

RDU To Publish Magazine For 50th Birthday

The Raleigh-Durham Airport Authority has announced that it will publish a commemorative magazine as part of its 50th anniversary celebration activities.

The Airport Authority is the organization responsible for developing and operating the Raleigh-Durham International Airport. It was formed by the North Carolina General Assembly in March 1939.

RDU's Golden Anniversary magazine will be the airport's first comprehensive publication documenting its transition from a small regional airport to an international facility. Articles will also include a look at the airport's impact on the community and a look at RDU's future.

The authority has selected Advertising Communications, Inc. of Durham to create, produce and distribute the 100-page color publication. The complimentary magazine will be available early this summer. Advertising Communications produced similar publications for area firms and business organizations.
