

GIFT FROM THE MOON- Space Center, Houston: Two unidentified NASA technicians lift a container of Apollo 15 lunar material onto the loading dock at the Lunar Receiving Lab August 8, the first of two shipments to arrive at The Manned Spacecraft Center since the successful end of the Apollo 15 misson. This portion of the scientifically valuable moon samples was flown here from the recovery carrier via Hawaii, A second portion will arrive later August 8 with the crew, following an established NASA policy of not flying all lunar material from a spaceflight on the same airplane.
