Bloodworth St. YMCA Buys 16-Acre Tract

The Bloodworth Street YMCA has purchased a 16-acre tract on the Old Garner Road, just south of the Southgate Plaza Shopping Center and plans to relocate from its present location in downtown Raleigh. It has been announced jointly by Dr. Nelson H. Harris, chairman of the Y's board of management, and Ernest L. Sanford, executive director of the Association.

Plans for the new "Y" facility are now being developed by E. N. Edwards of North Hill, chairman of the "Y" new building fund campaign, assisted by Thomas Bradshaw, former mayor and North Hills realtor and on the executive committee of the Bloodworth Street YMCA.

Purchased at a cost of $60,000, the tract of 16 acres has a two acre lake and sufficient space for the "Y" proposed new activities and physical education building, residence hall, parking areas, outdoor playing fields for softball, football, tennis, day camping and nature trails. The lake will furnish the nucleus for a water program to include boating, water safety training, fishing and day camping.

In 1972, the Bloodworth Street "Y" sponsored a capital funds campaign with Mr. Richards of North Hills serving as general chairman and raised approximately $500,000 in cash and pledges payable through 1975. This amount, when added to the proceeds from the sale of its present property composed of a city block of 88,200 square feet, is expected to bring adequate funding for the "Y" expansion program. The present site of the "Y" has been included in the service district of the new city center redevelopment program in downtown Raleigh. The program of services of (See YMCA BUYS, P. 2)

Action Of U. N. Is Criticized

National Black News Service NEW YORK — A leader of South Africa's rising opposition party has criticized the United Nations General Assembly for excluding South Africa from the remainder of this year's Assembly session.

Mrs. Helen Suzman, long the only parliamentary voice of the anti-apartheid Progressive Party, said the U.N. action "may well be counterproductive."

She said it would have been more effective in changing South Africa's restrictive racial policy if the U.N. had "in certain fields outside apartheid" spelled out the changes envisaged and to set out a timetable for implementing them, and then to take action if South Africa failed to follow through.

"To take steps which could lead to a withdrawal from the United Nations, may well accomplish less in the long run than insuring that South Africa stays in the United Nations, accountable to it and under constant pressure to change," she said.

The 52-year-old legislator also termed broad economic boycotts of South African products either "ineffective or counterproductive." She acknowledged, however, that "in certain fields outside apartheid, pressures have been and will continue to be the major factor responsible for change in South Africa."

She objected to boycotts because "not only would black South Africans be adversely affected and the first to lose their jobs, but the major weapon against apartheid, which is economic development, would be blunted."

Mrs. Suzman, in the U.S. to deliver a lecture at Bernard College, was the only representative of her party in the South African Parliament until the Progressive made sharp gains this year at the expense of the Union Party.

Prince Hall Masons Elaborate On Plan

GREENSBORO — Rededicating itself to the credo "No man ever stood so high as when he stooped to raise a boy" the officers and deputies of the N.C. Jurisdiction of Prince Hall Masons, in a 2-day session held here, Dec. 3-4, planned an imposing program to aid the black youth of the state.

Grand Master Herbert Bell Shaw, with the assistance of immediate Past Grand Master Clark Brown, initiated a program for the Knights of Pythagoras, youthful appendage of the order, aimed at improving the moral fiber of boys between the ages of 12 and 18.

special deputies will be set up in the 26 districts to recruit youngsters to join the Knights of Pythagoras. This move is designed to also point out to these boys the (See MASONRY TO, P. 2)

Reform In Welfare To Be Stymied?

BY AUBREY E. ZEPHYR National Black News Service WASHINGTON — Welfare reform that much-talked-about issue — may be stymied in Congress unless President Ford leads the fight by introducing a strong bill.

"Congress is not going to push for it unless the President introduces a bill," a Senate source said. "I wouldn't bet 10 cents that welfare reform would come up during the next year," he said. "The only chance is if the President leads the way," the source added.

But there are still some "ifs" involved. The way it stands now, even if the President assumes leadership, the whole issue could still be blocked by (See REFORM IN, P. 2)

Speaking at St. Augustine's College on Wednesday night, Dec. 5, the Rev. Dr. Leon H. Sullivan, founder and chairman of the Board, OIC's of America, told the students that Americans are finding solutions for their pressing problems through the Opportunities Industrialization Centers.

"I hope for Americans today," he said, "to see how south. The racial stench that we thought was in the south is piling up in the back yards of the north now." he said. "OIC is the largest employer of black administrators and executives in a private program," he stated. There are 250,000 alumni of OIC, who is larger than all of Harvard, Yale and Princeton put together, multi-racial. The program has trained American whites, Mexican American, Indians, Eskimos and Portuguese, in various skills, regardless of where they come from - jail or if they have been on dope.

Dr. Sullivan said that he rarely spoke at colleges. He decided to come to see how students would react. In the past, the goal of the black people was social emancipation, but today, economic emancipation has become the goal. This means that we must massively prepare for job opportunities in the midst of the depression. "Within several years, we will need one thousand workers on the staff of OIC, to be stationed all over the world."

A check for $1,000 from St. Aug.'s was presented to Rev. Sullivan by J. H. Twitty, associate dean of student affairs. Sullivan said that this amount would go into the African Fund for OIC. The students at St. Augustine's College gave Rev. Sullivan a standing ovation at the end of his speech.

The noted minister-organizer was also heard by a vast number of businessmen earlier in the day as an area group was organized to set up an OIC establishment in the Hargett-Wake County area. He received a standing ovation during that appearance, also.
