

Could Become Episcopal Coadjutor

Fr. Calloway Nominated For Bishopric

THE REV. DR. JESSE LOUIS JACKSON, National director of Operation PUSH (People United To Save Humanity), aroused shouting, cheering and standing ovations among some 3,800 persons as he addressed the 1978 class of seniors at St. Augustine's College on the college quadrangle at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, May 14. Push For Rights: Jackson

BY CHARLES R. JONES
Managing Editor
Speaking before an audience of 3,800 persons, including 263 graduating seniors, on the college quadrangle as rain threatened to come pouring down any minute, the fiery young graduate of N. C. A&T State University at Greensboro, told the shouting and cheering crowd that, "We must push for full equality and equal rights."

Speaking on the subject, Push for Excellence Against the Odds, Jackson, who holds 23 honorary doctorate degrees from colleges and universities across the United States, admonished his listeners to seek greatness, saying "The crowd may love you and give you a doctor's degree, but the crowd cannot give you the knowledge of a doctor."

He continued, "We are in the fourth quarter of this football game and we are behind. We won't catch up by arguing with the referees, claiming that we used to have our ankles chained, because the referees were the ankle-chainers."

"Free the Wilmington Ten or lock up the Watergate Ten, who are making millions of dollars writing books about their crooked deeds," said the associate minister of a Chicago Baptist church.

One of the most hard-hitting and poignant statements that Jackson made was when he (See DR. JACKSON, P. 2)

Get Love Of God: Dr. Wolfe

Dr. Deborah Partridge Wolfe, professor of education, Queens University, New York, was the speaker for the 113th convocation for conferral of degrees at Shaw University, Sunday, May 14.

The commencement exercises were held in the Raleigh Civic Center, which was almost filled to capacity as 229 graduating seniors received their diplomas.

Dr. Wolfe told the graduating class to find "a love of God and a love of education. If you've got that, you've got it all," she said.

Dr. Wolfe spoke to the students on the "7 Lamps of Education," a paradox to Ruskin's "Seven Lamps of Architecture." She named these 7 lamps as truth, memory, sacrifice, obedience, power, beauty, and life, and urged them to follow these principles.

"Seek ye the truth, for the truth shall set you free," said Dr. Wolfe, "because truth is the fundamental element and law of life." Trust is the first object of education.

Relating to memory, Dr. Wolfe told the graduating seniors "not to forget their racial heritage." She related "that there were Hebrew slaves in Egypt long before slavery in America, and that 'these Africans' were our ancestors."

Dr. Wolfe also illustrated the principles of the other "lamps (See DR. WOLFE, P. 2)

DR. DEBORAH PARTRIDGE WOLFE, professor of education at Queens College, New York, N. Y., told the graduating class of 1978 at Shaw University last Sunday to "find a love of God and a love of understanding as she devoted the 113th convocation for the conferral of degrees. (See story)

Wage Gap Is Narrowing

Findings Released By Pair

National Black News Service
SANTA MONICA, Calif.—The wage gap between white workers and black workers in the United States has narrowed in recent years, two Rand Corp. economists reported recently.

For men, the gains have been gradual, but significant; for women "persistent and dramatic," according to James P. Smith and Finis R. Welch, authors of the two reports. The study was funded by a grant from the Social Sciences Division of the National Science Foundation (NSF).

Using past reports as well as the most recently available census data, the economists found that in 1947 black men were earning half the wages of white men. By 1975 that ratio had reached nearly three-quarters, with the largest gains occurring in the 1960s and early 1970s.

On the other hand, black women in 1947 were earning only one-third the wages of white women. However by 1975, their earnings were nearly equal — within a fraction of a percentage point of their white counterparts.

Civic Center To Be Rally Scene

CHARLOTTE — Kelly M. Alexander, president of the N. C. State Conference of NAACP Branches, announced recently that Benjamin L. Hooks, national executive director of the NAACP, would be the guest speaker at 3:30 p.m., at the Raleigh Civic Center, 500 Fayetteville Street Mall, June 18, for the annual Freedom Fund Celebration and the Mother of the Year contest.

The celebration, usually held on Mother's Day is being held on Father's Day this year. It should also be noted that the place has been changed from the Raleigh Auditorium to the new Civic Center. This will be Hooks' first appearance at the event. It is the hope of Mr. Alexander that it will be the largest ever held.

The affair is the crowning point in the organization's program of the fight for full freedom. Mothers, representing branches from throughout the state, will report monies raised to finance the cause of freedom. Two mothers will be crowned queen and receive and all-expense trip to the national (See NAACP'S HOOKS, P. 2)

Victim Advocate Says Her Job Is Rewarding

BY CHARLES R. JONES
Managing Editor

Mrs. Joyce Williams, Raleigh's only victim advocate, working to aid those who have been on "the short end of the stick" in criminal activities, says she enjoys her work and finds it very stimulating and rewarding.

Mrs. Williams works with the Raleigh Police Department in a unique manner. While the cops are out doing their jobs in catching "crooks," she works to help the victims, especially following violent criminal activity.

The mother of a 3-year-old son, Mrs. Williams is the wife of Paul Williams, a local statistician, who was transferred here from Athens, Ga., two and one-half years ago.

She began her duties in January of this year, following an almost two-year stint as a social worker at the Murdock Center in Butler.

Referring to her new position, Mrs. Williams told a newsmen last week, "When I first applied, this job sounded like a challenge and I liked the idea of a human resources (helping agency) coming out of a police department, especially in terms of giving aid to victims of crimes." (See ADVOCATE, P. 2)
