

HENDERSON-OXFORD

HENDERSON

BY I. B. RUSSELL

HENDERSON - Miss Dorsey M. Fuller of Hillside Ave. returned home after a nine day stay in the Maria Parham Hospital for a fractured knee. Her mother, Mrs. Geneva Wright Fuller expresses much joy and happiness because of her daughter's return. Her son Robert, Jr. is a salesman for the CAROLINIAN. Robert is an energetic little fellow and will do well if he continues.

Mrs. Emma Foster, an elderly lady, has just returned home from the Maria Parham Hospital, where she underwent a surgical treatment. Mrs. Foster lives with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jasper C. Dause on 721 John St. Mrs. Foster is the mother of the Rev. J. H. Foster, pastor of the Mt. Calvary Baptist Church of Norfolk, Va. Mrs. Foster is on the gain-side and improving every day, says her daughter Emma.

Revival began at the Oak Level United Christian Church of Christ last Tuesday evening at 1 p.m. and continue through Friday night. The Sunday services were attended by an overflowing audience, with people young and old from various parts of the country, East and West. North and South. Rev. Leon White the pastor, took his time and spoke our of his heart and the Bible the unadulterated word of God.

He selected his text from the 12 chapter of Romans, verse 4, "For we are one of many members in one body which is Christ." Rev. White spoke of getting together especially in the Black church. He made it clear that all churches regardless of denomination need to get together and agree on something definite. To do this, he said, "We must give up our will, mind and thought and accept the will and mind of Christ. With our name on the church record does not mean that we are in accord with Jesus Christ. When our minds are not centered on one thing, there can be no progress." Rev. White closed his message with a question, "Why we go to church and why we bring an offering. Churches must be together with the mind of Christ."

The last enemy which is death crept in the past week and took from us two of our elderly people in the person of Mrs. Lucy Hammie and Mrs. Betty Catlet Avant. Mrs. Hammie was a member of the Shiloh Baptist Church and was funeralized at the Shepherd Funeral Home by the Rev. C. L. Faison. Mrs. Avant was funeralized at the Spring Street Baptist Church with the pastor, Rev. R. M. Burnett officiating. Mrs. Hammie lived on 548 W. Spring St., and Mrs. Avant resided at 610 Ransom Street. They both leave a host of relatives to mourn their loss.

Yes, We All Talk

OVERCOMING STAGE FRIGHT
QUESTION: Somehow when I get up to make a public speech, I simply freeze in one spot on the rostrum. What would you recommend to overcome this feeling? -- Mrs. G.L.K.

ANSWER: The lack of self-confidence is what we call "stage fright." To say that some feeling comes over the flyer who goes on a bombing mission, or an actor in his first play is a natural thing, so forget it -- is dismissing the problem too lightly.

If the speaker does not understand the stage fright reaction, then he needs some counsel as to what to do.

I don't have the answer, but these are what has helped many beginning public speakers. First, know your subject thoroughly. Second, practice delivering the speech several times but using different words each time. Third, stop and think about what it feels like to be nervous. Read books covering the functions of the central and autonomic nervous system.

Fourth, talk about your nervousness among family and friends; take their suggestions as to how they would go about solving the problem of stage fright.

Fifth, use cues to improve your memory. I usually counsel my students in public speaking classes to memorize the main and subpoints of the speech outline, and then word the speech in terms of how you feel at that moment. Surely, I have not said all that needs to be said. But you should be on your way to investigate this problem.

Jest For Fun

BY MARCUS H. BOULWARE
HAPPINESS
Happiness these hot days is the kid who gets to go swimming every day.

Did you know some drivers move on up to 90 and above on our freeways? One thing is sure, if something happened to the car, such as a wheel coming off, it would be "All-by-gone." And what do you know, the little Ford Pinto doesn't fool around either. It is brave enough to challenge a Cadillac. That's what I call class.

CONVENTIONS, YES!
Why is it those conventions you would like to attend, but the boss always turns thumbs down on, never come during your vacation? Well, who is going to give us an answer? The boss, of course.

With the pressure for total integration, a lot of parents send their children to private schools. Some pay dear money, too. But what gets me is the state that the exodus to private schools is hurting the public schools. To me, it seems that fewer kids would be a good help. If you don't agree, most teachers will.

THE GET UP, OF COURSE
A lot of people I know get up, but then don't go. What can we do then? Whatever it is, may God guide and fortify you.

Curiosity

A key to knowledge is curiosity, a trait discouraged by some.

The curious child will learn. The curious adult, likewise, continues to improve his mind and expand his knowledge.

Without curiosity--the urge to know why--there is little incentive to investigate, study and solve the mysteries of life.

Some are surprised that famous intellectuals are stimulated by simple occurrences, the strange way a plant grows, the odd color of a flower, etc. The tendency of some is to dismiss such people as eccentrics or "nuts."

The intelligent person, however, is curious about all the mysteries which surround him. He wonders why an engineer built a bridge this or that way, how a spider spins such a marvelous web, how wild birds and fish travel thousands of miles back to their natural breeding ground, alone.

Because man wondered about the flight of birds, he learned to fly. Because he wondered about the atom and the power within, he learned to split it. Because he wondered about space, he learned how to invade it and return safely to earth.

To a degree, curiosity is the basis and motivation of much of the world's knowledge.

Life is not merely being alive, but being well.

-Martial.

Wake Forest

WAKE FOREST - The Olive Branch Baptist Church of Wake Forest is planning a Recognition of Achievement Day for the fall. The theme for the activities is "Relevancy Achievement, Potential." The dual purposes of this event are to recognize and honor the very fine people who have grown up in this community and are now making valuable contributions to society wherever they live; to motivate, direct and encourage the youth to devote themselves to efforts that will lead to the achievement of higher goals.

Personal data sheets are available to persons not contacted by mail.

Contact Mrs. Evelyn Jones, chairman of the Steering Committee at 317 Cedar Street, Wake Forest.

Information from the personal data sheets will be compiled into a booklet entitled "Who's Who Among Wake Forest Area Citizens."

Additional releases will be issued as plans are made final.
