

'Mother, Son 'Set Me Up' For Neglect' Charges Untrue: J. Allen

Charges Untrue: J. Allen

BY CHARLES R. JONES
Managing Editor
Trouble, of one kind or another, seems to hang around 30-year-old Mrs. Joan Allen, 820 Ellington St., this city, like the proverbial "white on rice." Now, the young maid, who was fired from a custodial job at the North Gastner Junior High School, by her white principal, G. B. Casby, is being allegedly charged by her own mother, Mrs. Mary Rowland, 541 E. Jones St., and her 12-year-old son, with child neglect "because I punished my son when he became unruly, attacked me and challenged my authority," said Mrs. Allen. The trial, originally scheduled for July 26, has been deferred until Wednesday, Aug. 2, at 9:30 a.m.

Response Overwhelming To New Editor And Publisher

Response has been overwhelming in favor of the editorial, "Dedicated To The Spirit Of Jesus Christ," appearing on Page One of the last edition of THE CAROLINIAN. Many readers have been fervent in their praise of the new spiritual Editor and Publisher of this publication, Jesus Christ, through whose guidance and spirit we hope to operate, to better serve our readers and advertisers, according to Charles R. Jones, managing editor of the newspaper and other staff members. THE CAROLINIAN deeply appreciates this show of awareness on the part of its reading public and, once again, dedicates its facilities and the use of its personnel to this just cause.

REGGIE SAYS HE'S IDOL OR MONSTER — Quote of the day is by Yankees' superstar Reggie Jackson, contrite over his suspension. "I'm sorry for the grief I've caused the rest of the guys. I'm a pain in the butt to them...I'm an idol or a monster - hated or loved." Jackson is shown in photo taken July 23. Billy Martin, Yankee manager, resigned Monday. Some say it had to do with the unpredictable Jackson. (UPI)

ACCUSED IN NATION'S 'BIGGEST WELFARE FRAUD' — Los Angeles — Mrs. Barbara Williams, accused of using 7 different names and claiming 34 dependent children to pull off the biggest welfare fraud in the nation's history, arrives at court July 25 to face arraignment. Mrs. Williams, 33, who allegedly drove her Cadillac from her $170,000 home to the welfare office for 7 years to pick up support payments, faces 10 counts of grand theft and 4 counts of perjury in the alleged $290,000 swindle. Wake Drug Action Needs Volunteers

BY FRANCES GRANDY
Staff Writer
Drug Action of Wake County needs open-minded and compassionate area residents to serve as volunteers for the "Crisis Line," where persons with drug-related problems can call for confidential counseling or answers to questions.
Drug Action of Wake County is a private non-profit drug treatment program funded by state, federal and local funds, and is the only program of its kind in the area.
Volunteers will receive comprehensive training in counseling and drug identification. Persons applying need only have a professional attitude, a willingness to learn, and the ability to talk with people with lifestyles and values that may be different from their own and not be judgmental. Working with the center could provide ideal practical experience for sociology or psychology students and can be a stepping stone to careers for those interested in health, social services or criminal justice.

More '10' Members Paroled

The North Carolina Parolees Commission announced Monday, that three more members of the Wilmington 10 will be paroled this week.

James McKov, 25, Willie Earl Vereen, 24, and Jerry Jacobs, 25, will be released from New Hanover prison unit. They were convicted in 1972 on charges connected with the burning of a white-owned store, during racial violence in Wilmington. Their sentences ranged from 20 to 29 years.

The Rev. Ben Chavis, has been granted study release, says Walter L. Kautzky, assistant director of prisons. He has been assigned to a Hillsborough prison facility, so that he can pursue further study towards a master of divinity degree.

Secretary of the N. C. Department of Corrections, Amos E. Reed said Rev. Chavis had been granted study release. (See MORE '10', P. 2)

Wray Is CETA's Problem

Lawrence E. Wray, Raleigh's black intergovernmental coordinator, has, for the past few months, been involved in a controversy over the administration of a huge job training program, funded through the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA). He is the highest salaried member of his race, now working in city government.

Mr. Wray's efforts to control the CETA program, has caused some of his former and current staff members to question his ability to run the program.
When Wray, a graduate of St. Augustine's College in Raleigh, first took the position as the city's intergovernmental coordinator in 1975, his first duty was to keep a close watch on the spending of CETA aid, which since that time, has grown from $2 million in 1974, to more than $7 million last year. Last fall, he had the job of overseeing a $2 million-a-year community development program added to his other responsibilities.

The controversy that Wray is involved in, seemed to start in April when he suspended W. Ames Christopher, CETA manpower administrator, for eight days, after Christopher had written a memo to City Manager Lawrence P. Zachary, Jr., which was critical of Wray. Christopher's memo stated that tremendous racial overtones existed in the CETA office.

Wray had a plan to reorganize the regional CETA staff and under this plan, (See WRAY IS, P. 2)

Sansom New Bank Head

Raleigh Resident Promoted

Joseph James Sansom, Jr., senior vice president and Raleigh's city executive of Mechanics and Farmers Bank, has been named president of the bank. Sansom succeeds John Hervey Whesler, who died recently. Besides the elevation of Sansom to the presidency of the bank, Mechanics and Farmers' board of directors changed four other top bank positions.

J. W. Goodloe was elected vice chairman of the board of directors; Jesse B. Anglin, Jr., senior vice president, was named executive vice president of the bank and was named to the board; Mrs. Julia Wheeler Taylor, vice president and manager of the Raleigh offices, was named senior vice president and a member of the board. Mrs. Taylor was also appointed Raleigh's city executive officer for the bank. Mrs. Vivian R. Patterson, vice president and corporate secretary, was named assistant trust officer. Ralph E. Campbell, president of the association, presided. He welcomed the group and stated that there (See R-WCA IN, P. 2)

Appreciation Check Won By Ms. Young

Miss Mabel Young, of 1104 Spaulding St., was the sole winner of last week's Appreciation Money Feature. Miss Young picked up her check for $10 from Raleigh FCX Service, 301 W. Carbarus St.

Two people failed to check the advertisements on the back page of the front section and lost their chance to win $10. Mrs. Florrie Jones, of 642 S. Boundary St., did not pick up her check from Jewelry and Things, 1913 Poole Road, and H. R. Speller, Jr., 3000 Gumtree Ct., did not claim his check for $10 dollars from Harley Davidson, 1126 S. Saunders St.

This week, there are three new names in the advertisements on the back page of the front section. Study the page carefully because this week your name may be on it!

Female Soldier Victim

FORT BRAGG — Lonnie Griffin, a Fort Bragg paratrooper, will go before the Harnett County grand jury Aug. 14 for indictment in the alleged raping of a 22-year-old female paratrooper in the southern part of Harnett County, the old farm area, on June 30.

Griffin, a native of Jacksonville, Fla., has been held in the Harnett County jail since June 30. There has been an increase in rapes in Southern Harnett County since November of 1977, according to Strickland's Detrick William Strickland. Strickland further stated that there had been 6 reported rapes since November, and said all had been brought to trial, or will be brought to trial, but one. The detective said he feels there has been more than 6, but because of various reasons, they were not reported. (See G.I. HELD, P. 2)

Raleigh's Judge G. Greene Tells Group 'Where He's Coming From'

BY CHARLES R. JONES
Managing Editor
Leaving no doubt in the minds of any of his listeners as to "where he was coming from" at the Raleigh Civic Center last Thursday night, Wake County District Court Judge George Royster Greene, Sr., addressed a small gathering of members and persons interested in OAR (Ostender Aid and Restoration).

The jurist, who had been a practicing attorney here for 17 1/2 years, prior to his appointment to the bench as the first of two blacks, has been criticized by some of his peers and labeled as a "maverick" or "rebel" judge because of some of his compassionate rulings in cases where defendants were either unable to post excessive bonds or, in Greene's opinion, "could not afford to serve time in jails because they had family obligations to meet."

Addressing a gathering of the OAR board of directors at 8 p.m. Thursday, Judge Greene said, "After studying other attorneys and judges in the judicial system, I saw a chance to help work with people. I decided to run for the office of District Court Judge, but lost the first time. However, six years later, I finally got my wish and became a judge. I

MRS. JOAN ALLEN ...charged by mother, son

Mrs. Allen, who is now working regularly at another job, said the incident took place last Monday afternoon when she came home from her job. She said the boy, who is the eldest of her quintet, and almost 13, became unruly and "broke bad at me, so I hit him with my fist. He then ran to his grandfather's house on Jones St. (See MOTHER AND, P. 2)

CRIME BEAT

EDITOR'S NOTE: This column or feature is produced in the public interest with an aim towards eliminating its contents. Numerous individuals have requested that they be given the consideration of overlooking their listing on the police blotter. This would like to do, however, it is not our position to be judge or jury. We merely publish the facts as we find them reported by the arresting officers. To keep out of the Crime Beat column, merely means not being registered by a police officer in reporting his findings while on duty. So simply keep off the "blotter" and you won't be in The Crime Beat.

BUSTED FOR DUPE
Police arrested Burnice Lee Wilson, 30, of 780 Kendall Circle, in the 1800 block of Fayetteville Rd. and charged him with possession of marijuana at 6:40 a.m. Saturday.

BREAKS AND ENTERS
Patrick Henry Dunn, 21, of 1334 Holmes St., was arrested and charged with breaking and entering at 12:45 a.m. Sunday, when he allegedly broke a window and entered the home of Mrs. Virginia Ann Dunn, 21, 805 E. Lane St., and stole $5 worth of valuables.

ROBBERY CHARGED
Rbvant's Sweet Shop, 524 S. Swain St., was burglarized Monday at 7:15 a.m., when an unknown assailant entered the premises through a boarded up window and took merchandise valued at $31.30. (See CRIME BEAT, P. 2)

WARDEN LOOKS OVER DAMAGE AFTER RIOTING, DEATHS — Pontiac, Ill. — Pontiac State Penitentiary Warden Thaddeus Pinkney looks over damage to laundry building July 23 that was gutted by fire set by rioting prisoners on July 22. Some 600 rioting prisoners, armed with knives and guns, stabbed three guards to death, injured three more and set fires in the general stores area. Damage to the facility is estimated at about $3 million. A spokesman said all the prison's 2,000 inmates have been locked up indefinitely. (UPI)

WEATHER

The five-day weather forecast for the period Wednesday, July 25, through Sunday, July 29, is as follows: Partly cloudy skies remained over the state Wednesday and are expected to prevail on Thursday. They are accompanied by afternoon and evening thundershowers. High temperatures will range from the mid to upper 80s, with slightly cooler readings in the N. C. mountains. Lows will be in the 70s. The extended forecast calls for continued summer like weather Friday through Sunday, with a chance of showers on Friday and Saturday. Highs are expected to be mostly in the upper 80s, with lows in the upper 60s in the mountains and the low 70s elsewhere in the state.
