning clinic every Thursday at 12:00 and every Saturday at 8:30 a.m. Call 833-1655 for an appointment.

Address letters to Mrs. Gloria Riggsbee, 214 Cameron Avenue, Chapel Hill, North Carolina.

Suffering with the sniffles is no fun. And lugging clothes to and from the clothesline in bone-chilling winter weather doesn't help.

We'd like to suggest a remedy. It's called a flameless electric dryer. It works when the sun doesn't.

Clothes dried electrically come out fluffy and fresh; permanent press fabrics are ready to wear with little or no ironing.

Stop the sneezes before they start this winter. And enjoy 365 day-a-year drying weather. See your electric appliance dealer right away.
