Testimony given by Tommie Lee Goss, who was operating the crane that was used for that purpose, Douglas was on a scaffold that was attempting to hook on to a piece of the ride when he lost his footing and fell to the ground.

3 Blazes Cast Fear Over Area

FAYETTEVILLE - Citizens of both races are quite alarmed over the fact that there seems to be a firebug in the area, jeopardizing life, limb and property. Three fires of undetermined origin really cast a fear over the city, due to the fact that they are reported as having been set simultaneously and affected three different ethnic groups. This gave rise to the fact that they could have deep-seated motivation.

The Saturday night fires were discovered at the home of Mayor Jackson Lee, Masonic Temple, which houses all Prince Hall Mason Lodges and auxiliaries, along with a Chinese restaurant. The fact that each place is located in opposite sections of the city was cause for more concern. There was a rumor that they were set by persons who were attempting to divide the fire-fighting efforts, making it impossible to concentrate on any one, at a given time. The Masonic Temple is said to have suffered the greatest damage. The Mayor's home was reported as being slightly damaged. It was not determined how much damage was done to the restaurant.

The first fire in the area, that had the smell of arson, destroyed everything but the brick walls of St. Andrew AME Zion Church, in nearby Bunn Livin' Community, Oct. 16, about 2:30 p.m. The cause of the fire is still unknown. The damage has been estimated as ranging around $300,000.00.

Officers of the church told THE CAROLINIAN that they (See FIRES HIT, P. 2)
