carceration, my total bonds on all charges equalled to over $120,000 (more than Angela Davis, which was never over $100,000)."

Chavis is a native of Oxford, He is a graduate of Mary Potter High, attended St. Augustine's for one year, then transferred to UNC at Charlotte where he graduated with a B. S. degree, majoring in chemistry. While in Charlotte, he was a candidate for the 1960 City Council race for office. He was just 21 years old at this time. He finished 2nd out of the blacks (7) running, and 12th out of a field of 22 in all.

Chavis moved back to his hometown of Oxford in Granville County in 1970 and taught at his alma mater, Mary Potter, on a part-time basis. In May of 1970, a high school classmate of his, Henry B. Marrow, was "murdered by one of the local Klan leaders in Oxford, by the name of Robert Teel, and his two sons, all of whom were acquitted by all Oxford all-white jury. This incident made me further realize the kind of justice that black people have been receiving for so long in the courts. At this point, I became employed by the CRJ, headquartered in New York, which is an agency of the United Church of Christ. I was hired as the director of community organization for both the states of N. C. and Virginia. The Rev. Leon White of Raleigh, is the ex-director of the CRJ for N. C. and Virginia.

Rev. Chavis has been in the field since the Spring of 1967, having been appointed as coordinator of the SCLC in Western N. C. He also was once a labor organizer for the AF- State County Municipal Employees, which is a part of the AFL-CIO in Charlotte. There he organized this group back in 1967-'68. He has been affiliated before and after with numerous civic, political and mainly religious organizations, geared to the improvement of black people. He was ordained in April, 1971, in New York, as a minister in the UCC, and became the pastor-founder of the church in April of '71.

The main reason that I founded the church was because I realized that the traditional black church needed to be more involved with the day-to-day life style of black people and the young people, over the last several years have become "turned off" by the black church because it has become irrelevant to their religious and spiritual needs."

The Rev. Chavis is married to the former Miss Jacquelyn Bullock of Oxford and they are the parents of three children.

"During the last three months because of my incarceration one month in Wilmington City Jail and the last two months at Central Prison here, I have witnessed many other injustices that have been perpetrated against our people that many outsiders are unaware of. It seems as though today, prisons of this country are filled up with a disproportionate number of our people. In N. C., for example, we make up 85 percent of the population of the system.

"I have plans to meet with Angela Davis in Raleigh during the month of August. Plans have not yet been finalized, but the prospects look pretty bright. Angela, like myself, has been a political pawn in the white man's system of justice" for outposts: American black people.

Between now and September, Rev. Chavis will have to raise $125,000 to defray court and attorneys' fees.

gressional committee has determined that narcotics are responsible for "approximately 50% of certain types of crime in urban areas and the situation is spreading to rural areas."

"For this reason, any war on crime must begin with an attack on drug abuse," Galifianakis said.

Throughout his primary campaigns for the U. S. Senate, Galifianakis supported a four-point program to combat drug abuse which included stiffer penalties for those who push drugs, establishment of regional or local drug treatment centers, elimination of foreign aid to countries who refuse to co-operate in halting the smuggling of narcotics into the United States, and expanded social science and medical research on drug abuse.

Information received from callers on the heroin hotline is screened and forwarded to the appropriate state and federal investigators. The hotline is manned 24 hours a day and callers' identities are kept confidential.

Bumpers is being held in the Wake County Jail in lieu of $1,400 bond.

According to a police report filed by Patrolman B. R. Turner, he and Patrolman P. E. Braswell answered a call to the East Hargett St. address, where Barbara Hicks said she had been hit by a bullet.

When the two policemen entered, according to the report, Bumpers was standing in the rear of the hall with his back turned to the officers. Bumpers then turned around and pointed his 22 rifle at the policemen, the report said.

Patrolman Braswell said he told Bumpers to put the gun down as both policemen drew their own weapons. Braswell then grabbed the rifle as Bumpers pointed it downward, according to the report.

Local hospitals had no reports of Miss Hicks' injury.

of black Americans.

Mr. Conyers noted in his remarks that it is a commonplace of our times that the FBI as it is now structured poses a grave threat to American society. However respected in some areas of law enforcement the FBI may at one time have been, it has since moved far beyond its original mandate into the vague and dangerous area of domestic internal security. Under the broad umbrella of "domestic subversion," the FBI has unilaterally expanded its role to the point where citizens are investigated for all manner of things for which there is no legal basis.

Under the long reign of J. Edgar Hoover, Mr. Conyers pointed out, the Bureau undertook responsibilities never contemplated by those who formed the FBI, responsibilities which constitute a great usurpation of authority unparalleled in our history. The investigativetechniques employed in the search for "domestic subversives" usually result in the deprivation of citizens' rights guaranteed under the First and Fourth Amendments, the precise thing about which the Framers of the Constitution were concerned when they formulated the Bill of Rights.

Of particular concern to Congressman Conyers and the Congressional Black Caucus is the disproportionate surveillance by the FBI and the Secret Service of black citizens. It has been known for some time that Mr. Hoover ordered a thorough investigation of black student unions and organizations. Mr. Anderson also verified the long-held belief that the FBI is greatly exceeding its Congressional mandate by illegal and capricious surveillance of black leaders in the fields of sports, entertainment, religion and politics. He further revealed that the Secret Service compiles a list of what it considers to be potential assassins. On this so-called Black Nationalist List are the names of 5500 black leaders and citizens. These assertions were supported by documentation which Mr. Anderson turned over to the Caucus.

Mr. Conyers noted that the FBI claims to be a non-political organization and asserts that it is not a national police force. But in its intelligence and counter-intelligence work involving progressives and activists, for example, it frequently engages in activity that is clearly political.

Conyers stated that these unwarranted and unauthorized compilations of unverified data-much of it political in nature-by the FBI through pervasive informant programs and technical surveillances must stop because a free society cannot tolerate intrusions by what amounts to a national security police.

HELPFUL ADVICE FOR THE WOMAN DRIVER - by Kay Nicolette
Women's Service Director Gulf Oil Corporation

If periodically checking your appearance in the rear view mirror is "just your speed," chances are an accident awaits you. For seemingly harmless habits such as this—like striking a match to Incredible as it seems, all drivers have at one time or another seen women applying lipstick, men combing their hair while driving a car. We all know people incapable of talking to us unless they look directly at us. Have you ever been a passenger in a car driven by such a person? It can be a chilling experience. Or what about the driver who can't talk without hand gestures?

Yet those are the sort of foolish things drivers really do.

How many bad driving habits do you have? If you're honest with yourself, chances are you'll be appalled at your own bad habits. You, after all, are the key to your own driving safety.

For helpful advice on safe driving and maintenance of your car, write to Gulf Oil Company—U.S., P.O. Box 1519-TG, Houston, Texas 77001, for your free copy of the booklet, "Straight Talk for the Woman Driver."
