He noted that the federal government has pledged $100 million to buy from Black manufacturers including the Commerce Department, GSA and others. "Many of the large corporations are already helping Blacks, including Certified Accountants of America, American Bankers Association, and several of the major life insurance companies," said Burrell.

Asked if there had been any substantial increase in the number of minority businesses, Mr. Burrell expressed "serious doubts that any significant increase in minority enterprises has been made over the past few years."

The plan proposed by the U. S. The HEW plan, submitted to U. S. Eastern District Court here last week, calls for clustering 12 elementary schools and extensive rezoning of junior and senior high schools in the southern and eastern sections of the city.

Raleigh school staff members warned the HEW plan, would subject children to traffic hazards destroy the non-graded program in the clustered elementary schools, curricula, crowd several schools far beyond their capacity, and create chaos with student and staff scheduling.

Several persons in the audience who were permitted to speak strongly criticized the school board and staff for pre-

 In an attempt to aid a needy religious cause, THE CAROLINIAN is launching a financial drive, soliciting funds in behalf of the Wesleyan First Church of Deliverance, pastored by Sister Mabel Gary and located on the corner of Edenton and Pettigrew Streets.

The Wesleyan First Church of Deliverance, which soon hopes to be in its new location at the corner of N. Pettigrew and E. Edenton Streets, will hold worship services, beginning

According to official information, only $20,000 is immediately needed to complete the roof, wiring and toilet facilities. When this is done, the congregation can begin its worship at the church building, instead of in a school building.

We believe the spirit of a helping hand to a most worthy project, pastor and congregation should be shown here and now in our fair city. Undoubtedly, Sister Gary has made an outstanding contribution as a minister in this area of Raleigh. For some nine years the struggle for funds to build a church has gone on. It is time for a helping hand.

So let's throw in our nickels, dimes, quarters and dollars and put the roof on this church. A little bit from everybody is all it will take. The Mechanics and Farmers Bank, 113 E. Hargett St., through its management, Mr. Joseph Sansom, has agreed to serve as depository for this undertaking.

Go by the bank right now or during their banking hours from 9:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. and from 3:30 to 5:00 p.m. and make your contribution to this cause, won't you?

Officials Will Crack Down On Misuse

GREENSBORO - The federal government plans to tighten its regulations to discourage localities from misusing funds designed for compensatory education for disadvantaged youngsters, a federal official said here last Friday.

"There is going to be closer attention paid to funding and allocation of funds," said John L. Pride, a program specialist with the Office of Education. "These new regulations will call for closer accountability."

Pride was the concluding speaker at a two-week institute for teachers at A&T State University. Most of the teachers will be employed in desegregated classrooms in the fall.

A major criticism in the use of Title I funds, according to Pride, is that some localities have been using the grants to supplant what they have been doing for disadvantaged schools, rather than as a supplement.

"Some localities," he added, "have also been using this federal money in schemes to continue segregation." He cited as
