Gary, Indiana's Mayor Tells NC Group

"Freedom Is More Important Than Life"

'Blacks To Save Or End' - RGH

Gordon Hatcher, black mayor of Gary, Ind., told more than 500 persons who attended the final session of the North Carolina Voter Education Project Leadership Conference, in North Carolina ·Central University's B. N. Duke afternoon, that freedom is more important than

He summed up the many advantages of being free and some of the militating causes that are keeping the black man in subservient role, dating back from the civil war until now and ended up by saying that the way to freedom was through the ballot box, due to the fact that there is where the action is.

The Gary mayor told the audience that the black man would either save America or destroy it. He pointed out that the black man was part of an unrest that is sweeping the world and most of the world had its eyes on the United States. He related how the white man has maneuvered to keep the Negro out of politics due to the fact that he knows where the power is.

"We have the weapon and the way we use it will determine where we go," he said. He made point after point as to how the Negro should educate himself into the field of politics. He said one must register to be able to vote. He warned that registering was only the first step. "You must vote yourself and then see that others vote," he admonish-

He was conscious of the fact that too many Negroes had become victims of in-fighting in politics. Without mentioning party affiliation be said that the Negro should seek the best candidates available and get behind them. He knew that many Negro candidates had lost campaigns, due to the fact that they permitted their personal ambition and the white man's trickery to run blacks against blacks. He also warned of taking the white man's money to deliver a vote. He did, however, say, that if the white man is guillible enough to give you some money, take it and then vote against him.

The day-long meet began at a.m., when Howard Lee. Chapel Hill Mayor, keynoted the opening session. Workshops continued throughout the day with consultants giving information in every phases of winning and losing an election. The meeting was put together by John W. Edwards, who directs the program throughout the
