

Page Heads Lott Carey

FAYETTEVILLE-Dr. Walter E. Page, Baltimore, Md., was elected president of the Lott Carey Baptist Foreign Mission convention at its 73rd annual session here at Seabrook auditorium, Fayetteville State University last week. Page is pastor of the Faith Baptist Church, Baltimore.

Other officers selected to direct the organization's work or the 1970-71 year are the Rev. C. R. Edwards, first vice president, Fayetteville; second vice president, the Rev. J. D. Bussy, Washington, D. C.; the Rev. J. J. Freeman, recording secretary, Norfolk, Va.; assistant secretary, the Rev. C. W. Ward, Raleigh; satiation, the Rev. L. J. Shipman, Youngstown, Ohio; chairman of the executive board, the Rev. W. L. Ransome, Richmond, Va.; assistant chairman, the Rev. C. H. Jordan, Portsmouth, Va.; Director of promotions, the Rev. M. G. Wood, Baltimore, Md.

Mrs. Mary Agnes Jordan, of Portsmouth, Va., was selected to be president of the Woman's auxiliary. Elected to serve with the new president were Mrs. Nettie Gailor, first vice president, of Pekesport, Penna.; second vice president, Mrs. Vera Slade, A. Shoice; recording secretary, Mrs. Inez C. Thomas, Columbus, Ohio; assistant secretary, Mrs. Alice McKenney; Financial secretary and correspondence, Mrs. L. S. Hobbs, Philadelphia, Penna.; Treasurer, Mrs. Ruby Marshall, Washington, D. C., and historians, Mrs. Jennie Hall, Washington, D. C.

James M. Oliver, New York City was re-elected for the second time as head of the laymen's department, and Miss Gail White, Norfolk, Va., was chosen by the young people to direct their department. Mrs. Thomas Slader, of Philadelphia, Pa., is their supervisor.

Covenant Baptist Church, Washington, D. C., white church admitted with an eighty-per cent white congregation was voted in as a member of the convention. For the first time in its 73 year old history a white church pastored by a black minister, the Rev. H. W. Wiley, a former pastor of Winston-Salem joined hands with all black missionary convention.

Retiring president, Dr. M. L. Wilson, of New York, in welcoming the new church told the convention that it is time for the black church to do and that intergregation is a two sided street and the black church must adopt an open door policy for all churches. The sad commentary about the Negro church is that many white congregations are accepting many qualified Negroes as their pastors, and likewise other religious job opportunities. We must become aware of the alarming shortage of black ministers for black churches. There must be an awakening to overcome this critical shortage.

Dr. Wendell C. Sommeville, executive secretary of the convention in his annual address reported that a total of $269,000 was collected from all auxiliaries which is the largest amount in the organizations' history. With an expanded program, the group adopted a $250,000 plus budget for its new year. Of this amount the women have pledged to raise $45,000.

Monies raised are being used for mission work in Africa, Haiti and India. The Sommeville Leper colony directed by Dr. Abner Nelson and his wife was visited recently by Rev. Mr. Bussy and movies were shown to the assembly on Friday evening describing its activity.

In addressing the meeting here, black city councilman

Attorney Johnnie Joyce appeal for the church to become concerned about crime as it affects youth. People have just about gone their limit in their willingness to pay for more and more police officers. The church now must become active and take the leadership, the state cannot solve all of our problems. There are those that sober christian thinking is the only answer. The home and the church must now join hands and renew its missionary zeal and rescue our youth and the hippies from their frustrations.

During the four-day session, which was opened with a pre-convention musical directed by Mrs. Juanita David, New York, Dr. W. L. Ransome, senior member of the group and chairman of the executive board was stricken ill and had to be flown to Richmond, Dr. Ransome has pastored First Baptist Church, Richmond for fifty years and is a member of the senior council of 33 degree Masons.

support and free jailed students Nelson Johnson and Robert Evans. It was no haphazard thing. The underlying force behind strong community response came not only from the fact that the two men were well respected as serious, intelligent and hard working organizers.

It also developed out of the community's own feeling in regards to the situation surrounding their indictment on charges of 'disrupting the public school' during demonstration last year at Greensboro's all-Black Dudley high school.

The Dudley demonstration were only part of a series of events which took place in this 28% Black southern tobacco haven which proudly boasts of being 'An All-American City' and 'The Capital of the Piedmont Crescent.'

At the height of the incidents, a little publicized confrontation occurred on the campus of North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University (A&T) during which 'snipers' held off police and national guardsmen for two days and nights before escaping. Five policemen were wounded.

To the credit of some white authorities, however, must probably go the murder of Willie Grimes, a 20 year-old student at A&T.

Community tolerance of police repression and general oppression had been considerable for that month, which began with trouble at Dudley high school.

This time the school—which long had a reputation among students as being unfair, indifferent and irrelevant—moved to bar 18 year-old Claude Barnes from candidacy for student body president.

It was alleged that the senior student's activity in a city-wide group, Youth United for a Black Society (YUBS) and the fact that he wore a leather jacket to school, proved well and good that he was 'subversive,' a member of the Black Panther Party and hence unfit to be SGA president.

held A&T campus under siege and occupation. Hundreds of rounds of ammunition were poured into the men's residence, the student union and surrounding buildings before a national guard sweep of Scott Hall ransacked every room in the massive men's dormitory, only to find a handful of dummy M-1 rifles from the ROT C department.

After doing an estimate of $86,759.76 worth of damage to the school property in action and large carried on in spite of the advice of Black A&T administrators that Blacks could handle their own problems, the guard left and later refused to testify at a hearing called by the state advisory committee to the United States.

nif in the sameness of identity, purpose and political direction of all persons of Africa descent, wherever they may be.

He said the school's curriculum is one of nation building. "We cannot build a nation for ourselves in the U.S.," Fuller pointed out. Rather, he said, MXLU would seek to develop persons with skills to be used wherever African people are actively engaged in moulding their own destiny.

He clarified, however, that this did not preclude activity in this country where the task was not so much nation building but rather countering genocide and raising political consciousness.

"Our curriculum," he explained "will put emphasis on the development of three things: ideology, skills and a positive attitude towards physical work.

"We will concentrate on the development of five skill sets: communications, engineering, biomedicine, teaching and a agriculture."

He said the school made no distinction between its self and the Black community. MXLU will involve itself in whatever way necessary to help the community and particularly it will develop certain services from its own program including a skills center, an early education center and a health center.

Classes at the ideological and technical skills institute are scheduled to begin Oct. 5 with an expected 30-60 new students, 20 continuing students and a faculty and a staff of 20-25 persons.

Businesses that are in need of loans would do well to contact Mr. Collins at the Raleigh office, 123 E. Hargett Street, to discuss their need for funds to improve their businesses. This is believed to be another instance where black capital can and will be used to an advantage.

There is a drive on to increase the assets. The months of Sept., Oct. and Nov. have been designated as "Credit Union Months", at which time you can deposit as low as $10.00 per month. Persons desiring to give more are graciously received. Mr. Collins announced in Durham today (Wednesday) that he had been contacted by several people who wanted to deposit as much as $100.00.

"Mr. Singleton has shown a tremendous amount of accomplishment both musically and academically," a university spokesman said, and is "one of our best students." His "Woodwind Quintet," composed at Yale, where he has been a student for the past two years, premiered last summer at Tangewold Music Festival in Lenox, Mass., and was presented this past winter at Lincoln Center in New York City.

The master of musical arts degree is awarded to Yale students who show the best chance for a successful career. It is a requirement for the doctorate of musical arts which is awarded on the basis of professional achievement alone.

Born in Brooklyn in 1940, Mr. Singleton joined James Memorial United Methodist Church in Brooklyn, where he sang in the children's and youth choirs. He has a bachelor of music degree from New York College of Music in Manhattan. This June he was awarded Yale's Rena Greenwald Memorial Prize for the best composition for piano-forte written during the year, and also holds the Yale Horatio Parker Memorial Scholarship.

Singleton's Crusade Scholarship is enabling him to continue his studies for the master of musical arts degree.

have a Democratic majority. Our party has consistently understood and voted for the real priorities of the United States, in the face of continued lack of leadership and vision by the Nixon administration.

"The question whether the Congress remains Democratic is a matter that has real impact on the daily lives of every American, and I intend to bring that point home as dramatically as I can in my efforts in behalf of Democratic candidates."

O'Brien's itinerary includes formal addresses at fund-raising luncheons and dinners, news conference, television-radio interviews, and party organizational meetings and rallies. While campaigning for senatorial and gubernatorial candidates, he will also make appearances for incumbent and non-incumbent House candidates within the states on his schedule.

ed honor went to Mrs. E. L. Pittman, Burlington, who will be given due recognition at the 100th anniversary of the Grand Lodge, which meets in Raleigh, October 3-5.

The last order of business was the election of officers. The political forecasters predicted that all incumbent officers would be re-elected. Drusilla Court served as host to the convention.

The present location of the Business Office is in a former 'ward' of a fifty-year old College Hospital Building, located across the one-hundred-acre campus from the main administration building, which houses the President, the Vice President for Academic Affairs, the Registrar, the Admission Office, etc., all of whom are professional contemporaries of the Business Manager. The present location and facilities inhibit access to, and communication with, other administrative officers of the College.

The business office, and other administrative offices now located in the building, formerly occupied by St. Agnes Hospital, will soon move to the Hunter Building, which is now being renovated.

"Help us to help each other." A penny collection in every church, on any given Sunday morning would have helped to fill the coffers of Wesleyan First Church of Deliverance.

Certainly, we are not smug a community that we aren't willing to be share a mite for a church roof, even though we may never worship there.

Perhaps this is our last appeal in this manner. It is hoped that there are those who may have procrastinated their gifts, who will let the milk of human kindness flow, here and now, and make their way to the Mechanics & Farmers Bank and give something. Raleigh is too torn with crime, drug, hate and violence to cause an agency of Christian endeavor to fall due to its selfishness.

An interview with persons close to Shaw revealed that President King Cheek, Jr., even though the announcement appeared in national daily newspapers and other media, has not definitely accepted the job as president of Morgan State College, located in Baltimore, Md. The source intimated that both of the brothers were conscious of the fact that black private institutions were really "up against it" to keep open and that they needed the kind of administration that the Cheek brothers had, both of them had been lured by more attractive monetary offers.

Spaulding said it would meet September 15th. No mention was made of any consideration of his successor. It was also reported that if the Shaw board gave him the assurance that certain demands were met, he might rescind his Morgan acceptance. The source would not reveal whether the demands included monetary consideration or not.

It was also learned that the Morton Board of Trustees would meet shortly after the meeting of the Shaw Board and at that time they would determine whether Dr. King Cheek would take over or someone else would be contacted.

The Shaw source was asked about the recent announcement of an auxiliary Shaw University in Detroit, headed by Attorney Romulus Murphy. It reported that the Detroit school was a separate entity and that Shaw University had no jurisdiction over policy, administration or finance. The source said that the Detroit branch was being financed by persons in the immediate Detroit area, and had been brought into being because there were interested persons in the Detroit area, who saw the need of such an institution. It was intimated that the black president of Michigan State University was an ardent supporter of the new school.

after strenuous gymnastics, while the sophisticated Romans preferred to skip the exercise and get right down to the business of the public bath. This ritual consisted of inducing perspiration in a tepid room, then moving on to a really hot room, followed by oiling, scraping, massage and finally—a plunge into an ice-cold pool.

Much later, young warriors in England were dubbed "Knights of the Bath," since, no doubt, the only hot bath they were apt to have in their lifetime was the knighthood ceremony of bathing in a linen-lined tub.

Today, the ceremony of the bath is a routine part of every household. Strictly for the purpose of cleanliness, health, attractiveness and beauty, bathing is considered the most important aspect of appearance and good grooming. Without a freshly and frequently bathed body, the efforts of a gal's beautician and fashion designer would be for naught.

But, all this 20th-Century dipping, dunking, splashing and soaking has created a problem. Although we're more hygienic than the ancients who started it all, dermatologists find that our frequent bathing and showering without special moisturizing products has resulted in the loss of the natural oils that keep the skin from drying and aging!

To overcome the flaking, drying effects of soap, water and weather, modern research has formulated beneficial products like Sardo Bath, Regular and Floral, that actually help maintain the skin's own natural moisture and bathes "in" the young feeling of over-all petal softness. A cupful of either in your bath soothes all 2,880 or so square inches of your skin surface, especially problem areas like throat, hands, elbows, knees and heels.
