

Zeta Phi Beta Sorority Plans Annual Revue

Omicron Zeta Chapter of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc. is gearing up for its 44th annual Blue Revue. It will take place on Saturday, Oct. 26, at 7:45 p.m. at the Raleigh Civic and Convention Center. This will be a highlight in the lives of 47 girls in their early teens who will be presented at this very special event. In preparing for this pageant, the local chapter of the sorority sponsored a variety of cultural, social and intellectual activities including a workshop in which Dudley Flood, executive director, N.C. Association of School Administrators, encouraged each participant to start each day with a positive outlook since personal attitudes often are translated into successes or failures. In addition, the sorority sponsored a splash party and cookout for the Blue Revue participants and their families at the Meadowbrook Country Club, Garner. The main purpose of this activity is to help these young ladies improve their self-esteem by increasing their awareness of, and approach to, appropriate vehicles for social, moral and intellectual development. Based on monies they raise, scholarships are awarded to Blue Revue participants, called Archonettes. At the pageant, the Archonette who raised the highest amount will be crowned Miss Blue Revue Queen for 1991.

Miss Alicia Janell Barfield of Raleigh has earned the distinction as the 1991 Queen of the Blue Revue. Miss Barfield is only a freshman at Enloe High School, but she has already set her cap toward a college education. She maintained a B+ average during her middle school years, and she handles mathematics with little or no difficulty. According to Alicia, she plans to take advanced science courses to ensure success in her pursuit of a degree in pharmacy at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Ms. Barfield is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alton H. Barfield, Sr. Her dad works for the federal government as a Staffing Specialist at the Office of Personnel Management, and her mother teaches at Knightdale Elementary School of Wake County. Corey A. May will be Miss Barfield's escort at the Blue Revue. A complete list of other Blue Revue participants, their parents, and their escorts follows.

Good News About Good Jobs

According to the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, approximately 16 million new jobs will be created between now and the year 2000, yet only three million of those positions will actually require a four-year college education.

For millions of these jobs, the experts say, the best place to prepare is in a private career school, some of which are known as technical schools.

"An education at a private career school provides the student with one of the most direct routes to the workforce, because program lengths are shorter than those of the traditional college education," explains Tom Lauer, Vice President and Director of Operations for ITT Technical Institutes, a network of 41 technical schools currently educating more than 17,000 students across the country.

If a private career school seems the route for you, here are a few tips that can help you do your homework before you sign up:

•Check the school's accreditation status. Is it accredited by a U.S. Department of Education approved agency?

•Call the Better Business Bureau and the State Attorney General's office to see if there have been any complaints filed against the school.

•Visit the school and ask how long it's been in existence; the length of the program; the hours per day and days per week in class required; the way the classes are conducted (hands-on learning versus lectures, whether equipment must be shared); the kind of job for which the program prepares one; whether an admissions test, high school diploma or other prerequisite is necessary and; what's included in the tuition.

•Talk to the students and faculty. Ask them how they feel about the school.

•Check out the placement department. No school can guarantee you a job, but it can teach job-getting and keeping skills as well as actively trying to find you work in the field for which it prepares you.

•Ask about student loan and refund policies, what must be paid back, what happens if it's not, and where you can turn for help with tuition.

GET PUMPED UP FOR WINTER.

We're excited, we're psyched, we're pumped. And you really should be, too.

Because a high-efficiency heat pump is the most economical way to heat your home.

If you replace your old system with a high-efficiency heat pump, you can save at least 30% year round. Year after year.

In a well-insulated home, today's heat pump excels at keeping room temperatures throughout your home consistent and comfortable.

CP&L even has a low-interest loan to help you get one. It works like this: the higher the energy-efficiency rating on your heat pump, the lower the interest rate on your loan. (It could be as little as 6%. Check it out.)
