

WSSU Names 26 To Faculty

WINSTON-SALEM - Twenty-six new faculty members have been named at Winston-Salem State University, bringing the total number of faculty members to 115, the largest in the institution's history. Faculty appointments by departments are: Business: Mrs. Elsie Blackman, Mr. J. Otis Haywood, Allareddy Reedy; Education and Psychology: Vernon Baron (counseling center), Mrs. Naomi Cecil (Enrichment Center), Mrs. Dana Dixon (counseling center), Dr. Edward Cecil, Warren Couch, Miss Carrie Robinson, and Dr. Youssef Saad; Mathematics: Miss Norman Brown; Music:

Eleven faculty members who are away studying are: Mr. Archie T. Clark (Natural Science) University of Cincinnati; Mrs. Melbourne Cummings (English) UCLA; Mr. Robert Cummings (History) UCLA, Mr. James Galloway (History) University of Pittsburgh, Mrs. Hazel Harvey (English) University of Michigan, Mr. Jefferson Humphrey (Education) Southern Illinois University, Mrs. Janet McCoy (Nursing) Indiana University, Mr. William Rice (Geography) Southern Illinois University, Mrs. Lula Robinson (Nursing) Indiana University, Mrs. Sadie Webster (Nursing) Medical College of Virginia and Miss Jane Williams (Mathematics) Indiana University.

Faculty members returning from study leaves are Mrs. Rosetta Hauser (English) Mrs. Eliza Farrow (Nursing), Rev. Henry Lewis (Social Science), and Dr. Madho Singh (Natural Science).

"SOMETHING ON YOUR MIND, MR. SOAMES?"—Dan Jackson (left), who plays the role of a male nurse in the suspense thriller, "The Mind of Mr. Soames," watches as Terence Stamp (Mr. Soames) sits forlorn in bed, thinking (baby) thoughts. In this scene from the Columbia Pictures release, Mr. Soames is a baby in the body of a man, learning how to live. The film, an absorbing story of a man who emerges from a life-long state of suspended animation, also stars Rober Vaughn, Nigel Davenport and Christian Roberts. The Amicus Production represented Great Britain in the Eighth International Festival of Science-Fiction Films last July in Trieste, Italy, with Stamp awarded the Silver Asteroid prize for best actor. "The Mind of Mr. Soames" marks the directorial debut of Alan Cooke. John Hale and Edward Simpson wrote the screenplay based on a best-selling novel by Charles Eric Maine.

SBA's First Adjustment Loans Given

WASHINGTON, D. C. - Approval of loans totaling $4,125,000 to Emil J. Paldar Company, a Chicago firm suffering economic injury from Japanese imports, was announced last Thursday by Hilary Sandoval, Jr., Administrator of the Small Business Administration.

Sandoval said that SBA is providing $2,050,000 of the total amount and an insurance industry pool is providing the remaining $2,075,000.

The loans were approved under Section 7 (e) of the Small Business Act which gives SBA authority to make loans to firms suffering economic injury from foreign trade competition as outlined in the Trade Expansion Act of 1962, and are the first to be approved by SBA. John A. Dlouhy is president of Paldar, which is located at 1120 North Wells Street, Chicago, and manufactures barber chairs.

The first loan, for 10 years, is a $1,050,000 SBA direct loan to provide the firm with working capital. The second loan is for 25 years and provides $1,000,000 toward the purchasing of land, constructing and equipping a new factory, at a total cost of $3,075,000. The insurance pool is providing $2,075,000, secured by a first mortgage.

The firm plans to diversify production manufacturing modular dental cabinets as well as barber chairs.

The Paldar Company is presently located in an urban renewal area and is being forced to relocate. It has selected a new site in Chicago's Ashland Industrial Center, an area formerly occupied by stockyards.

The firm presently employs 90 people and expects to increase employment to 110 when the move is completed. The firm has participated in the Labor Department's program to train minorities for skilled jobs and plans to continue this program.

Mass Walkout In Poverty Program

MIAMI, Fla.—The Board of Directors and the key staff of the local anti-poverty program in Miami, Fla. resigned en masse recently, protesting the lack of moral, fiscal and policy support from federal funding agencies, OEO and HEW.

The Board's action followed mass resignation by the agency's entire senior staff. The joint staff memo noted that it "has become increasingly apparent" that efforts are being made to destroy Economic Opportunity Program, Inc., the local agency. The Executive Director's resignation followed that of senior staff. The Board has requested that a trustee be appointed to "conclude the affairs of the corporation."

The chairman of the Board of Directors of EOPI noted that programs on behalf of poor people appear to have exceedingly low priority on the national administration's value scale. He noted that problems currently faced by his agency appear part of a national policy to destroy programs for the poor.

The program was launched in the fall of 1964, one of the first programs funded in the nation under the Economic Opportunity Act.

CP&L Seeks Increase In Wholesale Rates

Carolina Power & Light Company has filed with the Federal Power Commission for an increase in the rate it charges municipalities and electric corporations which buy power for resale.

Based on 1969 operations, the proposed increase would yield CP&L approximately 32 percent more revenue from its sales to wholesale customers. Shearon Harris, president of CP&L, said the company is seeking a rate that would result in wholesale customers paying their proportionate share of the utility's total cost of providing electric service.

He noted that requests for a general rate increase of approximately 14 percent on service to the company's retail customers are pending before state regulatory commissions.

Harris emphasized that inflationary pressures have made it essential for CP&L to increase rates.

"Fuel costs have skyrocketed during the last year and continue to rise," he declared. "New facilities which are essential to meet future power needs are more expensive to construct, and the cost of money to finance construction has been at record high levels. These are major factors in our cost of generating and delivering power to wholesale customers."

Harris pointed out that purchased power is only part of the operating expense of a municipal or EMC system. Therefore, the 32 percent revenue increase CP&L is seeking would of itself require a much smaller increase in prices to ultimate users.

Requests Made To Aid Accreditation

DURHAM - North Carolina Central University's "B" budget requests, forwarded Tuesday to the state's Advisory Budget Commission, may technically reflect "program enrichment" proposals, as the law provides.

But President Albert N. Whiting's cover letter to the Commission makes it clear that in his opinion "enrichment" is very nearly the same thing as "survival."

The request, for $2,269,847, includes a request for one million dollars as a reserve to provide a ten per cent salary increase to faculty members in both years of the 1971-'73 biennium.

(The university's "A" budget, for maintaining its already existing programs, is $11,887,521 for the biennium).

President Whiting sees this request as essential to the continued operation of the university as it is today.

"Although the tightness of the faculty market has been somewhat relaxed, this is not true with regard to the Negro faculty market from which a large percentage of our teachers are recruited, because of recent demands for the introduction of Black Studies and the integration of faculties at predominantly white institutions.

"Consequently, our faculties are being constantly raided and in all instances the inducement is a dramatically higher salary. Therefore it is imperative that North Carolina Central University salaries not only be equalized but substantially increased in order for us to retain and recruit competent faculty personnel."

Number Of Disabled Vets Up 29 Percent

The number of disabled veterans in vocational rehabilitation programs increased 29 percent in the last fiscal year--from 19,000 to 24,500, the Veterans Administration has reported.

Discussing a trend of generally higher enrollments since 1967, administrator of Veterans Affairs Donald E. Johnson noted that 750,000 disabled veterans have trained under the rehabilitation programs since World War II.

Johnson said 16,745 disabled veterans were in training in April this year, the peak attendance month. In the peak month of April last year, 12,175 participated in vocational rehabilitation programs.

Figures for both months include those who trained at college and below college level, and those who participated in on-the-job and on-the-farm training.

The VA Administrator also said 10,801 disabled veterans were in training in July, compared to 7,824 in July a year ago. The number of on-the-job trainees remained relatively unchanged at about 1,000 during the April through July period this year.

He explained that attendance figures for July are usually lower than those for regular school year months, because many disabled veterans who study during the regular school year do not attend summer school.

Johnson also noted that a high of 3,500 to 4,000 applications for training benefits received in May, June and July of this year reflect the pattern of higher enrollments of veterans in vocational rehabilitation programs.

Johnson explained that veterans in vocational rehabilitation programs receive a smaller monthly allowance than able-bodied veterans who train under the GI Bill, however, they also receive full tuition payment, books, supplies and any equipment required in their training programs.

In contrast, veterans under the GI Bill must pay these expenses out of their educational allowance checks, Johnson pointed out.

Holds Fall Convocation

FAYETTEVILLE - Fayetteville State University held its Fall Convocation Tuesday, Oct. 1.

The formal program of officially opening the institution's 94th year was held in the J. W. Seabrook Auditorium, commencing at 10 a.m. Music for the occasion was furnished by the University Choir and Band, under the direction of Mrs. M. T. Eldridge and Thomas B. Baccote, respectively.

President Charles Lyons, Jr. delivered the principal address, he gave the state-of-the-university address.

Classes were suspended from 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., so that faculty, students and staff could take part in the convocation.
