Head Of Caucus In Theory Rejection

National Black News Service WASHINGTON, D. C. — Congressman Parren J. Mitchell (D-Md.), a leader of the Congressional Black Caucus, has attacked the traditional economic theory, called the Phillips Curve, which justifies high rates of unemployment as an anti-inflation policy.

Mitchell called the theory "an archaic and specious justification for the basic structural deficiencies of the American economy."

As chairman of the Subcommittee on Domestic Monetary Policy of the House Banking, Currency and Housing Committee, Mitchell said the American economy is capable of sustaining long-term growth with low rates of inflation and with full employment if the country has a carefully planned monetary fiscal mix.

Mitchell's recommendations include a reduction in the growth of the money supply by the Federal Reserve System in combination with programs targeting skill development, training and employment to correct the problem of structural unemployment. Such a policy, he said, would reduce present inflation and prevent inflation in the future.

Mom, 32, 'At End Of Rope'

BY CHARLES R. JONES

Mrs. Rosalind McKay is a 32-year-old attractive mother of 9 children - 6 daughters and 3 sons - the oldest of which is only 10 years of age. Mrs. McKay and her family face eviction from their 5-room home at 1129 Harp St. (near Halifax Court Apartments, off W. Peace St.), this week. The New York City native is distraught and "at the end of my rope" here in Raleigh.

Mrs. McKay, who has been separated from her husband for several years, said she came to Raleigh on April 1, 1978, "because a male friend of mine, who is also the father of some of my children, told me how nice the South is. He also promised to marry me."

Although she admits to having a total monthly income of $464, Mrs. McKay said that her bills are so many that, "I don't have anything left to even buy my kids decent clothes."

She received a notice to vacate her present premises by Adams and Terry Realty Co., Hillsborough St., and was given until Tuesday of this week to do so. However, at a planned hearing before eviction authorities, a Mr. Warner, who represents the realty firm, was unable to be on hand, so the eviction hearing was postponed until Wednesday, Aug. 23, at 9 a.m.

Brutality Findings Coming?

BY CHARLES R. JONES

Mr. and Mrs. George Wade Flagg, Sr., 2510 Bedford Ave., went down to the office of the magistrate of Wake County District Court Tuesday afternoon. Their purpose was to swear out and sign assault and battery warrants against three white policemen (including one female cop) and two white humane officers. Their requests were denied by Magistrate A. L. Garner, it is alleged.

Raleigh Chief of Police Robert E. Goodwin informed this writer Tuesday afternoon that no final action had been taken on an internal investigation of the 5 officers involved, but he, along with Major Edgar C. Duke, assured us that a finding should be available on Thursday of this week.

MR. AND MRS. G. W. FLAGG ...could not sign warrant

The Flaggs said they went to the office of the magistrate, in the basement of the Wake County Courthouse Building, and that "our names had been something we were not supposed to sign anything," stated Mrs. Mildred Evelyn Flagg, the wife.

Tax Credit May Up

Jim Crow
National Black News Service WASHINGTON, D. C. — A Johns Hopkins University study has suggested that a federal tax credit for private school tuition would increase school segregation in the nation's largest cities.

The study cited Washington where 37 percent of all white students were enrolled in private and parochial schools in 1960, and where 47 percent of whites are in such schools now.

Study director, Henry Bacon, said that "the study indicates that the tax credit would increase the number of white students in private and parochial schools, which provides for the election of a new president within 90 days.

Suit Left Near Garbage Pickup

BY J. B. HARREN
ROCKY MOUNT — Alexander Evans is a Rocky Mount sanitation worker (garbage collector), who has been adjudged guilty of stealing a suit of old clothes and other items left within a few feet of the garbage can on his route.

Evans' conviction came after a tumultuous period of about 6 weeks, during which time some 38 Negro fellow-garbage men, in sympathy with Evans, struck the City of Rocky Mount a total of 4 times, being rehired after a firing for the first striking incident, when they failed to return to their jobs within the time named by City Manager William H. Batchelor. They were rehired though.

This case has been very mute insofar as newspaper publicity has been concerned. It seems the person hired for the job was Ernestine Leach, who was picked by Wray.

Broxie J. Nelson, attorney for Mrs. Cummings, said he would ask that she be given between $1,000 to $2,000 in back salary, a raise, and promotion based upon what her status would have been had she been given the promotion last year. He also said that he would ask for attorney's fees, compensation for expenses in preparing the appeal, compensation for vacation time taken by Mrs. Cummings to work on the case, attorney's fees in case the city appeals the ruling, and other expenses.

After the commission's decision, Thomas A. McCormick, city attorney, said that he would meet with city manager L. P. Zachery, Jr. before deciding whether to appeal the decision or how to respond to the request for written arguments on a remedy, while Wray declined to comment to reporters concerning the decision. (See CITY AND, P. 2)

Kenyans Mourn Jomo; First, Only President

NAIROBI, Kenya — President Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya, died in his sleep early Wednesday. He led Kenya to independence 15 years ago and presided over them ever since.

A government news bulletin said Kenyatta died at the State House in Mombasa, a coastal resort. He was believed to be in his 80s, although he did not know his age.

It appears that Kenyatta might have sensed his death was close at hand, although there were no indications that his health was failing, because last week he held a family reunion, a custom often enacted by elderly members of the Kikuyu tribe who tear their lives are nearly over.

He was reported to have been in a happy mood by photographers who covered the occasion.
