lots of them. The first two changes

The first two changes are in Miami, Florida and Charlotte, North Carolina; two new franchises will be opening shop. Of the two, Miami looks the strongest with power up front with players like Rony Seikaly, a first-round pick. And Scott Hastings and Pat Cummings are leading the way with a pair of former high school players of the year; Billy of former high school players of the year: Billy Thompson (1982) and Dwayne Washington (1983) along with the other 1988 first-rounder Kevin Edwards leading the way in the backcourt.

Charlotte is loaded at guard with first-rounder Rex Chapman Joining Kelly Tripucka and Dell Curry to give the Hornets a lot of firepower, but wins could be much harder to find.

In the East Boston will be tough as always with Larry Bird leading the way. New York and Phila-delphia should be stronger this year. Patrick Ewing should develop into a star for the Knicks and rookie Hersey Hawkins will wake up the 76ers. The next potential star in the league is John Williams of Washington entering his third year and getting better all the time. New Jersey, well they are New Jersey.

Detroit and Atlanta will battle in the Central Divi-sion and if the Hawks overcome selfishness they could dominate the league The Pistons are a good team getting better. Cleveland, Indiana, Chicago and Mi'waukee could Denver and Dallas are strong in the Midwest, and San Antonio is on the way up. In the West, of course, it will be the Lakers as they try for their third straight championship but don't count on it. Portland could be just as good. and Seattle should pull
