The most interesting phase of the entire meet is the election of nine ministerial and nine lay delegates to the General Conference, which is slated for Mobile, Ala., May 1972.

The most spectacular event will be the candlelight service, which will highlight the Friday evening activities. The missionary women dressed in white, will enter the unlighted sanctuary, carrying lighted candles, symbolizing "Jesus, the Light of the World."

Saturday will be Youth Day. The youth sessions will be held at St. Matthews AME Church. It is expected that every phase of youth activity will be discussed, including education, church life, courtship, marriage and family, along with Christian service to the community.

A "Model Sunday School" will be held at 9:30 Sunday morning, with Leslie Campbell in charge. He will be assisted by Gary Mazurek. The morning sermon will be delivered by Bishop Stewart.

A native of New York, Strachan is active in community affairs. He serves on the community advisory council of the Harlem Hospital Center and is a member of the NAACP, National Urban League, and Omega Psi Phi fraternity.

Strachan, a World War II veteran, received his BS and MA degrees from New York University. Emmett E. Cooper, Jr., another career postal employee, has been named manager of the Detroit Metropolitan Postal Center.

Mr. Cooper will have administrative and operational responsibilities for 114 postal facilities, including the Detroit Post Office -- the nation's eighth largest postal installation. Cooper joined the Postal Service in 1947 as a clerk in his home town of Cleveland, Ohio.

In 1966, he was assigned to Washington as a member of the board which handled all employee grievance appeals and equal employment opportunity complaints. Two years later, he was named chairman of the postal board of appeals and review.

NUL GETS

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) Administration direction. The program prepares welfare recipients for permanent places in the labor force by giving them such supportive services as basic education, counseling, child care, and health care as well as job training.

Under the new contract, the Urban League is using WIN enrollees to provide the supportive services. In the 10 project cities, state employment services staffs are selecting outstanding WIN enrollees and referring them to the League for on-the-job training as manpower service aides, supervisors, and clerks for the project.

One of the contract's aims is to develop new ways of finding and training the large number of skilled manpower workers who would be needed under the welfare and manpower reform bill being considered by the Congress.

"This is all part of our effort to have more of the important work in manpower programs performed by professionals who have come up through the ranks, rather than the usual entry as college graduates," Fasser said.

"This kind of project also makes fuller use of low-income people's skill in understanding and motivating people from their own background," he said. "The aides' job is to augment the services provided by WIN program 'teams' of counselors, work and training specialists, job development specialists, job coach and clerk.

The extra services provided by the aides will include: Counseling follow WIN enrollees to help them over rough spots and encourage them to stick with the program; Follow-up help, such as arranging day care or transportation, to help employed enrollees stay on the job. Liaison with the welfare agency to keep welfare staff informed about WIN program developments; and Community relations work to help local groups and individuals understand and cooperate better with the WIN program.

When the aides are fully trained they will be assisted to find permanent jobs as manpower staff in industry, social agencies, government, or the Urban League itself.

US MASONS

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) tance program. In making the announcement, Dr. John G. Lewis, Jr., of Baton Rouge, Louisiana, stated that "our organization is one of the largest sponsors of federally subsidized low to moderate income housing in the nation, having sponsored $20 million in housing projects since the mid-sixties."

He said that based on the past experience of the Prince Hall Scottish Rite Masons in the housing effort, "has made us acutely aware of the need for improving the nation's capability for managing multi-family housing projects." Dr. Lewis then pointed out that the general status of the economy has made it much more difficult to meet the rising cost of operating such projects, and an increasing number of projects are in default or close to it as a result.

Dr. Lewis also announced that the proposed housing management improvement program had been designed by an Atlanta-based firm, Urban East Consultants, who would coordinate the implementation of the program.

James S. Robinson, president of the consulting firm, in presentation before the organization's executive board, outlined the program, and stated that in the next decade the nation will need at least 60,000 well-trained, capable housing managers if our efforts toward meeting our housing needs are to be functionally met. "This organization is in an excellent position to help develop model programs by which housing management capabilities can be developed," he said.

Urban East has been the principal consultant in the development of the sponsorship of projects in Frankfort, Ky., Knoxville, Tenn., Spartanburg, S.C.; Montgomery and Birmingham, Ala.; Port Arthur, Dallas and Fort Worth, Texas; and one more under construction in Washington, D.C., representing more than 2000 units.

"The firm has an outstanding record in the area of housing and general urban redevelopment for not only our projects, but throughout the nation generally," said Dr. Lewis, who is also the grand master for the State of Louisiana.

The Prince Hall Scottish Rite masons opened their activities Saturday, with headquarters at the Regency Hyatt House.

A special feature of the sessions was a Free Diagnostic Clinic that was opened to members, their families and general public, under the direction of Dr. G. Wesley Allen of Fayetteville, N.C. Assisting in the testing were Dr. Nelson H. Brown of Atlanta, president of the Atlanta Diabetic Association, and his wife; Dr. Ann Kinzer of Atlanta; students from the Para-Medical Academy; registered nurses from the Piedmont Hospital, and volunteers from the Tuberculosis Association and the Atlanta Public Health Service, which assisted in coordination of the medical personnel and allied assistants.

CHANGES IN (CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) "Emphasis has been shifted from social activities to activities of social concern," Mr. McClarrin stated. "The current issue shows - and future issues will show - what Omega men are doing today to help to solve the problems of our social environment; what they are doing about the crises of our times, about the issues of race and racism, about human freedom at home and abroad."

McClarrin said the fraternity can no longer "afford the luxury of an image of Omega men as participants in a fun-loving world of make-believe."

He said there are thousands of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity men playing important roles throughout the country and various parts of the world as architects of the blackman's destiny and engineers of social change, "and we're going to help make the facts known."

He said the Oracle Magazine will show what Omega men are doing today "in the creation of tomorrow's world, and in the creation of an aristocracy of leadership for today's oppressed peoples - at home and abroad."

The change in the Oracle Magazine is a part of the new direction of the fraternity under the administration of James S. Avery, Grand Basileus of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity.

Avery said the men of Omega are at a stage in the present human rights struggle where "we need a new sense of urgency, matched by a rebirth in our commitment to be a part of the solutions needed in our local communities. Involvement today requires nothing less than a maximum effort."

Avery said the "men of Omega helped to lead the Black Revolution that brought about many of the legal gains that exist today. We are better equipped to help remove the roadblocks that stymie the future progress and development of our people."

BEN CHAVIS

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) timidation of ROWP. The Black community in order to survive has developed a survival campaign to counter the attacks of the vigilantes that ride with guns hanging out of car windows through the Black community. Crisis is not new to Wilmington. In February 1971, national guardsmen were sent to Wilmington where they participated in an assault upon Gregory Congregational United Church of Christ. Two people were killed in that incident that lasted for six days.

Recently, the assistant pastor, the Reverend Roderick Kirby, of the First African Congregation of the Black Messiah was beaten and arrested by eight policemen as he protested the treatment of a 12-year-old youth by police officers. The Reverend Mr. Kirby was later sentenced to 12 months in jail, despite the fact that six witnesses testified that police attacked him. The verdict is being appealed by Kirby's attorney.

In spite of these activities civil rights groups, churches and leaders in N.C. have remained silent. The Commission for Racial Justice has been the only group on a state or national level to send assistance to the Wilmington community.

According to the Chairman of the Commission for Racial Justice, Mr. T. Willard Fair, "the next meeting of the Commission will be convened in Wilmington to dramatize CRJ's support for the Black community against the systematic violence being perpetrated against it by racist forces there. The Commission for Racial Justice is an agency of the United Church of Christ charged with the responsibility of mobilizing church resources to aid in the empowerment struggle of Black and oppressed people."

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) "It's no time for us to get afraid now. Evers lost a good race but I think his defeat should serve as guide for other Blacks to run for Governor in other states. I even think Evers will give the race another try," Miss Judith Harris, Wilmington

Evers' loss should be another Black man's gain. By that I mean, with the defeat of Evers, it should inspire other Blacks to enter the race for Governor. We know it will be a long hard struggle for any Black man to win any office but giving up is not the answer. Mr. James Atwater, Memphis, Tennessee

"Winners never quit and quitters never win. Sure Evers lost the race in Mississippi but I don't think other Blacks could get afraid and quit because he has done so. It is no time to turn back. Other Black politicians should look at that defeat as an encouragement to run for governor in other states."

$1 MILLION (CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) engineers to begin capital improvements valued at $5,415,000.

Dowdy said the new buildings will include a physical and health education building valued at $3,200,000. A&T will also spend $500,000 to renovate Scott Hall, which currently houses nearly 1,000 male students.

Dr. Dowdy asked the board of trustees for approval of architects and engineers to begin capital improvements valued at $5,415,000.

The A&T president also asked the board to approve the renovation of Vanstory Hall, the oldest building on the campus, to serve as headquarters for the office of Career Counseling and Placement and Planning and Development. Dowdy said the most encouraging aspects of A&T's development during the year was the increased funding of research projects and special programs.

"We received more than $400,000 in basic grants for research during the past year," said Dowdy, "but this money boosted our five-year total to more than $1,370,052, a dramatic increase in what we had been getting."

Perk's victory margin seems to have come from a heavy unexpected turnout of white West Side voters while the Black voters failed to turnout as expected. Perk was defeated by Stokes by more than 4,000 votes in 1969.

According to a report made by Attorney Edwin L. Weisl, Jr. of Washington County in Mississippi, Evers' watchers were denied access to some voting areas in at least 11 of the 82 counties.

State Attorney General A.F. Summer denied the charge. He said his office had received complaints that Evers' watchers were jerking ballots out of people's hands.

The professors sought and received advice on how to adapt their curriculums so as to qualify their graduates for professional positions in BLS and through Yeager's talk, in other offices and bureaus of the Labor Department. They also were briefed by DRS people, including high-ranking staffers, on the kinds of statistical data gathered and disseminated by each program office.

The conference was coordinated by Miss Mildred J. Pleckett, staffing specialist in the BLS personnel office and in charge of recruitment, and, for the visitors, Dr. Mary C. Torlan, chairman of the Division of Business Administration, Savannah State College.

Schools represented, besides Savannah State, were Jackson State (Miss.), Tennessee State, North Carolina Central, Virginia Union, Texas Southern, Winston-Salem State, Georgia State, Southern (Tallahassee), Alabama A&M, Morris Brown (Atlanta), Roosevelt (Chicago), North Carolina A&T State, Kentucky State, Florida A&M and Coppin State (Baltimore).
