Rev. Jesse Jackson Tells NC Audience

We Must Save Our Schools

US Not Made For One Race

GREENSBORO - The immediate task facing blacks in the nation today, is to save their colleges, the Rev. Jesse Jackson said in a speech here last Monday morning.

At A&T State University, Jackson said, "We can be one tree with many branches and a society of many ethnic groups."

Speaking about the melting pot theory, Jackson said, "If you put people into a pot, they don't melt, they associate." If Brandeis and Yeshiva can go to Jewish colleges, which others can attend and the Catholic colleges can continue, we can justify the continued existence of A&T, Morehouse College and Spellman College, which others can also attend, he said.

Jackson, who was a student civil rights leader while at A&T some years ago, called for more political and economic involvement by blacks.

"We fought the past 15 years to get our rights, but now we have the right to fulfill them," he said.

St. Aug.'s Concludes Opening

Despite the forces of economic recession and confusion, and the all-pervasive problems at our national levels of government, we begin this year with a greater sense of hope and a larger measure of confidence in the ability of St. Augustine's College to survive as a dynamic and viable force of higher education in this country, than ever before in its history.

This is what Dr. Prezell Robinson, president of St. Augustine's College, told his audience at the 107th Formal Opening Convocation, held Oct. 15. He said that "Today, on all fronts, St. Augustine's is crossed increasingly as a national resource rather than a provincial-minded little college."

Housing Freeze 'Illegal'

Expert Appears Before Subcommittee In D. C.

WASHINGTON, D.C. - In an appearance before the House Subcommittee on Housing here last Friday, William R. Morris, NAACP director of housing programs, called President Nixon's freeze on subsidized housing funds as "unjustified and illegal."

"In view of worsening conditions across the nation, and the escalating costs of acquiring adequate shelter," Mr. Morris said that the Congress must "reaffirm and strengthen its resolve to help the disadvantaged and poor."

The NAACP, he said, is "unalterably opposed to the discontinuance of new public housing construction" and "the Federal Government must not abdicate or lessen its responsibility in this area."

Turning in his testimony to the Barrett-Ashley Bill, now being considered by the House of Representatives, Mr. Morris said the bill "represents the kind of progressive legislation that can best achieve the nation's objectives." He went on to list a number of recommendations for consideration.

Among them were: a set-aside program to enable small and minority contractors and housing specialists to compete in the program on a more equitable basis; substantially increase funds for the improvement and expansion of HUD's housing management function; provision of a high-level office of Consumer Protection Services in HUD; establishment of a Federal program for insuring mort-

EDITOR'S NOTE: This column or feature, is produced in the public interest with an aim towards eliminating its contents. Numerous individuals have requested that they be given the consideration of overlooking their listing on the police blotter. This we would like to do. However, it is not our position to judge or jury. We merely publish the facts as we find them reported by the arresting officers. To keep out of the Crime Beat columns, merely means not being registered by a police officer in reporting his findings while on duty. So simply keep off the "blotter" and you won't be in The Crime Beat.

BEATEN WITH STICK
George McDaniels, 44, address unlisted, told Officer H. W. Hagwood at 7:15 p.m. Friday, that he was walking in the 300 block of E. Cabarrus Street when a subject tried to rob him. The man said he then "split the scene," down the street and ran into a pool room, located on the corner of Cabarrus and Bloodworth Streets. "I told the owner what had happened," declared McDaniels. "He came outside with me so I could show him the man and the subject then hit me on my head with a stick and ran." McDaniels said his assailant had on an earring in his right lobe, was wearing a football jersey with the number 32 on it. He said he does know the person's name, but can identify him. He suffered a bruise on the head.

Discussion Of Dropouts At City 'YM'

The second in a series of Public Affairs Forums on the theme, "Preventing High School Dropouts," was held at the Bloodworth St. YMCA on Monday night.

The main speakers for the occasion were R. M. Jewell, principal of Broughton High School, who discussed "School Responsibility" and E. L. Raiford, YMCA executive director, who discussed "Community Responsibility." Ray Gilmore, director of the P.H.D. Program, presided.

In opening remarks, Dr. Jewell inquired as to just what a dropout is and in answer to his own question, stated that students sometime quit school for well-paying jobs and thus find remaining in school unnecessary. In other cases, some students remain in school without showing real interest in education.

Varied programs are offered at the school:

About 60 percent of the students are registered in classes for the average student, other students are

City Council Hopefuls Express District Views

WILLIAM R. KNIGHT EDWARD CARSON

William R. Knight, who is referred to as "Bill Knight," is the director of Public Relations at St. Augustine's College. He lives at 426 Lamont St. in South Raleigh. Mr. Knight is married to the former Nelma "Kaye" Johnson of Sutton, W. Va. They have two daughters, who attend Brooks School. Mr. Knight is 28 years old and the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Knight of Raleigh. He led the field in votes in the Primary, held for District C, and will face Ed Carson in the general election on November 6.

In reaching the decision of seeking the district seat, many of my family members, friends, and associates have given me the courage to file. I wish to thank them for this type of moral support.

My platform will deal with the areas of needs in the City of Raleigh. (See KNIGHT, P. 2)

(Editor's note: Edward Carson, who placed 8th in a seven-man race for the City Council two years ago, is again making the run. His story follows:)

When an individual becomes a candidate for any elected office, he is immediately confronted with the question: What are your views on the issues? My view on the issues is the reason why I am running for the District C City Councilman seat.

I agree with the 1954 Supreme Court's conclusion that "separate but equal" is inherently unequal. This, District C is a living example. It is separate and unequal in many respects when looking at the total city. Therefore, South Raleigh's problems are different from the rest of Raleigh in order to close the progress gap

Pleas Are Made To Save Tupper Memorial Baptist

Mrs. Dorothy N. Allen, chairman of the Woman's Day services on Sunday, October 28, at Tupper Memorial Baptist Church, corner of S. Blount and E. Cabarrus Streets, along with the pastor, members and friends of the historic edifice, have issued desperate pleas to the Raleigh community to respond to its dire financial needs and they are requesting a goal of $5,000 to help rebuild the church, which was founded on February 17, 1866.

Mrs. Allen says to her many friends, "I am trying to get some financial support from all of my friends to help rebuild Tupper. As you know, the Civic Center may soon be in the area, and if Tupper is not renovated it will soon be condemned. I am planning a two-fold effort in having a Woman's Day
