Say Muslims One Of Most Stable Groups In U.S.A.

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—"Invaders from the Black Nation," a study of the "Black Muslims" in 1970, concludes that on its 40th anniversary, the black separatist Islamic movement is "one of the most stable black institutions in the United States."
The study also states that the current black mood—which the Muslims no longer are regarded as threats to racial progress—may be conducive to the further growth of the religious organization.

Mrs. Pullen Writes From Abroad

DEAR READERS,
Personally, I feel that my experiences here and one of the greatest thrills in my life, should be shared among my fellow co-workers (in French) who like I, have longed through the years to see and visited France.
Here, may I say many, many thanks to my husband who gave me this trip as a Christmas gift and the AATF. (American Association of French Teachers).
During my trip over with no particular place to reside in mind, two things were decided upon: (1) to reside in various areas of Paris, to observe, listen and study the Parisiens way of life, and (2) seek information concerning the foreign language curriculum in the elementary and high schools here in Paris.
It seems unbelievable as I sit here at this window of Hotel Claude Bernard, 43 Rue Des Ecoles (having studied about him) and write such. It is located in the Latin Quarter with walking distance from the Sorbonne and Ecole des Beaux Arts.
Prior to my arrival here there was very little walking done, but to observe it has been done mostly by foot. However, quite enjoyable with so much to see that I've read about. My first journey began Sunday morning, Fathers' Day.
It was eleven o'clock when I heard chimes. I got dressed and started walking. Within four of five blocks, I wandered surprisingly in front of Notre Dame. What a feeling! My camera started action, upon entering I lit a candle and made a prayer at an altar and proceeded to take picture of the exterior including the priest and congregation as they chanted.
On my way out pinching myself, I walked all around Notre Dame photographing. On my back to the hotel I read a sign "Louvre" pointing straight ahead along the Seine River, which divides Paris left and right banks. Here I became all educated and kept walking along the Seine, observing post-ers, fishermen, etc., until I reached Pont Carrousel where I crossed over to the Louvre, world's greatest museum, to see Mona Lisa, Venus de Milo and others. Steadily walking

The Eiffel Tower
The boat ride offered me an opportunity for photography, the sculpture and architecture all along the Seine River, and the Eiffel Tower which left me with a riking impression of how awesomely beautiful Paris really is.
Next week my plans are to visit the Bureau Universitaire de Statistiques concerning the curriculum study.
(To be continued).

POET'S CORNER

A NEED TO BE
BY ELVAULTIA (EVE) MIAL
1 MECKLENBURG TERRACE
There's a special need in all of us,
Begging and pleading for your trust;
She'll do all things that are right,
For a special someone, day or night.

This need in a woman is strong,
And if shared in her heart will be a song;
She'll strive to fill her destiny,
Because this woman is you and me.

Woman, show your concern, go ahead,
And please your very special man;
With your kind of love, if you can,
I believe God wants us to be.

With our special man, don't you see,
He made man and woman to be together;
To stand against any kind of weather;
So cater to his special needs.

Be his living angel here on earth,
Let him know his love is all you need;
Tell him, for all it's worth,
Share all your pleasures and joy.

He'll want to know about your sorrow,
And sometimes let him enjoy;
Good things you plan for tomorrow,
Being just happy is not the thing.

Any man can't make your heart sing,
He's got to be your special man;
So keep him happy if you can.
