most gullible prey for the with had specific questions, Wintershaven, vicious tactics of criminal elements, which range from con artists to brutal crimes of theft and murder. These senior citizens and children are the least defensive against hoodlumism and fang and claw mentality.

On April 2, a quiet neighborhood in Southeast Raleigh was disrupted by the brutal murder of retired Wake County School principal, Garland L. Crews. The 74-year-old educator was found in his the motive as robbery. The assailant, perhaps, still on the prowl

Recently, the police found a partially decomposed body in the Neuse River. They believe the remains 50 years ago, youngsters trail to connect various are those of 62-year-old from the Chavis Heights areas of the city together.

Robert Lane. Lane has been area would frequent what Greenway planner Art missing since Feb. 14. He was then called, "that little was last seen by Dorothy swimming hole." Lane at her home, 902 E. Martin St. "We don't suspect any foul play," Police Lt. B. W. Peoples said in an interview. "We ally named Little Rock—has are not sure about the cause vanished. Today, construcof death.'

programs to help senior der way. City officials are citizens protect themselves expecting construction to be from becoming victims of completed by mid-May. crimes in the home and elsewhere. Gene English, community services consultant for the Wake tin and Hargett streets, has find themselves victims of don't have a program resources."

crime in this society. Along specifically for that, but if Ms. Sharon Graham, have been discussing the older, and they have a set with children they are the someone we are working residence manager of elderly and crime with way of doing things." an Officer E. Williams of the

From CAROLINIAN Staff Reports Council Department of we would handle it one-on-apartment complex for Raleigh Police Department.

Senior citizens too often Social Services said "We one and explore the senior citizens at 500 E. I was concerned, because all Hargett St., said "recently I our tenants are 62-years and

(See ELDERLY, P. 2)

HE CAROLINIAN

NC's Semi-Weekly DEDICATED TO THE SPIRIT OF JESUS CHRIST

VOL. 43, NO. 37

RALEIGH, N.C., MONDAY, APRIL 9, 1984

SINGLE COPY 25c ELSEWHERE 30¢

closet, beaten to death. The house was ransacked and the police has established the motive as robbery. The

Little Rock Trial Design

BY YVETTE D. RUFFIN

In the summertime, about

Since that time, the kids have grown up, Chavis Heights has changed and the little swimming hole—actution on a park to be dubbed There are various Little Rock Trail, is well unan open field between Mar- ster. "I think the deepest been designed under a program to protect the city's floodway system and as a Chard explained that Little Rock Trail will eventually extend to Chavis Heights.

Joseph Winters, a retired city police officer, said he thought the old swimming hole was called Little Rock because of the many rocks surrounding it. "It was a natural hole in the branch that ran down in that area.

Remembering the swimming hole, businessman Robert Umstead said he fre-The park, constructed in quented it often as a young-

FIGHTING SCHOOL PRAYER-Mobile, Ala.—Ishmael Jaffree of Mobile poses with his children, from left, Makeba (10), Jamael Aakkl (11), and Chioke Saleem (8) in a picture made April 4. More than two years ago the 40-year-old Jaffree, an F. Edley, president of the agnostic, filed suit against three Mobile school teachers after United Negro College Fund. he discovered his children were oraying in school. Jaffree "Foremost among these challenged Alabama's law allowing teacher-led prayer and volunteers and supporters won in the U.S. Supreme Court. (UPI)

Challenges Of The '80s Met By UNCF Alumni quainting the public with the been dependent upon the

What do opera diva Leontyne Price, singer-composer historically black colleges Lionel Richie, Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young and Pulitzer Prize winning author Alice Walker have in common? Each is an alumnus of one of the United Negro College Fund's 42 col es and universities.

All over the United States, black college graduates, alumni and students are making contributions to their communities, black higher education, and the nation. This was evident in contribute funds to UNCF February when more than and its member institutions. 2.000 UNCF students and alumni gathered in Greens-Alumni Council convention.

The National Alumni million to the United Negro Council, a UNCF-chartered organization founded in 1946, is committed to ac-value and contributions of support of black college and their alumni, and to stimulating an interest among black college alumni in the UNCF.

The National Pre-Alumni Council, headed by Samuel up of students currently councils. attending UNCF's colleges and universities.

During the past decade, UNCF's alumni and preboro for UNCF's National alumni organizations have for February 1985 in contributed more than $5 Washington.

College Fund. "The United Negro College Fund has always graduates and their friends," said Christopher are the members of UNCF's

Each year, the National convenes its annual Alumni and Pre-Alumni convention, it is joined by Alumni and Pre-Alumni councils, which work in unison with the NAC. The next convention is scheduled

> "Historically black colleges must face the challenges of the '80s," said (See ALUMNI, P. 2)

DeShazior, a senior at Clark College in Atlanta, is made inter-alumni and pre-alumni White Comments Each year when the On King's Death

Councils raise money and members of the InterDr. Martin Luther King, Jr., one of the civil rights leaders of the 1960s, was killed by an assasin's bullet in Memphis, Tenn., 16 years ago.

"The struggle which he fought in is not over," said the Rev. Leon White, director of the Commission For Racial Justice. "Dr. King left an example for us to follow. He showed us the way to achieve victory.

King was the president of the Southern Leadership Conference and a winner of the Nobel Peace Prize in 1964. He led the struggle for desegregation of public facilities and schools in the South. "His death was a tradegy," White said. "If anyone struggles for justice, he will die.

White said blacks in the United States are not better now (See COMMENTS, P. 2) tege of the late Sister Gary.

BY JOHN HINTON

Muriel Dunn is a pro-

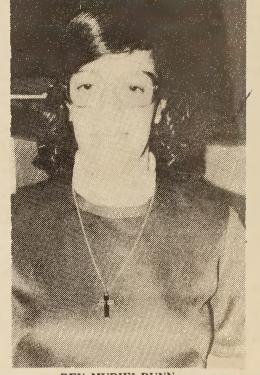

"She was like an aunt to me," she said. "She was easy to talk to and down to earth. She gave me a lot of support."

Rev. Dunn, 49, is an assistant pastor at the Weslevan First Church of Deliverance, 1201 Boyer St., which was founded by Rev. Mabel Gary Philpott, better known to the Raleigh community as "Sister Gary." The religious leader died about four years ago. "Being assistant pastor is just great," Ms. Dunn said. "It's a large portion of my life. I am dedicated to the ministry. I have the assurance I am doing God's will for me."

Ms. Dunn preaches every second Sunday and serves as a church trustee. She is a deaconess and superintendent of the Sunday School and teaches its junior and senior classes. Ms. Dunn is also an ordained elder. See PROFILE, P. 2)

Profile Of A Pastor

REV. MURIEL DUNN

Tornado Twists Destructive Path Tearful Memories Linger

WINSTON-SALEM — As he called on stores March 28, Atlanta salesman James McDougald noticed the "bad-looking clouds" that gathered and moved swiftly overhead. But he didn't give them a second thought Hours later at home, McDougald received a call from an aunt in Maxton. As she tried to describe the destruction of his childhood home by a series of tornadoes, his thoughts turned to his grandmother and eight relatives living in the home.

"All sorts of bad thoughts went through my mind," recalled McDougald, an area sales representative with R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. "I remember bad thunderstorms there when I was growing up, but it always seemed that South Carolina got it worse than we did.'

But this time, Maxton and nearby Red

Springs were not spared the death and destruction from the tornadoes that struck along a 260-mile strip through North and South Carolina.

Images of destruction and the faces of his loved ones flashed repeatedly through his head as McDougald drove for what seemed like an eternity between Atlanta

"I began to see traces of the devastation as I neared Laurinburg and all the way to Maxton," said McDougald. "When I saw Maxton, it looked like a testing site for Abombs. Everything was leveled; thingswashing machines, water heaters, refrigerators, cars-were strewn all over the

As he pulled down the street where his home once sat. he was struck by the (See TORNADO, P. 2)

SUFFERING TORNADO AFTERMATH—Winston-Salem—Carie Purole (wearing nat) sits with her family at a public housing apartment in Maxton after killer tornadoes destroyed their home in Maxton two weeks ago.

Group Celebrates 39th Annual Meeting, Banquet

YMCA To Award Local Achievers

From CAROLINIAN Staff Reports
The Garner Road YMCA is moving ahead with plans for one of its biggest annual

Executive Director Norman Daye says the "Y" is preparing for its 39th annual meeting and awards banquet. "Each year we hold a banquet and award people in the community for YMCA achievements or community achievements," explained Daye.

Keynote speaker for this year will be Congressman. Walter E. Fauntroy, D-D.C., who is currently serving in the U.S. House of Representatives, and who was the first black elected to that post from the District of Columbia in 100 years. He is a civil rights activist and a Christian minister. In 1963, Fauntroy coordinated the March on Washington and in banquet coincides with Inn, Hillsborough Street. Teens, a group of young

This banquet will focus on five from April 11 to May 24," community at large have been selected in honor of their achievements in these areas. In the category of community services, Ms. Jeannette Hicks will be honored and awarded; education, Dr. Prezell Robinson; politics and legal, attorney Daniel T. Blue; religion, the Rev. Leotha Debnam, Sr.; and outstanding service to the YMCA, William B. Kincaid. Daye stated that YMCA board members Cecil Flagg and Robert T. Young will also be honored during the awards banquet. This year's

1965 he coordinated the efforts by the YMCA to Ms. Malvise A. Scott is women who offer services to Selma - to - Montgomery recruit additional members. chairperson for the banquet the community for the 'Our annual membership and J.B. Allen is co- YMCA will be presented year's award drive this year runs chairperson.

areas and members of the said Daye. The banquet will a sports banquet for be held on Thursday, April football, basketball and banquet held at the new 26, at 7 p.m. in the Hilton swimming in May. The Y-

Also, the YMCA will hold ment in the community.

awards for their achieve-

This will be the first sports

Rep. Spaulding Hits Proposed Pipeline As A Hasty Venture

Kenneth B. Spaulding, a candidate for U.S. Congress in North Carolina's Second Congressional District, said he strongly opposes the proposed pipeline that would transfer water from Lake Gaston to the Virginia Beach area. The pipeline, which would carry 60 million gallons of water a said.

the lake and Roanoke River are our first priority," he said. "We cannot drain one and constructive options to resource and thus leave DURHAM - State Rep. day 84 miles, would be a even more people without a hasty and unwise project for sufficient water supply. We both the citizens of North must not endanger the Carolina and Virginia, he water level of the lake and river, which would pose a "The communities and danger to the economic wellbusinesses that currently being of those already depend on the water from dependent on the lake and

> "There are more feasible (See PIPELINE, P. 2)

THEY SPEAK OUT

HOUSING BRIEF-Washington, D.C.-Elizabeth B. Cofield, second from right, of Raleigh.

N.C., was among members of the National Association of Black County Officials who attended a recent briefing on federal housing programs conducted in Washington by officials of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Pictured with her from left are the Rev. St.

George Crosse, special advisor for minority programs in the Office of the HUD deputy undersecretary for intergovernmental relations; Maurice Barksdale, HUD assistant secretary for housing and federal housing commissioner; and, far right, Webster B. Guillory, of Orange County, Calif., president of NABCO. Ms. Cofield is seeking reelection to her current post as

Question: What do you think is the biggest problem facing blacks in America? Trish Lee, 25, of Raleigh, formerly of New York, an employee at Hudson Belk. "It's probably job status. When I am late coming back from lunch I get hassled by my white manager. I notice when the white girls are late coming back from lunch, nothing is said. Being black is a problem for us also. It brings us a lot of aggravation. We still get a lot of pressure from whites. We are still in modern salvery.' Genia Dobbins, 24, of Raleigh. "Blacks not voting is a big problem. The most important walk a black man can take is to the ballot box. Blacks are not getting involved in the political process.'

Wake County Commissioner.

Evered Dyer, 30, a tailor at Varsity Men's Wear. "The biggest problem facing blacks is Ronald Reagan. His policies are for (See SPEAK OUT, P. 2)

MS. DOBBINS

DYER

DUNN

MS. LEE