E. Raiford Explains Drug Plan

(Ed. Note: The following story is the first in a series written by Ernest L. Raiford, Executive Director of the YMCA here, and member of the Board of Directors of the Drug Action Committee of Wake County.) During the past year, the Drug Action Committee of Wake County has met weekly and some times bi-weekly in a downtown church for the purpose of planning effective assistance to the youth of our community caught in the web of drug abuse. The guiding spirit of this committee was and is a physician in daily contact with youth who have been "hooked" by addictive drugs and suffer the torture of the damned. The drug committee has engaged in research in his area and has reached the conclusion that the county is now in a crisis situation with some 1,000 heroin users, 40 per cent of them hard core addicts. A complete understanding of this new drug culture awaits further research and investigation. However, much has been learned and verified and should now become the common knowledge of the community. Addictive drugs now seem to be a legacy of the Vietnam War just as tobacco use came into greatly expanded use during World War I, and alcohol in World War II. We now have three problems of great magnitude. (See E. RAIFORD, P. 2)

Goals Of Integration Are Restated
 The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the oldest and largest civil rights organization, is entering the 1970's beleaguered but still very much a live. Although it has been severely criticized as "too conservative" by black nationalists, and had its influence in the high circles of government sharply curtailed by the Nixon administration, the NAACP continues to cling to its goals. Lack Of Confidence Major Woe

GREENSBORO - This nation faces several critical school problems, but the major woe is a lack of public confidence in the schools, a university of Wisconsin professor said in Greensboro last Wednesday. "The biggest job is building confidence in the public," said Dr. Vernon F. Haubrich, a professor and senior researcher for "Wisconsin's Institute for Research on Poverty." "Many people in the middle class are beginning to wonder what the schools are all about." (See LACK OF, P. 2)

Muskie Sees Inner Cities Amendment

WASHINGTON, D. C. - An amendment offered by Senator Edmund S. Muskie (D-Maine) that will allow central cities and ghetto areas plagued with severe unemployment to receive massive federal assistance has been adopted by the Senate Public Works Committee. The amendment was adopted as part of a new, general economic disaster assistance program which expands and changes the Disaster Relief Act of 1970 by including economic as well as natural disasters as a basis for federal assistance. The bill will be before the Senate next week. "Just as we must give help to those areas suffering from high unemployment due to cancelled government contracts and cut-backs in spending," the senator said, "we must give help to those areas with chronic high unemployment due to poverty." (See MUSKIE, P. 2)

INQUIRING REPORTER THEY SAY

BY C. WARREN MASSENBURG

QUESTION: Do you think the United States is spending too much money on space exploration?
 Ed Smith, White Street, Wake Forest, N. C. "Well, everybody seems to be against it, but if it's doing some good I don't see anything wrong with it. It just might be something up there to benefit mankind. It could be gold or anything. It could also be a publicity stunt."
 Johnny Hayes, Nelson Avenue, Wake Forest "My opinion is that they are using too much money. There are hungry people all over the world." (See THEY SAY, P. 2)

Beauticians' HeadFeted

NEW ORLEANS - When Dr. Lattie E. Whickam, president of the National Beauty Culturists' League, Inc., came home last week she tried to come in without anyone knowing it; but beauticians of the city were wised by National Office in Washington and loyal beauticians of New Orleans were on hand to meet and greet her. They did not have a brass band, but lusty luags sang out loudly, "Hello Katie! Hello Katie! We're glad to see you back where we love you so." When she reached her home in New Orleans, she found out she was no longer for the moment "Dr. Katie" who has successfully led the league to great success; but she was merely Katie, the home town girl who had made good in a great way. Miss Hayes Writes Of Stockholm

Editor's Note: Marion P. Hayes, Community Ambassador is spending the summer in Sweden. As a professor of communications at Shaw University she is especially interested in Swedish Television. For most visitors in Sweden, the city of Stockholm is the highlight of their trip. The city is rich in European history with such attractions as the Royal Palace dating back to 1690. One may visit the Royal Opera, one of the oldest theatres in the world or see Skansen, the world-famous open-air museum. My visit to Stockholm was for the purpose of meeting Oile Lindgren the director of training. (See MISS HAYES, P. 2)

Participation Plans Cleared At Meeting

Thousands of black youngsters will be on the move when Raleigh's schools open late in August to the tune of massive busing. On Tuesday, the Raleigh School Board members, along with several principals, released an outline making suggestions for smooth integration of student activities and study.

The 22-page release included such points as the manner in which integration will occur in school clubs, offices, cheer-leading, athletic squads and many other areas. "We should let parents know that the success of this plan depends on them taking a positive attitude," said Mrs. Elizabeth Cofield after a two-hour discussion of the concluded list. "And we hope the press will compliment the central office for the magnificent job they've done in staying on top of things," J. C. Knowles, board member, said beseechingly.

Strategy In Politics Is Revealed

WASHINGTON, D. C. - Congressman John Conyers has asked that serious consideration be given to a two-part plan which would maximize black political leverage and open the way for blacks to form coalitions with other segments of the electorate. The proposal calls for drafting a platform and selecting a candidate to run as the Democratic nominee for President.

The candidate, running on a people's platform would then enter selected state-wide primaries between now and July 1972. This in turn would stimulate registration and encourage black citizens to run for delegate seats to the national convention. (See STRATEGY, P. 2)

CRIME BEAT

From Raleigh's Official Police Files

EDITOR'S NOTE: This column or feature is produced in the public interest with an aim towards eliminating its contents. Numerous individuals have requested that they be given the consideration of overlooking their listing on the police blotter. This we would like to do. However, it is not our position to be judge or jury. We merely publish the facts as we find them reported by the arresting officers. To keep out of the Crime Beat columns, merely means not being registered by a police officer in reporting his findings while on duty. So simply keep off the "Blotter" and you won't be in The Crime Beat.
