

Two FSU Profs Set Grad Work

FAYETTEVILLE — Under a new program established by the Board of Governors of The University of North Carolina, two Fayetteville State University professors will pursue doctoral studies. The two named were Ms. Valeria Fleming and Ms. Marye Jeffries.

Ms. Fleming serves as Assistant to the Provost and Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs. She also directs the Summer School and the Weekend College. She has also served as chairperson of the Division of Physical and Life Sciences.

Ms. Jeffries is an Assistant Professor of Education and director of the Pre-School Laboratory.

Both will pursue the Ph.D. degree at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Ms. Fleming's field of study will be Biology and Ms. Jeffries will study Early Childhood Education and Education Administration. Both will be on leave for one year beginning January 1, 1979.

Out of sixty nominations made by Chancellors of the UNC system, seventeen scholars were selected. Fifteen are black and two are white. Four of the blacks are from predominantly white institutions and the two whites are from predominantly black institutions. Nine scholars (three from each campus) were selected from North Carolina Central University, North Carolina State University, and Winston-Salem State University. Four scholars (two from each campus) were selected from Fayetteville State University and Elizabeth City State University. Other schools represented in the program are Appalachian State University, UNC-Wilmington, East Carolina University and UNC-Charlotte, each having one scholar in the program.

The program was established to allow selected faculty members in the UNC system to pursue doctoral studies. The program will also meet the cost of appointing faculty to replace those individuals on leave. The program gives priority to qualified faculty members in the traditionally black institutions because of the ratio of faculty having the doctorate and because of the national shortage of blacks holding the doctoral degree.

This program was recommended in "The Comparative Study of the Five Historically Black Constituent Institutions of the University of North Carolina" and in the revised State Plan-Phase II, Supplement Statement II of "The Plan to Eliminate Racial Duality." $2,000,000 was allocated to fund the program for 1978-79. The January, 1979 entrants will be the first participants in the program.

Luther Horton Built His Own Home, Near City

Luther Horton, husband of Mrs. Olive Perry Horton, celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday on Oct. 22. A birthday dinner, in his honor, was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Rody Perry of Wake Forest and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Taylor of Zebulon.

Mr. and Mrs. Horton live near Raleigh on the Louisburg Highway, near St. Matthew Baptist Church, where he is a trustee.

The nine-room home, with two baths, an all-round porch, Mr. Horton built by himself from the ground up, during eleven years of work on the home. Mr. Horton was the carpenter, bricklayer, mortar mixer, and a jack-of-all-trades. His goal was to have a mortgage-free home when the finishing touches were made. He succeeded, although Mrs. Horton said it often seemed like eternity. In 1955, Mr. Horton began his labor. In 1964, it was completed. The Hortons are retired and are enjoying the fruits of their labor.

Mrs. Horton is the daughter of Arthur Perry and the late Mrs. Ada Perry. Mr. Horton is the brother of the Rev. Avery Horton, former pastor of Zebulon First Baptist Church.

manager of Atlanta's famed seventy three story, Peachtree Plaza Hotel, was feted at a reception in the Plaza Ballroom by civic business, political and educational leaders. Jesse Hill, president of the Chamber of Commerce, in introducing Bryant, told the guests that Atlanta was fortunate in having one of Western International Hotels' top executives join Atlanta's thriving business community. Bryant, a 28-year veteran of Western International Hotels came to Atlanta from the prestigious Los Angeles Century Plaza Hotel, where he served as general manager. Greeting Bryant, from left are: Larry Alexander, director of rooms division, Peachtree Plaza; Bryant; Coretta Scott King and Jesse Hill.

Harlem's Changing Image Promoted

NATIONAL BLACK NEWS SERVICE NEW YORK, N.Y. — Harlem is known as one of the forbidden zones in the city with the psychological barriers that have separated it from the "outside" being partially rooted in the fear of street crime.

However, now Harlem is trying to change all that. The Uptown Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring an effort to welcome outsiders in the belief that this will benefit the downtrodden area, far more than a new government program. One of the chamber's major efforts will be the publication of a tourist map and brochure, pinpointing about 70 things to do and see.

"This is the first tourist map of Harlem in 56 years," says William Rogers, the chamber's program director. However, he pointed out that tourism isn't the main issue here, but "economic development."

"Rather than starting a new federal program that costs a lot of money, we've packaged what is already here... the landmarks, night spots, the museums."

The hope is that tourism could lessen outsiders' bad feelings about Harlem and rebuild residents' pride. But Rogers also thinks that new outside interest would force the city to increase their services.

There is evidence that outside interest is there, as Harlem is famous worldwide. A recent survey found it the best-known neighborhood to non-New Yorkers, with Greenwich Village second.

Each layer of this Cranberry Mold is delicious; together they are spectacular. Bright, clear raspberry gelatin and raspberry gelatin mixed with cranberries are layered on both sides of a luscious cream cheese mixture. Evaporated milk makes the center layer extra rich and creamy. Serve this attractive mold at holiday time or to make any occasion special.

LAYERED CRANBERRY MOLD
(Makes 6-cup mold)

2 packages (3 ounces each) raspberry flavored gelatin
2 cups boiling water
1 1/4 cups cold water
3/4 cup sugar
1 package (8 ounces) softened cream cheese

1 cup undiluted Carnation Evaporated Milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon (1 envelope) unflavored gelatin
3/4 cup ground fresh cranberries

Dissolve raspberry gelatin in boiling water. Stir in 1 cup cold water. Pour 1 1/4 cups raspberry gelatin into 6-cup mold; chill until slightly firm. Reserve remaining gelatin; do not chill. Beat 3/4 cup sugar and cream cheese until creamy. Gradually add evaporated milk and vanilla. Soften unflavored gelatin in remaining 1/4 cup cold water in small saucepan. Heat until gelatin is dissolved. Blend into cheese mixture. Carefully spoon mixture over raspberry gelatin in mold. Chill until slightly firm. Add remaining 1/4 cup sugar and cranberries to reserved raspberry gelatin; stir until blended. Carefully pour mixture over cheese layer. Chill until firm. Unmold onto serving plate.
