HOME CLUBS PLEDGE SUPPORT FOR DEFENSE

Civil Defense to Have All-Out Support of State HD Clubs in 1952

Raleigh.—Training for Civil Defense is the major project of the North Carolina Federation of Home Demonstration Clubs for the coming year, Miss Ruth Current, State Home Demonstration Agent, disclosed through E. Z. Jones, Director of North Carolina Council of Civil Defense.

"Home Demonstration Club membership numbers 67,000 women, working through 2,300 clubs, with 2,200 local volunteer leaders. Clubs are located in every county in the state. "Their support of the Civil Defense program is significant," Mr. Jones stated. "Rural women can render vital service in the event of enemy disaster, and we are glad to have them give constructive training for such service priority over other projects in their 1952 program."

Miss Current's announcement came following a meeting between Home Demonstration Club District Supervisors with Mrs. Sarah Boyd Weaver, Director of Women's Affairs for the North Carolina Council of Civil Defense, at which the program was set up.

District supervisors in North Carolina are: Miss Nell Kennett, Western District; Mrs. Verona J. Langford, Eastern District; Miss Annamerle Arant, Northwestern District; Mrs. Esther G. Willis, Southwestern District; Mrs. Mary L. McAllister, Southeastern District; Miss Lorna Langley, Northeastern District.

Colored District Supervisors, with offices located at A and T College, Greensboro, are: Mrs. Dozell Lowe, Miss Wilhemena Laws and Mrs. Ruby Carraway.

"Farm women in North Carolina are increasingly aware of the big role they will have in the civil defense of our homefront," Miss Current advised. "We are anxious to back the state program and offer our wholehearted participation."
