

U. S. Rep. Shirley Chisolm Declares

'If It Comes To Choice, I Will Rebel'

Heard By Audience At NCCU

DURHAM - "If the time comes when I must choose between submission and rebellion, I must choose rebellion. I don't believe the time has come. The time is near, but it is not yet," Mrs. Shirley Chisolm said Friday at North Carolina Central University.

Mrs. Chisolm, who was the first Black woman elected to the United States House of Representatives, was the speaker for NCCU's annual Founder's Day program.

She told the overflow audience in the university's B. N. Duke Auditorium, "It is perhaps the most difficult thing in the world to be at once Black and American. Some have give up trying."

She said that for this reason, "For Black Americans, the tension between generations has taken on a particular acuteness."

The representative for New York's 12th Congressional District described several areas of tension between generations. "In each case, the challenge is basically the same -- the old methods will not solve the new problems of our time."

Mrs. Chisolm said that she had learned that lesson in Congress, along with other new Congressmen.

"The oil companies are given a depletion allowance--they are paid for using up a natural resource. Why? Because oil is in the Southern states, which have safe Congressional districts, and seniority has put (See REP. CHISOLM, P. 2)

Overhaul Announced By Romney

WASHINGTON, D. C. - Secretary George Romney Friday announced plans for a major organizational overhaul of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"In the four years since its creation," Secretary Romney said, "HUD has never been organized as a true Department. Its structure reflects an accumulation of separate bureaucracies, created by independent legislative enactments over the years, rather than well-planned functional alignments."

"Responsibilities for housing production are now divided (See OVERHAUL, P. 2)

Four Black NC Marines Face 86 Years Charged In 25 Counts At LeJeune

MEMPHIS, Tenn. - Four black marines are facing 86 years in the brig, in a conspiracy case unfolding at a naval air station north of here. The men have been charged with conspiracy, rioting and some 25 counts of conspiratorial assault. The charges stem from a clash between white and black marines on July 21--ten days after a major marine uprising at Camp Lejeune, N. C.

Their trials are scheduled to start November 17. A fifth marine, who was to have gone on trial with them, died under mysterious circumstances October 31. The men all served in Vietnam. All were wounded, and one was awarded the bronze star. They were brought here to recuperate. After stays in the hospital, they were transferred to the "casual company" to await transfers or--in the case of two men--discharges. The four marines are: Perry (See 4 MARINES, P. 2)

Panthers Are No Longer All Black

NEW YORK - The presence of the white Left in the Black Panther movement may be causing the alienation of the black community, asserts Nora Sayre in December Esquire, published last week. The Esquire article points to the near eighty-percent of white people in attendance during the Panthers' conference of last July as an indication that "the community wasn't there."

"Despite the Panthers' hot breakfasts for underfed school children, the free health clinics they're beginning to establish, their programs to inform welfare clients of their rights, their advice on dealing with bad landlords -- it looks as though they may have lost the neighborhood support which they had in Oakland until recently," says Miss Sayre.

The Panthers, who reject black separatism along with "reverse racism," may be the last black association which is willing to work with whites, according to Esquire. However, the article points out that this acceptance of whites may well be their undoing. Esquire states (See PANTHERS NO. 2)

'Mixing' Still Poses Multiple Problems In State's Schools At Durham, Maxton, Chapel Hill

A survey by The CAROLINIAN shows that there are many areas in the state where integration is still a burning issue as it relates to full acceptance and complete participation.

In Maxton, where trouble has been brewing since a white cafeteria worker, made some slight remarks almost two years, while working at the then all-Negro R. B. Dean School and where there have been two mysterious fires at that school, things are far from settled. A Concerned Parents Committee has confronted school officials and have now taken their case to a Charlotte law firm, which they hope will hasten the settlement and things will get back to normal. There are still some whites who say they would rather see (See "MIXING", P. 2)

Ligon's Williams Feted On 'His Night' At Game

Ligon High School's Athletic Director and former head football coach, Pete Williams was presented a golf cart by his many friends and former players last Friday night during halftime activities at the Ligon-Hillside Homecoming football game here. The gift marked the highlight of "Pete Williams' Night" as the former football mentor led some 30-35 of his former players in their fight song. Coach Williams became an "institution" at the old Washington High School (now replaced by Ligon) as he sent nearly half of the boys who played under him to college on football grants. "Big John" Baker (formerly with the Detroit Lions) and Chuck Hinton (presently with the Pittsburgh Steelers) are just two of the many high school athletes who received their fundamentals from "Pete" Williams.

Miss Ross has been repeatedly approached by top motion picture, Broadway and television producers to accept starring roles in various dramatic and musical vehicles and has always turned them down. Hoffman finally ordered him bound and gagged. (UPI)

NAACP Joins Attack On Aid To Parochial Schools

NEW YORK, N. Y. - The Connecticut State Conference of the NAACP has joined the American Jewish Congress, three other organizations and six individuals in a major test case challenging the constitutionality of state aid to parochial and other nonpublic schools.

The plaintiffs contend that public funds for parochial schools would promote de facto segregation as well as violate the guarantees of religious liberty and church-state separation in the Connecticut and Federal Constitutions.

They are seeking an injunction in U. S. District Court to halt the allocation of $6-million in direct state aid to private and parochial schools in Connecticut. The aid was provided for in a bill the State Legislature passed last June, effective July 1, permitting the state to pay 20 per cent of the salary of an instructor who teaches secular subjects in any of the state's 360 private schools, including parochial schools.

Suing, in addition to the NAACP and AJCongress, are the Connecticut Council of Churches, the Connecticut Jewish Community Relations Council, and Americans United for Separation of Church and State. The individuals who are plaintiffs (See NAACP JOINS, P. 2)

NEA Urges Cross Race Education

WASHINGTON, D. C. - An official of the National Education Association has condemned the present "melting pot" theory designed to assimilate the races in America.

Samuel B. Ehrhardt, assistant executive secretary for teacher rights, proposes a unique three-point substitute plan featuring cross-racial experiences. He made the proposal recently to delegates attending the Nebraska State Education Association convention in Omaha.

"The significant fact about the melting pot is that it didn't happen for all," Ehrhardt said. "The assimilation of the Negro in America has been impossible; he cannot change his name and move to the suburbs or go to California and become 'old Spanish.'" He noted that (See NEA URGES, P. 2)
