

Julian Bond Sets 2 N.C. Appearances

ATLANTA, GA. -- Georgia State Representative Julian Bond will speak at Campbell College, Buies Creek, on Nov. 17 at the Turner Auditorium and at Fayetteville State University, Fayetteville on Nov. 18 at the J. W. Seabrook Auditorium. Both programs will start at 8 p. m.

Bond will concentrate on Black politics and Black strategies for 1972.

Bond, 31, was nominated for Vice-President at the 1968 Democratic Convention, but had to refuse because of his age.

At the Chicago convention, he was the leader of an insurgent group from Georgia that successfully challenged the handpicked slate chosen by former Georgia Governor Lester Maddox.

Bond, who has served in the Georgia House of Representatives since January, 1967, was elected to that body threetimes before an order of the United States Supreme Court forced his seating. He had been prevented from taking his seat by members of the Georgia House who objected to his anti-war views.

Bond is Chairman of the Board of the Southern Elections Fund, an Atlanta-based organization that supplies campaign funds to Black candidates in local level elections in the deep southern states. He also serves on other boards including the Delta Ministry, the Voter Education project, the Southern Regional Council, and is a co-chairman of the Southern Black Caucus, an organization of Southern Black political activists.

The regular quarterly cash dividend of 50 cents per share was declared on outstanding 4 percent preferred stock.

These dividends are payable December 1, 1971, to stockholders of record on November 16, 1971.

Vernon Jordan Says Ford Grant Could 'Boomerang'

NEW YORK, N. Y. - Vernon E. Jordan, Jr., warned today that popular misinterpretation could completely reverse the intention of an important Ford Foundation grant and "produce results nobody wants."

Mr. Jordan, executive director of the United Negro College Fund, in a memo to UNCF president and field staff, said the results of a notion going around could boomerang and cut off funds to black colleges instead of encouraging them.

Jordan's warning was in reference to the recent Ford Foundation announcement that it was going to spend $100,000,000 over the next six years "to increase minority opportunities in higher education."

"Many people have seen this and said 'that solves the problems of the black colleges, they don't need any more help,'" Mr. Jordan said. "The reality, as Ford itself points out, is that this is just a very small start and really a vote of confidence in the viability of the black schools."

In his memo, Mr. Jordan makes the following points: 1. The Ford grant so far encompasses only four black colleges--three of them UNCF members. It is never envisioned to encompass more than a small number of schools. There are more than 50 private black colleges in the United States.

2. Half of the Ford grant--$50,000,000--is going to individual minority-group students for scholarships and loans. These scholarships presumably will be applied over a wide spectrum of American higher education.

"The crisis in dollars facing the black colleges is as great as ever," Mr. Jordan writes.

"The Ford step is a very important one, a good one, but that could redound to our disadvantage, unless this misunderstanding is cleared up for the corporate, foundation and public giving sectors."

The UNCF executive director, who leaves the Fund January 1 to become executive director of the Urban League, urged the UNCF family to step up its efforts to meet the $10,000,000 goal which, he said, "must be reached this year to help our 36 member schools."

The College Fund, established in 1947, raises operating monies to assist its member institutions. All are private, four-year accredited liberal arts schools. Some 40,000 students attend the UNCF colleges. Next year, four more colleges will join the Fund, adding some 5,000 more students.

The consideration was given in light of the information given by Dr. Cameron West, Director of the State Board of Higher Education, in his report on "The Legislature's Program for Restructuring Higher Education.
