OBSERVATIONS IN COVERING THE NIGHT BEAT: The most exciting gift of Sammy Davis recently came straight from the White House. Compliments of President Nixon. The gift is something that Sammy had admired out loud when he was a passenger aboard the Presidential Jet, Air Force One, on "that one occasion when the White House supplied Sammy with a jet trip (at the taxpayers' expense) back to Las Vegas from the Nixon dinner table in Washington.

The thing that caught Sammy's eye was the super-style flight jacket worn by the President's personal pilot. Davis was so impressed that he wished out loud that he had one just like it.

Well, lo and behold, several months after that wish, a package from the White House arrived at Sammy's house, containing a duplicate of the Air Force One Flight Jacket, specially tailored to Sam's special size.

The jacket puts Sammy one up on Spiro Agnew's pal, Frank Sinatra, who doesn't have an official flight jacket from Agnew's pilot. As a matter of fact, Agnew's pilot doesn't have an "official" flight jacket. In appreciation, Sammy sent a case of Teacher's Highland Cream Scotch to the President's personal pilot.

All is peaceful and happy at the Sanford and Son set now, according to an NBC spokesman. Redd Foxx reportedly was unhappy because his compensation, he felt, was not commensurate with the success of the series.

He's even alleged to have walked off in anger on one occasion and showed up in Las Vegas on a day he was supposed to be in Los Angeles rehearsing. But, NBC reported that Foxx has a new contract and he's very happy.

Louis Armstrong's widow, Lucille, has abandoned her plan to open a museum in New York with her late husband's musical memorabilia. Instead, she'll donate the collection to "a small museum in the midwest." Louis' legendary golden horn is already enshrined at the Jazz Museum in New Orleans.

Mabel Mercer, who received critical acclaim for the recent TV special she did with Bobby Short, celebrated by singing some tunes at the Press Box. Bobby also presented Mabel with Chadbourne's new Body-shirt made specifically for evening wear.

It's a little early for St. Valentine's Day but Flip Wilson has ordered some greetings using his own verses. One reads: "My sister don't do windows. My mother don't do floors. If you're willing to be my love, Honey, I'll do yours." His favorite: "I care for you. You care for him. He cares for me. We care for them."

Choreographer-dancer Henry Le Tang, associated with such stars as Lena Horne, Pearl Bailey, Harry Belafonte, James Earl Jones, Ella Fitzgerald, opened his new dance and rehearsal studios on West 54th Street in New York City. Henry's pupils presented him with the new Magnavox Odyssey TV game set.

Sidney Poitier's wife, Juanita, has filed petition in New York's Supreme Court asking that Sidney be ordered to give a full accounting of all earnings and assets. The long estranged Mrs. Poitier is sizzling over the luxurious support Sidney's been giving his lady love, Joanna Shimkus, who's currently expecting his second child in London. The judge will set a date sometime this month so that he'll hear Sidney's response to Mrs. Poitier's request for the court order.

During the first season of Sanford and Son, every script but one was an adaptation of a segment of the British series "Steptoe and Son." This year, according to producer Aaron Ruben, the series is developing its own stories specifically from the black point of view.

One of the writer's Ruben has hired is Ilunga Adell, a 23-year-old from Memphis, Tenn. "When I first met him, I couldn't believe what he told me - he felt he could write from a black point of view because he had never spoken with a white person until he was 18 years old."

Two of Adell's stories have already been broadcast and he has just finished a third, "A Guest in the Yard." One of his scripts dealt with Fred Sanford (Redd Foxx) having a toothache and insisting on a white dentist. It was a gem too.

faith was repeated by the congregation. The senior choir rendered the music, under the direction of Miss Beverly Lewis. A spiritual prayer was by Rev. Thomas, which was followed by a chant. The responsive reading was led by Rev. Sis. Bessie Williams and congregation, followed by the Gloria Patri. The scripture was read by our visiting pastor, Rev. Sis. Nettie Williams, taken from the 7th chapter of St. Matthew, 1-10. The offering was lifted by the junior lady ushers and junior men ushers, under the direction of Mrs. Geraldine Griffins. The offering was blessed by Rev. Thomas.

Announcements were made by Mrs. Mary T. Hines. Acknowledgement of visitors was made by Rev. J. L. McCullers.

Due to a death in the family of Rev. James I. Thompson, pastor of Young's Missionary Temple CME Church, the Rev. A. A. Crum, visiting minister and speaker of First Baptist Church, New Hill, and Oak Grove Baptist Church of Jones County, preached a very powerful sermon. It was entitled Let's Go Fishing; taken from the 21st chapter of the gospel according to St. John and the third verse. The sermon was well illustrated and thought-provoking. It was spiritually adequate for all to live by. The congregation seemed to have been moved by the sermon.

The invitation to christian discipleship was extended by Rev. Crum as the choir sang an invitational hymn.

Rev. Thomas L. Jackson and the Gospel Travelers of Raleigh rendered a musical program at Young's Missionary Temple CME Church, 110 S. State St., here on Sunday, Jan. 14 at 7:30 p.m. This program was sponsored by Mrs. Mary Moore. It was a very glorious and inspiring program.

Funds Go Out Despite Rights Groups' Fears

National Black News Service WASHINGTON—Despite allegations by civil rights groups of possible discrimination in allocating federal revenue sharing monies on the local level, the Treasury Department this week sent $2.5 billion more to some 38,500 state and local governments.

The funds were the second of two installments covering last year. The first installment, which was mailed last month, totaled $2.65 billion. The $5 billion for 1972 represents about 3.5 per cent of state, county, and city budgets.

When the first monies were mailed, the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, representing more than 100 civil rights groups, said that the hurriedly-issued regulations on use of the funds did not guarantee "that all persons will be able to participate without discrimination in the programs and activities subsidized."

An LCCR spokesman, William Taylor, said, "we're all disturbed that an additional payment is going out without appropriate assurances of non-discrimination. We've lost a provide means by which the federal government can "detect and remedy noncompliance."

According to rules issued by the Department, "no person... shall, on the grounds of race, color, religion, national origin or sex, be excluded from participation in, or denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity funded in whole or in part" with federal revenue sharing monies.

The LCCR, however, maintains the Treasury regulations should outline the specific obligations of state and local governments under the law and Department rules should spell out that funds cannot be used by a community unless it can show that there is in effect a policy of non-discrimination or a plan for ending discrimination. As an example, the LCCR said it wants to be certain that a community would not be able to use federal revenue sharing funds to improve a water treatment plant unless its sewer lines run in black as well as white neighborhoods.

BIBLIOGRAPHY ON SNORING

Often an individual has more interest during his lifetime. Mine has spread from language and speech to that of snoring breathing (snoring) since 1964. I have been gathering information and have prepared a Bibliography on Snoring, Parts I and II.

Bibliography is considered a list of primary and secondary sources from which one may become information in a given subject content area. Bibliography on Snoring, Part I, has eighty-one entries, covering a wide range of interests in the field. If any one wanted to do some research on snoring, this bibliography would be a blessing as a starter.

I had hoped two years ago to start an experimental project on snoring, but acquisition of a place constitutes a problem at the moment. Meanwhile, I have written a second book on snoring to be published in the early part of 1973.

ORIN CAUSES, MEDICAL TREATMENT, AND THERAPY, by Marcus H. Boulware, and published by the American Faculty Press, Inc., 44 Lakeshore Drive, Rockaway, New Jersey 07866. Inquiries concerning this new book should be sent to the publisher, and the approximate date the book will come off the press, and the approximate prices for cloth or paperback.

For my pamphlet, Public Discussion, send two stamps and a long self-addressed envelope to M. H. Boulware, Florida A&M University, Box 193, Tallahassee, Fla. 32307.
