

Alberta Sanders Orator At Recent NCFNWC Banquet

The Southeastern District of the North Carolina Federation of Negro Women's Clubs, Inc., held a banquet recently at Danbury Fellowship Center. The 16th president of NCFNWC, Inc., Ms. Alberta Sanders, was the guest speaker.

The state vice president and past district president, Ms. Retha Jones, was in charge. All the clubs in the district participated in the program, which was more like church than a banquet. The program opened with a congregational selection, "Lift Ev'ry Voice and Sing," and the invocation was given by Minister Robert Lewis. The welcome was provided by Ms. Callena E. Williams of the Senior Federation Club of Fayetteville. She included in her welcome the club motto, "Lifting As We Climb."

The club's aim is to do all the good it can, to all the people it can, in every way that they can, just as long as they can. Response was given by Ms. Ida P. Hinnant, Henley Roberts Club of Lillington, and a musical selection came from Ms. Lillie M. Beamon of Raeford.

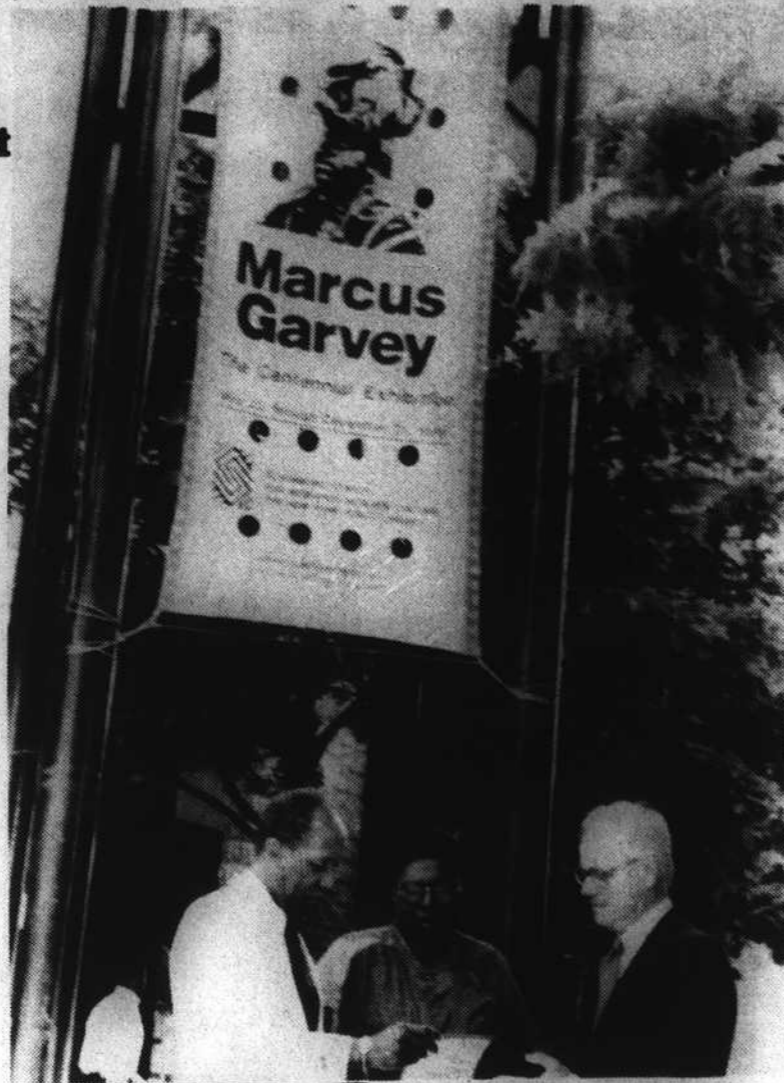

Dinner music was provided by the district's youth department and Ms. McFayden, known in the district as the "Songbird." The youth rendered four selections, including "Fully Committed." Ms. McFayden played the piano and sang such songs as "You Brought Me Over the Hill" and "Walk Around Heaven All Day."

The presentation of the speaker was by the district pres., Ms. Geneva Gills. The speaker, Ms. Sanders, brought the message on the subject, "Working with a Vision."

The crowning of the district queen, Ms. Louise McQueen of the Senior Federation Club, who raised the most money in the district's Ways and Means Committee fundraiser, was by President Gillis. Ms. McQueen was named Ms. Federated Lady of the district.

Christine Steele of the Siler City Federated Club presented the awards to youth winners in the youth district competition, along with Ms. Claretha Lacy, youth advisor of the Senior Federated Club.

Acknowledgement was made of the guests. A special guest attending the banquet was Bobette de Lisser, state public relations chairperson and editor of the Southeastern Regional Newsletter and statistician of the National Association of Colored Women's Clubs, Inc., of which the NCFNWC, Inc. is a member.

GARVEY EXHIBIT—Celebrating a partnership between Kodak and two of America's leading repositories of African-American history, Dr. Rowena Steward (center) welcomes officials to gala opening ceremonies for "Marcus Garvey: The Centennial Exhibition," on display at Philadelphia's Afro-American Historical and Cultural Museum until Dec. 31st. Tom Hlatt (right), Kodak's vice president for public affairs and Howard Dodson (left), were on hand to commemorate Garvey's extraordinary nationalist movement which promoted an attitude of self-sufficiency among people of African descent worldwide. The exhibit is part of the Schomburg's Traveling Exhibition Program, supported by Kodak.

Shaw University Commencement Awards 300 Degrees To Grads.

At its recent commencement exercises, Shaw University awarded 300 bachelor's and associate's degrees in the arts and sciences. Speaker for the occasion was Dr. Christopher Edley, president and chief executive officer for the United Negro College Fund.

He was also awarded the honorary degree of doctor of humane letters. A number of graduates were students from the Ahsokie Shaw Center for Alternative Programs in Education. Shaw operates 10 such centers across the state.

In his remarks to the graduates, Dr. Edley emphasized the importance of their educational accomplishments. "Many years ago," he said, "I concluded that among the important issues of our time, education was the top priority. The gains and achievements of blacks, like those of whites, have been in tandem with our education and training."

And he had strong praise for the nation. "For blacks, this is the best nation to live in on the planet Earth. Amidst and despite all that is wrong

Rev. Jesse Jackson Blast Bush Leadership, Says Too Passive

Jesse Jackson says the Bush administration is too passive in meeting Mikhail Gorbachev's initiatives, adding that Chinese students are taking the Soviet leader as a role model.

"Even as students march in China, they are marching with the Statue of Liberty hoisted on their shoulders, projecting America's ideals for freedom and democracy," Jackson said last Monday in a commencement address to law students. "But they are using Mikhail Gorbachev as their role model, not the American president in whose nation the Statue of Liberty stands. Bold leadership is infectious, it challenges the human spirit."

"There is a new and fresh wind blowing in the world," the civil rights leader and two-time Democratic presidential contender told Hastings College of Law graduates. "It is being carried by the students—a new generation driven by hope and justice and peace. "When young America comes alive, America is always made better," he told the more than 400 law school graduates and 2,500 guests gathered at San Francisco's Davies Symphony Hall.

Jackson said in this speech that his reasons for running for president have not changed—"They have expanded. They're intensifying, they are being encouraged."

"My reasoning [in the 1988 campaign] was that we needed bold new leadership and new direction and sound ideas. It's not enough to be elected president, a caretaker... It requires bold leadership."

Earlier, Jackson met with reporters and answered questions about recent speculation that he might run for mayor of Washington, D.C.

"I did not start it, I did not encourage it," he said of the speculation. "I have no plans to run for mayor. There's nothing else to say about it."

Mentor Program Provides Support To Single Parents

As young people, many low-income women lacked adequate access to business and professional people with whom to discuss their futures. Frequently these women lack ongoing support and resources after becoming mothers and facing single parenthood.

The mentor project was born from the idea that low-income, single mothers would be more likely to go back to school, get a job or improve their job position, gain additional skills and become self-sufficient if they had a supportive person with whom they could talk on an ongoing basis. The goal of the mentor project is to reduce economic hardship, emotional duress and enhance personal growth. The Women's Center committed itself to this project to support the Raleigh Housing Authority's Project Self-Sufficiency which assists low-income single mothers in becoming self-sufficient.

There is a 10-hour training program for the mentor volunteers and ongoing monthly services and support. The first training class will start the week of June 19. There will also be a training class in late September.

Contact Devi Peterson at the Women's Center for more information at 755-6840.
