

Search On For Hampton President

Family Is Given As Cause

DURHAM — J. J. Henderson, chairman, Hampton Institute trustee board, told The CAROLINIAN in a telephone interview, that a search committee would be appointed to find a president to succeed Dr. Roy D. Hudson, who notified the board that he would like to be relieved of presidential duties as of June 30, next.

The chairman said that the committee would be composed of a cross-section of persons interested in the institution — composed of trustees, administrative persons, faculty, students and even parents of students, along with members of the alumni association.

He also said that there would be a screening committee to carefully consider the applicants. (See HAMPTON, P. 2)

Church Delegates Clash

National Black News Service

NAIROBI, Kenya — The World Council of Churches opened its fifth assembly here recently with black and white delegates clashing over political and sectarian issues.

Black African delegates protested West Germany's reported agreement to give South Africa a nuclear capability and led a coalition of developing country delegates in a move to wrest control of the assembly's working committees from Americans and Europeans.

The assembly represents 271 Protestant, Eastern Orthodox, Anglican and Old Catholic denominations with nearly half a billion members in 90 countries.

For the first time in the assembly's 27 year history, delegates from the developing countries of the Third World hold a slight voting edge in the interdenominational organization. "It's quite wholesome," said the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Most Rev. Donald Coggan, the spiritual leader of the Anglican Church. "We don't think in terms of denomination or empire here, but of brotherhood and the wider empire of Christ."

However, Lutheran Bishop Stefano R. Mushi of Tanzania, said, "Our white friends may choose not to support decisions that are made by not making the money available for them," he said. "That's another way of domination - to block decisions by not implementing them, despite the votes. I'm fearful this could happen." (See CHURCH, P. 2)

For Durham B&P Chain

Dr. Burrell To Speak In NC

Director, Others Get All Blame

WASHINGTON — Trying to fully capitalize on gang warfare between black militant groups in the late 1960's, the Federal Bureau of Investigation ordered its field offices to propose "hardhitting" steps and put the Black Panthers against the rival U.S. organization.

"In order to fully capitalize upon BPP and US differences, as well as to exploit all avenues of creating further dissension in the ranks of the BPP," (See FBI IS, P. 2)

Ceremonies Slated In February

DURHAM — Dr. Berkeley G. Burrell, president of the National Business League, will deliver the keynote address on Feb. 20, 1976 at the annual awards banquet of the Durham Business and Professional Chain.

The Durham Business and Professional Chain is an affiliate of the National Business League. A Washington, D.C. native, Burrell attended the district's public schools and Howard University. He is a veteran of World War II and the Korean conflict. The National Business League was founded in 1900 by Booker T. Washington. It is recognized as the nation's foremost national advocate of minority business enterprise and economic development. There are 120 local chartered chapters in 37 states and the District of Columbia, along with 40 affiliate business trade and professional organizations. (See DR. BURRELL, P. 2)

RECOVERING — Boston — Tara James, 3, who narrowly escaped death July 23 as she fell five stories to the ground, when she and her babysitter were standing on a fire escape, which collapsed as they awaited rescue from a burning building, is treated to a visit December 18 to an animal home. The babysitter died in the fall. Behind the child is the fantastic picture made of the fall by Stanley Forman of the Boston Herald-American. (UPI).

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Honored By African Country

National Black News Service

In a ceremony on the lawn of State House, the presidential residence, the Zambian leader presented Coretta King with the medal of the order of grand champion of freedom. Mrs. King came to Zambia with three of her children at the invitation of the United States Information Service to attend the opening of its new cultural center in downtown Lusaka. The center's library is being named after King.

The King family was accompanied by Rep. Andrew Young (D-Ga.), who compared King's doctrine of non-violence with Kaunda's policy of seeking a peaceful solution to the black-white confrontation hanging over Southern Africa. (See DR. KING, P. 2)

Help Of Citizens Is Sought By Police Here

Concerned over the "tremendous increase" in residential and commercial burglaries during the holiday season, the Raleigh Police Department is asking for citizen aid in preventing further burglaries. Major Edgar C. Duke states: "We have recently experienced a tremendous increase in residential and business burglaries. We feel that our citizens can assist the Raleigh Police Department in detecting and apprehending individuals" (See CITIZENS ARE, P. 2)

Birthday Dinner Honors Founder Of History Week

BUCKINGHAM COUNTY, Va. — Very few news reporters were on hand who used to trek to Carter Godwin Woodson's little dimly-lighted office on 11th St., in northwest Washington, were present here Friday, when "Carter Woodson Day" was celebrated by many and revered by whites and blacks, who recognized him as "the Father of Black History," by the study of Afro-American life and history.

The contrast was quite different to what it was on Dec. 19, 1875, when Woodson was born. It was shortly after the war ended and his parents, who knew the servitude of the times, had no idea that they had brought forth a son who would record the history of slaves and hand it down as a legacy. His ambition and stern character took him to the principalship of Washington's Armstrong High School and on to the deanship of the capstone of black education, Howard University. But Buckingham County leaders and busloads of well-wishers from the District of Columbia, gathered Friday at Woodson's birthplace of New

Final Rites Held In Durham For Teacher

Simple but solemn rites were held from St. Joseph A.M.E. Church, Durham, Saturday, 12 Noon, December 20, for Miss Kathryn E. Walker, who has been a member of the area school system for a number of years.

Dr. P. R. Cousins, who was in charge of the rites, told relatives and friends how she had served her community, her church and her profession, without any pomp or splendor, but with the joy of serving.

The deceased came to Durham in the late twenties and attended Hillside High and North Carolina College. While attending school she did part time work with Carolina Times, along with her brother Coleman, and sister, Mrs. Stella V. Austin, wife of the late publisher, L. E. Austin.

She was a native of Muskogee, Ala. Upon coming to Durham, she joined St. Joseph A.M.E. Church, where she served well in her quiet and unassuming way, a member was in the Lincoln Memorial Cemetery, Los Angeles.

Surviving in Durham, along with her sister, Mrs. Austin, is a niece, Mrs. Vivian Edmonds, publisher of the Carolina Times. Other survivors are four sisters: Mrs. E. W. Wells of Chicago and Mrs. Henryetta Lewis, Mrs. Josephine W. Jones and Mrs. Evelyn W. Jackson, all of Los Angeles; and two brothers, Robert W. Walker of Los Angeles and Coleman Walker of Muskogee, Okla.

SAYS CLEAVER IS A "JUDAS" — Oakland, Calif. — Information Minister of the Black Panther Party, Ms. Elaine Brown, branded Eldridge Cleaver, the black militant who returned voluntarily from exile recently, a possible "Judas." She also said the Party "cautions the black community to be on guard against giving support to him until it can be clearly shown that he is not playing the Judas role...in return for his own personal freedom." (UPI).

"For The Best In Electrical Needs"

Black Elected Officials Called Upon To Help From Coalition

WASHINGTON — Dr. Carlton B. Goodlett, president of the National Newspaper Publishers Association - the Black Press of America - called on the black elected officials last week to help form a broad leadership coalition which will work for the creation of a government more sensitive to the needs of the people.

He was addressing the Third National Institute for Black Elected Officials which brought nearly 1,000 office holders here to discuss strategies for expanding black political power and for transforming that power into economic gains.

Goodlett, editor and publisher of the San Francisco Sun-Reporter and a practicing physician, emphasized the role the Black Press can play in helping to marshal black leaders in politics, religion, business, labor, education and fraternal organizations for the forging of a black ideology out of which may develop many "meaningful black agendas." But he pointed out that schisms and division among blacks frustrate united effort. He recalled that in 1972, when he was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention, delegates representing other organized groups were antagonistic to him and others from the Black Press.

Goodlett stated that representatives of the Black Press received similar treatment at the 1974 Mini-Democratic Convention in Kansas City, where the Black Caucus Steering Committee opposed their presence in caucus meetings.

As a result of this unfavorable treatment, Goodlett said the organized Black Press will demand at the next Democratic National Convention, that political office holders be limited to one-third of the number of any Black Caucus Steering Committee.

Further, Dr. Goodlett said that most black officials - elected and appointed - gain their posts with the help of the Black Press. Yet, he said, many of them forget that press as soon as they are in office.

The black church and the Black Press are the two most powerful instruments in black America, Goodlett pointed out. Back in 1827, he said, when the first black newspaper, Freedom's Journal, was founded, "John B. Russwurm set this as his task: 'It shall ever be our duty to vindicate our brethren when oppressed, and to lay the cure before the public!'"

Goodlett, who also holds a Ph.D. in psychology from the University of California, added that "Democracy is a system of becoming. The black Press," he continued, "must never allow the white majority to forget that there are inequalities and injustices to be removed. And it must never permit the blacks, including the educated 10th, to forget that there is a nation of 25 million blacks to be saved from the ravages of racism."

FACES MARIJUANA RAP — San Juan, P.R. — Former National League star Orlando Cepeda (73 photo) was indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of possessing 165 pounds of marijuana. The U.S. District Court reported Dec. 18. (UPI).
